'WILSON'S RULE COWARDLY'—T.R.

WILSON PREDICTS WAR IF REPUBLICANS WIN

OUST HIM AND SAVE COUNTRY, COLONEL'S PLEA

'BOWS BEFORE FORCE.'

BY CHARLES N. WHEELER.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Theodore Roosevelt, here today in the first of his new series of "skin 'em alive" speeches, pictured President Wilson as a coward and a man whose word is no good.

He termed him "a man of furtive and shifting political maneuvers," one who had helped to "substitute a policy of craven surrender to whichever side has the superiority in brute force," and directly charged that the president was "cowed by the big labor leaders" as he was by Mexico and Germany.

He charged the president with having "debauched the civil service for congressional votes on behalf of some measures which he had solemnly promised to oppose," and said it was under such circumstances "only" that the president turned his words into deeds.

"COWARDICE OF NATION."

The nation, he declared, has assumed an attitude of "gross cowardice, which we owe to Mr. Wilson's substitution of adroit elocution for straightforward action."

He pictured Mr. Wilson as shifty, unreliable in his word, a political opportunist, a persistent employer of "weasel words," a hypocritical man, whose administration had brought the "derision of mankind" upon this country by the "policy of bluster, hypocrisy, and unpreparedness."

For two hours the colonel continued his rapid fire castigation of the president, swatting fiercely when he got to the "surrender" to the labor leaders.

CALLS IT "FIGHTING SPEECH."

The colonel termed it his "fighting speech," and when he had finished he and his friends were ready to admit that it was even a knock down and drag out affair.

He set a pace for the follow up speakers that augurs an exceedingly caloric and interesting campaign from now until November. The speech pleased the colonel himself and he will take it into the west shortly, speaking at Chicago and St. Paul and then probably in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Arizona, and New Mexico.

Battle Creek, too, had the time of its life. More people came into the city to greet Col. Roosevelt than there are residents of the town, a conservative estimate made the total of visitors 30,000. The big tent where he spoke held 10,000, and twice that many could not get near the place.

PARADE LIKE OLD TIMES.

The parade, of the old fashioned hiphoorah style, smashed all records. From half the state of Michigan the marchers came, carrying banners and transparencies and showing off their best bands. Old soldiers, Freemont voters, and Boy Scouts joined with civic and political organizations in the line of march.

The town was decorated from end to end, and T. R. never in the old days got a heartier hand than today. He was the old idol and for more than an hour he rode through two lanes of bunting and cheering men, women, and children. His sombrero was off and he waved it right and left and with the big smile for every one.

LAMBASTS FOREIGN POLICIES.

Following his general indictment of President Wilson, Col. Roosevelt announced he would be specific. He said he took no stock in President Wilson's word or promises, and pointed to the "sardonic evidence" in the foreign situation to show that Mr. Wilson can display a lively interest in property rights "if he thinks a political purpose is to be served."

Mr. Roosevelt declared that in the fifteen messages, letters, and speeches which President Wilson had written or delivered between Dec. 8, 1914, and Feb. 10, 1916, he had taken forty-one different attitudes, each one of which contradicted from one to six of the others.

He declared that President Wilson "didn't dare to make his words good" in the "strict accountability" exchanges, but had "followed his usual course of submitting to wrong."

"Never in our history," continued Mr.

Austrians Crush Roumanian Army in Transylvania

DRAW IN MACEDONIA

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Troops of the central powers, under the command of Gen. von Falkenhayn, former chief of the German general staff, have gained a decisive victory over the Roumanian invaders of central Transylvania. The Roumanians were crushed between two forces in a battle which raged for three days. After suffering heavy losses the invaders are reported fleeing in disorder into the mountains.

The defeat of the Roumanians was brought about by a strategic move virtually impossible on the western battle front. Gen. von Falkenhayn divided his force of Germans and Austro-Hungarians.

Roumanians Hemmed In.

While one body engaged the invaders around Hermannstadt the other encircled the Roumanians and seized Rothenthurm pass in the mountains, fifteen miles southeast of Hermannstadt, and one of the first points gained by the Roumanians in their advance.

Both forces then pressed in upon the Roumanians, composed of sections of the First Roumanian army.

Bavarian troops, holding Rothenthurm, checked an advance by the second Roumanian army, which attempted to come to the aid of its surrounded compatriots. Berlin reports that a large amount of booty was taken, as well as prisoners.

German War Report.

The German official statement, covering operations on the Roumanian front, follows:

The Roumanian northern and second armies began an attack on the Georzeny mountains, starting from the Parajd-Oderhellen line, from Szekely Udvarhely and from Fogaras. The enemy was repulsed on the Georzeny mountains.

Further south the defending troops evaded an attack. German troops attacked successfully beyond Haar Brook, south of Henndorf-Hegin, one of the Roumanian columns, driving it back and capturing eleven officers, 591 men, and three machine guns.

Roumanians Are Routed.

The encircling battle at Hermannstadt, which began on Sept. 26, has been won. Under command of Gen. von Falkenhayn, German and Austro-Hungarian troops destructively defeated strong sections of the First Roumanian army, after stubborn fighting. After having suffered heavy losses, the remainder of the enemy troops fled in disorder into the impassable mountain country on both sides of Rothenthurm pass.

The Roumanians were received there with a devastating fire from Bavarian troops. A thrust made for their relief by the second Roumanian army came too late.

Bulgarian War Report.

The following official communication was received from Sofia covering the situation in Macedonia and Dobrudja:

On the Kaimakcalan heights the cannonading was sharp. We repulsed a night attack by the enemy, and, counter attacking, occupied a trench of his principal position.

On both sides of the Vardar and on the Belaschitza Planina there was calm.

Along the Danube calm prevailed. In Dobrudja there has been minor artillery activity.

French War Report.

The French official statement on Macedonian operations says:

There was intermittent cannonading at various points on the front. No action is reported.

Our bombarding aeroplanes dropped a large number of bombs on Prilep (in southern Serbia north of Monastir). Another of our machines bombarded Sofia yesterday morning and continued its flight to Bucharest, where it landed safely.

Roumanian War Report.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 30.—The retreat of the Roumanians from the Hermannstadt district is admitted in the official communication from headquarters. The statement says:

The fighting is general on the north and northwestern fronts where we took 600 prisoners.

Our troops at Sibia (Hermannstadt), attacked on all sides by superior enemy forces after a battle lasting three days, reëstablished their communication to the south, repulsing the enemy who was attacking from that direction. Our troops retired southward.

LANDIS BARES TENNES RING OF GAMBLING

Federal Prosecution May Result from Exposure of Race Bookmaking.

DETAILS ARE GIVEN UP.

How a group of gamblers, headed by Mont Tennes and Eph' Harding, operate a bookmaking syndicate in Chicago with headquarters in the heart of the loop was revealed yesterday by Judge Landis.

As a result District Attorney Charles F. Clyne announced federal prosecution of the gamblers may be undertaken upon the evidence furnished by Judge Landis in an open court inquiry lasting barely two hours and a half.

THINGS DO HAPPEN.

It all came about because the judge insists on knowing all about the people who try to "put things over" in his court and also about their friends and acquaintances. Judge Landis started to find out about a group of bondsmen for the blackmail syndicate, whose actions and securities aroused his suspicions.

He uncovered the bookmaking syndicate with headquarters in room 604 of the Straus building at Clark and Madison street, and thirteen branches, some inside the loop. He connected broken links which federal and state authorities have been trying for years to bind together between various groups of supposed law violators. He found details of gambling to which police administrations in Chicago have been blind for years.

ALL IN ONE SESSION!

Here is a summary of what Judge Landis did:

He denied the petition of Attorney Charles E. Erbstein, who asked that State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne be restrained from interfering with alleged members of the so-called blackmail syndicate.

He uncovered a ring of gamblers whose annual profits probably run into hundreds of thousands of dollars, and gave the district attorney an opening for federal prosecutions.

He disclosed conditions which state and city authorities have yet to obliterate. The bookmaking syndicate, he learned, operates on a large scale and without effective opposition from the police.

He showed a small group of bondsmen "work" the same property, often heavily mortgaged, over and over again, to gain bondsmen's fees and the freedom of prisoners from state and federal courts. The bond of Helen Evers, for instance, he declared "not worth 50 cents."

LANDIS CALLS 'EM ALL.

Everything happened in a short time; but Judge Landis worked hard and fast. He kept deputy marshals on the run with subpœna after subpœna to bring in those named by each succeeding witness. Whenever a witness professed ignorance, the judge demanded the name of the person who knew; and the giving of the name meant the immediate issuance of a subpœna.

The judge was not a respecter of persons in his pursuit of information. Fred Stall, a saloonkeeper and bookmaker in the old levee district, admitted reluctantly that his information regarding the races came from the General News bureau. His memory failed, however, when he was asked the address and telephone number of the syndicate.

COME RIGHT IN, MR. SUNNY!

"All right," Judge Landis snapped, "issue a forthwith subpœna for B. E. Sunny, president of the Chicago Telephone company. We'll find out where this place is and its telephone number."

Stall's memory received a sudden jog, and telephone number, together with names and addresses, tumbled from his lips. That is but a single instance. The judge pursued his inquiry sternly, humorously, relentlessly.

Willie Tennes, brother of Mont, hesitated and professed ignorance when asked the names and telephone numbers he called daily with the race "dope."

"Now, Mr. Tennes," the judge warned, "don't waste my time. If you waste my

Prince Chimay Named in Suit on Ward Will

Son of Mrs. C. L. Morrow Says Mother's Mind Was Influenced.

$1,500,000 INVOLVED

Once more the Princess de Chimay.

This time it is the will of her mother, the late Catherine L. Morrow, formerly Mrs. Eber B. Ward of Detroit giving some $1,500,000 to three grandchildren. The will is contested in a suit filed yesterday by Eber B. Ward, the son, who claims that John Morrow, his stepfather, and Joseph De Riquet, Prince de Chimay, on behalf of his two children, were in collusion to turn the mind of his mother in their favor.

Two of the grandchildren named in the will are the son and daughter of Clara Ward, Princess de Chimay. They are Joseph de Caraman de Chimay and Marie de Caraman de Chimay. The third grandchild is Eugenie Phyllis Ward, daughter of the contestant.

The part of the former Princess de Chimay in the will is brief. She is left $1,000. It will be recalled that she once was Clara Ward of Detroit, daughter of a wealthy shipowner. Her marriage to the Prince de Chimay of Belgium was an international affair attended by ambassadorial notables. She wore a $10,000 gown on the occasion. Her wealth was estimated at $3,000,000. This she proceeded to spend in swift living. She shocked the Belgians with her doings and finally eloped with Rigo, the gypsy violinist, to the amazement of continental Europe.

Her exploits continued with the desertion of Rigo, whom she paid a sum of money as heart balm, and another elopement with Ricciardo, an Italian stationmaster. Later she rid herself of him and eloped with still another Italian. She is said to be living in a small house in Paris—she is 43—in close retirement.

Long List of Defendants.

In the suit filed yesterday there is a long list of defendants, in which are named Calvin Fentress and John K. Lyon, the latter an uncle of the former princess of Hubbard Woods, who are executors under the will.

W. W. Gurley, who is attorney for the proponents, declared last night there is no proper ground for an attack on the will.

"The allegations of evil influence over Mrs. Morrow, who was a resident of England at her death, are all Greek to me," said Mr. Gurley. "There will be a fight to the finish. I understand Mr. Ward is living in Cannes, France."

C. A. A. BOXING TEACHER INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE.

George Dawson Struck by Machine Occupied by Phil McKenna, Politician, and His Two Sons.

George Dawson, instructor of boxing at the Chicago Athletic association, yesterday left the club with E. T. Gundlach, president of the Gundlach Advertising company, to drive home in the latter's car. The machine was stopped opposite the Edgewater Beach hotel and Mr. Dawson alighted to continue to his home, 5300 Wayne avenue, afoot.

As he waved good night to Mr. Gundlach and started to cross Sheridan road a car occupied by Phil McKenna, the politician, and his two sons, flashed up and struck him.

At the Columbus hospital an examination showed a slight depression of the skull and numerous minor injuries. Dawson was reported to be resting well and in no danger at the hospital last night.

MAN WHO CRAWLED FREE FROM JOLIET PEN IS CAUGHT

Clyde Stratton, Sewer Rat, Identified in Lorain, O., Through Picture in Newspaper.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 30.—A picture printed in a Cleveland newspaper and the adroitness of Chief of Police King of Lorain, O., accomplished the capture in that city of Clyde Stratton, the "prince of jail breakers," who three times has crawled to freedom through sewers. Tonight, two months to a day since Stratton crawled half a mile through an eighteen inch sewer to freedom from the Joliet penitentiary, he was carried aboard a train in Lorain. He was helpless in leg irons and handcuffs, bound for Leavenworth prison.

Stratton, who is a college graduate, expert electrician, gentleman crook, burglar, and bank robber, boasted of his police record and his escapes.

Stratton was caught after he stooped to the petty theft of a suit case full of petticoats. A Cleveland traveling salesman, who lost the case on an interurban car that had carried him to Lorain, saw Stratton on the street in Lorain the next day and had him arrested.

MRS. J. A. HOLDEN KILLED MOTORING TO FLORIDA.

Wife of Typewriter Supply Man Crushed Under Machine at Cross Roads Near Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary Holden, wife of J. A. Holden of 4848 Sheridan road, Chicago, was killed instantly here this afternoon when the automobile in which she and her husband were riding turned over in a ditch, a short distance west of the city. Holden had swerved the machine to the side of the road in an attempt to avoid striking another machine.

Mr. and Mrs. Holden were motoring from Chicago to Florida and had intended to spend the night in Indianapolis. Mrs. Holden had driven to within two miles of where the accident occurred, when she complained of being tired, Mr. Holden said, and he took the wheel.

A few minutes later as they approached a cross roads an automobile driven by Miss Evelyn Pearson of this city passed in front of them. The machines collided.

Holden said he was driving at about twenty-five miles an hour, and, being unfamiliar with the road, did not realize he was approaching the cross road until he was almost upon it. He is in the typewriter supply business.

McCutcheon Will Wed; Honeymoon on Treasure Isle

The society columns of THE TRIBUNE this morning carry the announcement of John T. McCutcheon's engagement to Miss Evelyn Shaw, daughter of Howard Shaw of Ragsdale, Lake Forest. The announcement gives added interest to Mr. McCutcheon's recent purchase of Salt Cay, an island of the Bahamas, also called Treasure island, and it is said to be Mr. McCutcheon's intention to make his first visit to the island on his honeymoon journey.

Miss Shaw is widely known in north side and Lake Forest society—a Bryn Mawr college graduate and of a studious disposition. Her father is a well known architect. The Shaws' city residence is at 1130 Lake Shore drive.

"A Contributing Reason."

Mr. McCutcheon, who has long been listed in the hard and fast Freemasonry of bachelorhood, mentioned his engagement in connection with his account of the purchase of Salt Cay.

"I didn't purchase the island because of my engagement," he said, "although that also was a contributing reason. I have never been on the island. My first visit to it will be during the honeymoon, which we plan to spend there."

Mr. McCutcheon declared that the date for the wedding has not been set, but he said it would take place some time this winter—probably before Christmas. The purchase of the honeymoon island was just consummated yesterday. Mr. McCutcheon received a wire from his New York attorneys saying that Harcourt Malcolm, the British representative at Nassau, Bahama islands, had reached New York and approved the deed.

Dream of Boyhood.

"In a way my purchase of the island is the realization of a dream that I've held to from boyhood," said Mr. McCutcheon. "Ever since I read Stevenson's 'Treasure Island,' and I was a mighty small boy then, I have wished for an island. It seemed an impossible ambition for a long time, but it has come true in unexpected fashion.

"I do not wish the public to get the impression that I paid an immense sum for the island. I paid scarcely a fifth of its value, because there is no especial demand for islands and a guy with one just has to find another guy that wants one, I suppose.

Told Isle Is for Sale.

"Some months ago Charles T. Atkinson, who is familiar with the island and who knew of my desire for one, told me that Salt Cay, or "Treasure island," was for sale. Naturally my interest leaped up at once—the coincidence of the name I think gave me the big impulse. Still, not dreaming that I would be able to buy it, I wrote to attorneys for the estate of the late Abraham Van Winkle, to which it belonged, and asked for terms. They named a figure and I replied with my figure, about a third of theirs. Gradually we worked to a deal."

In 1912 Mr. McCutcheon took a yacht trip through the Bahamas and other famous buccaneer rendezvous, and wrote a series of semi-historical pirate stories for THE TRIBUNE. At that time he saw his little island, though only from a distance.

Over Three Miles Long.

The island is situated about five miles from Nassau, New Providence. It is three and a half miles in length by a mile and a half wide, of coral composition, and luxuriantly flowered.

The late Abraham Van Winkle, New Jersey millionaire, spent large sums of money in the improvement of Salt Cay, where he spent much of his time. The main house, situated on the highest eminence, has 300 feet of veranda. There are two concrete guests' bungalows, a barracks for the workmen, and two small cottages for the foremen. Well kept drives and paths traverse the island in every direction, and there is a grove of about 4,000 coconut trees which are just beginning to bear generously.

MEXICO "PLOT" IS DENOUNCED BY PRESIDENT

Says Wall Street Seeks to Regain Control of Government.

LAUDS PARTY RECORD.

Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 30.—In a vigorous denunciation of the Republican party, President Wilson today told a delegation of young Democrats from New York that "the certain prospect" of Republican success in November is that "we shall be drawn in one form or another into the embroilments of European war," and that "the force of the United States will be used to produce in Mexico the kind of law and order which some investors in Mexico consider most to their advantage."

The president made his first out and out political speech of the campaign from the porch of Shadow Lawn. Urged on by the enthusiastic cheers and waving banners of several thousand young men, he laid down the issues on which he believes the campaign should be fought.

"PEACE OR WAR CHOICE."

"Am I not right that we must draw the conclusion that if the Republican party is put into power at the next election, our foreign policy will be radically changed?" he asked. "I cannot draw any other inference. All our present foreign policy is wrong, they say, and if it is wrong and they are men of conscience they must change it. And if they are going to change it, in what direction are they going to change it? There is only one choice as against peace, and that is war."

Charging that Republicans take the counsel of "those who have hitherto acted as the counselors of the vested interests in Mexico," the president declared that these men had tried to get what they wanted from him, but had failed and "now are going where they think they can get it."

HANDICAP ON DIPLOMACY.

Still discussing the foreign affairs of the country, President Wilson stated that on account of the political uses made of foreign relations, "it is going to be practically impossible for the present administration to handle any critical matter concerning our foregin relations, because all foreign statesmen are waiting to see which way the election goes, and in the meantime they know that settlements would be inconclusive."

A bid was made by the president for the votes of Progressives. He praised the Progressive party as having "the real red blood of human sympathy in its veins," and declared the Democratic party had done the things the Progressives wanted done.

Briefly the president referred to the hyphenate issue. He said:

"Back of that party [the Republican] are those who want to inject into our politics the politics of Europe."

OLD GUARD AGAIN RULES.

Again attacking the Republican party, he said lieutenants of Mark Hanna have returned to authority and determine the policy of the Republican party.

Outlining the program of the Democratic party, Mr. Wilson said it has begun the process of "liberalization" for the business of this country, and "it intends to strengthen that system at every point, extend it at every point, extend it wherever it needs extension."

Mr. Wilson referred briefly to the federal reserve act, the tariff commission act, the trade commission act, and other laws passed by the Democrats, charging that "until the present administration Wall street controlled the actions of the treasury of the United States."

PRESIDENT WILSON'S ADDRESS.

President Wilson's address follows:

"I am very much obliged to you for giving me an opportunity to say some very plain things about the present campaign and about the future policy of this country, because young men are very much more interested in the future than they are in the present. While some of us who are older look back upon long experience and are able to take certain measurements which may not have occurred to you, nevertheless your feeling is that the world lies in front of you and not behind you. You want to know what sort of world it is going to be and what sort of guidance you are going to have in that world and what sort of coöperation among you will be effective for the service of the world into which the years ahead of you will bring you.

No Help from Republicans.

"I do not know where, from Republican quarters, you have got any suggestions as to what is going to happen in the years to come. This is a most singular campaign. I will not say an unprecedented campaign, because I happen to remember that other parties have tried to get into power by saying nothing whatever; and I also remember with interest that they never succeeded, because the people of the United States are an inquisitive people, and if you ask them to entrust you with the great power of their government they really want to know what you are going to do with that government if they entrust you with it. They may not insist upon your telling them what you would have done in circumstances now past and gone, but they will insist upon you telling them what you intend to do in the future.

Calls Campaign Uninteresting.

"For a little while I myself expected that this campaign would be an interesting, intellectual contest," the president continued, "that on both sides men would draw upon some of the essential questions of politics in order to determine the predominance of parties, but I am sorry to say I have found nothing to interest me and I am a little bit ashamed of myself that I should have expected it, for I should have known better.

"There is a fact running through all our political history of which I ought to have reminded myself—the Democratic party, my fellow citizens, is the only party whose life has persisted and whose vigor has continued throughout all the history of this nation, and that has not happened by accident.

"It has happened because it is the only party, I venture to say, all of whose life has been governed, or at any rate inspired, by a definite principle—an absolute belief in the control of the people, their right to control, their capacity to control their own affairs and shape them in the common interest.

Praises Democratic Party.

"The Democratic party has committed many errors, the Democratic party has made some fatal mistakes of action, but the reason it has lived, the reason it is the only party that has apparent immortality in our politics, is that it is the only party that has consistently based its beliefs upon the things and the convictions that underlie all American history—the belief in the government of the people by themselves and their own representatives.

"It has witnessed the life and death of two great parties, and unless I am very much mistaken it will witness the early disappearance of another. It witnessed the life and disappearance of the Federalist party. It witnessed the life, the increase, the demoralization, the decline, and the disappearance of the Whig party.

G. O. P. Is Demoralized?

"And then there appeared upon the scene the Republican party, first of all organized for a great and different purpose to prevent the spread of the institution of slavery into the free portions of the United States. That object they greatly accomplished.

"And then there seemed to descend upon them the spirit of the Federalist and the Whig parties and ever since then the increasing demoralization of that party has been evident.

"What was the spirit of those parties? The spirit of those parties was one of limited control of the affairs of the nation by those who had the biggest material stake in the prosperity of the country. Some of them professed this very openly and some of them practiced it without professing it.

Governed by a Few.

"The theory of Alexander Hamilton, who founded the Federalist party, was that the best kind of government is government by guardians and trustees, and that only those who represented the material enterprises of the country are capable of acting as trustees and guardians. So that throughout the period when the Federalist party was in control the whole idea was that a small group of carefully planning men should govern opinion and control administrative action in the United States.

"The Whig party, when it arose, had a somewhat more liberal conception, but before it had lasted long it acted upon exactly the same principle—that the great body of the people is not capable of doing its own thinking and that a small group of persons must be allowed to do its thinking for it, and the Republican party has inherited that idea; not the idea of government by the people but of government for the people and control of the people by those who govern it.

"Attorneys of Interests."

"It was a foregone conclusion that parties that held such principles could not live in America. The only reason they existed for a short time was that they did rally to their support some of the fine, planning, enterprising minds of the country and that so long as those men had the conscience of public service, great things were conceived and great things were done; but just so soon as they put in possession of the government men who were attorneys or special interests, the decadence of the party inevitably ensued.

"The Republican party as now constituted and led believes in government by the attorneys of special interests. They are perfectly willing that the attorneys of the people should appear

"There is only one choice as against peace and that is war. Some of the supporters of that (Republican) party outspokenly declare that they want war so that the certain prospect of success of the Republican party is that we shall be drawn in one form or another into the embroilments of the European war and that the force of the United States will be used to produce in Mexico the kind of law and order which some American investors in Mexico consider most to their advantage."

"The one thing I want to lay emphasis upon is this: That a great, fundamental final choice in regard to our foreign relationships is to be made on the seventh of November."

"Until the present administration Wall street controlled the United States treasury. Such assistance as the treasury can legitimately extend in times of financial stress used always to be extended to Wall street. Now it is extended to the country."

"They (Wall street) used to be able to do a great deal in the way of legislation by means of a lobby and the lobby has disappeared. The little cowards scuttled the minute they were mentioned."

"I do not find that anybody else's counsel is taken except those who hitherto have acted as the counsellors for the vested interests in Mexico. They have talked to me. I know exactly what they want. I have declined to give it to them and now they are going where they think they can get it."

"Thereupon the great Progressive party sprung up . . . great because it had the real red blood of human sympathy in its veins and was ready to work for mankind. I want to pay my tribute to the men who formed that group. I am a progressive. I do not spell it with a capital P, but I think my pace is just as fast as those who do."

before them and plead for the rights of the people, but they are not willing that the counsels which determine action shall be participated in by the attorneys of the people.

Praise for Progressives.

"The end of such a party was foredoomed, and now the party that believes in the people and tries to do things for the people has been in power for four years. And what has happened? It has redeemed some of the promises falsely made by the attorneys for the special interests and it has done something more interesting than that. You remember that four years ago there was a great body of spirited Republicans who said:

"'This thing is becoming a fraud and a sham. We have been taking care of some people, but we have not been taking care of the great body of the people. We have not thought about their morals; we have not thought about their health, we have not thought about their rights as human beings, and we insist that you put the policy of this party in our hands or we will go off and form a party of our own.'

"And thereupon the great Progressive party sprung up—great not because it turned out to be more numerous than the party from which it had seceded, though it did that, but because it had the real red blood of human sympathy in its veins and was ready to work for mankind and forget the interests of a narrow party. I want to pay my tribute of respect to the purposes and intentions of the men who formed that group in our politics.

Republicans Are Divided.

"I am a progressive. I do not spell it with a capital P, but I think my pace is just as fast as those who do. It does not interfere with the running and I am much astonished to see the company that some gentlemen who spell their name with a capital are keeping. They are engaged in the interesting enterprise of trying to capture a party which is fortified against them and refusing to enter a party which is already captured by those who believe in their principles, the intellectual processes by which they arrive at their conclusions are entirely obscured to my intelligence.

"But you will notice that a party that merely wants to control does not have to have any principles. That is the reason why surprise that a program has not been announced is unreasonable. Look over the ranks of the supporters of the Republican party. Did you ever see a more motley company in your life?

Inject Politics of Europe.

"Back of that party are those who want to inject into our politics the politics of Europe; but not all who have that purpose in mind are on the same side. Some want to inject those politics in order to move in one direction and others want to inject them in order to move in exactly the opposite direction. Under these circumstances it is not wise to announce your direction.

"Some of them are Progressives, or were, and profess themselves dissatisfied with the present leadership and guidance of the party, and others are so well satisfied with it that they are afraid that the entrance of this new element will disturb some of their favorite plans, and so, looking at each other with suspicion, they have only one enthusiasm and that is the enthusiasm to 'get in.' I see in my mind's eye this great motley company enthusiastically united in a great drive for possession.

"Unfortunately, however, one thing has become reasonably clear, my fellow citizens, and it is a serious thing indeed. One thing has become evident, not because it was explicitly stated, for nothing has been explicitly stated, but because it is unmistakably implicit in [illegible] everything that has been said.

Peace or War, Choice.

"[illegible] I not right that we must draw the conclusion that if the Republican party is put into power at the next election our foreign policy will be radically changed? I cannot draw any other inference. All our present foreign policy is wrong, they say, and if it is wrong and they are men of conscience, they must change it, and if they are going to change it, in what direction are they going to change it?

"There is only one choice as against peace, and that is war, some of the supporters of that party, a very great body of the supporters of that party, outspokenly declare that they want war, so that the certain prospect of success of the Republican party is that we shall be drawn in one form or other into the embroilments of the European war, and that, to the south of us, the force of the United States will be used to produce in Mexico the kind of law and order which some American investors in Mexico consider most to their advantage.

"Interests" and Mexico.

"I do not find that anybody else's counsel is taken in respect of the policy that this country should pursue with regard to Mexico, except those who have hitherto acted as the counselors for the vested interests in Mexico. The whole country is acquainted with the gentlemen who have been consulted. There is no concealment, even by themselves, of whose attorneys they are. They have talked to me. I know exactly what they want. I have declined to give it to them, and now they are going where they think that they can get it. And there is every indication, on the surface at any rate, that their calculation is well founded.

"There is a more serious aspect even than that. There is an immediate result of this thing, my fellow citizens. From this time until the 7th of November it is going to be practically impossible for the present administration to handle any critical matter concerning our foreign relations because all foreign statesmen are waiting to see which way the election goes, and in the meantime they know that settlements will be inconclusive.

"The conference which is being held with regard to Mexican affairs is embarrassed every day by the apparent evidence which is being produced that hostility to Mexico is being traded upon by one of the great political parties. These gentlemen may reconcile these influences with patriotic purpose, but it is difficult for all of us to do so.

Election to Decide Policies.

"And the one thing I want to lay emphasis upon in this connection in this: That a great, fundemental, final choice with regard to our foreign relationships is to be made on the 7th of November. Some young men ought to be interested in that, some men who want to see the future cleared ofthe passion which governs the present ought to be interested in that. Men who love to see a great peaceful force expended by America for the service of the world ought to be interested in that.

"Take the federal reserve system, the great banking system by which the credits of this country hitherto locked up, the credits of the average man, have been released and put into action; the great system which has made it possible for us to absorb $2,000,000,000 worth of American securities held on the other side of the water, which have been offered for sale, nearly, if not quite 50 per cent of the whole body of the American securities held abroad, a thing that would have been impossible otherwise.

"You know that one of the many things that the Republicans promised and never did was to reform the currency system. They did what they have always done in such circumstances. They had a thorough inquiry and report made without any purpose of following it.

"The report was made after long and expensive inquiry and much interesting travel, but a committee presided over by the late Senator Aldrich, and that report is a very valuable document. It is full of a great deal of useful information, along with a great deal of useless information. I dare say that in any report the useless predominates over the useful, but if you know what you are looking for you can find it in that report.

"When we came to do this thing that ought to have been done long ago, but which, because of a kind of paralysis which cannot be called infantile, it was impossible for the Republican party to do (I should call it a paralysis of the will), we found that we could take the skeleton of what we wanted to do from the Aldrich report, but that we could not take the heart out of it, we so absolutely altered the heart that Senator Aldrich himself denounced the thing that we produced.

Afraid of Losing Grip.

"There was universal hostility among the bankers of this country, not unanimous, but universal, to the adoption of the present system, and all of that opposition had its impulse from that central group which knew that that was going to happen which did happen—that they were going to lose their grip on the treasury of the United States.

"They are perfectly content, my fellow citizens, to take over the federal trade commission, provided they can select the commissioners and suggest whom they shall consult. They are perfectly willing to have a tariff board—at least they were willing ot have it before we created it—provided they can determine beforehand what its conclusions are going to be by determining the quality and antecedents of the men who compose it. You can very easily determine beforehand what is going to happen.

Fears of Wall Street.

"Similarly they would be perfectly content to control the board, which is to govern rural credit system. They would be perfectly willing to appoint the board that is to control the development of the merchant marine and the regulation of marine charges in the carriage of freight on the high seas—perfectly willing.

"The only thing that makes them uneasy is that Democrats should be running these things. I am not saying this in jest. I am not saying it to make a point. I am saying it out of my personal experience.

"Until the present administration, Wall street controlled the actions of the treasury of the United States. I do not like those words, 'Wall street,' because there are some men in Wall street who have vision; there are some men who see things large and see them true; there are some men with fine statesmanlike gifts, and I do not like to include them, but the main impulse in Wall street is not given to it by them. When I say 'Wall street' I mean some parts of Wall street, and I leave you to select the parts. Wall street, thus selected, formerly controlled the treasury of the United States. Why, my fellow citizens, it even had a desk in the treasury department.

Sought to Be Advisers.

"Many of these gentlemen honestly believe that only they understand the interests of the country and they were genuinely uneasy to see the treasury conducted without their consent. Again and again I have received intimations from these quarters during the last three and a half years that they would like to be consulted, and I have invariably returned the same answer. I have said if these gentlemen have any advice to give I shall be most pleased to receive it. All they have to do is to ask to see me and tell me in the frankest way, like any other American citizen, what they think ought to be done.

"But they would not accept that kind of an invitation. They wanted to be sent for and they wanted to be reasonably certain before they went that their advice would be taken. They did not want to come in on the same terms with other citizens of the United States, offering their advice as to what ought to be done.

"And it must surprise them in their private thoughts to have to admit that it has been better conducted than ever before in our generation; more successfully as a business administration and infinitely more helpfully to the general body of the American people. Such assistance as the treasury of the United States can legitimately extend in times of financial stress used always to be extended to Wall street.

"They have suffered another inconvenience. They used to be able to do a great deal in the way of legislation by means of a lobby the people knew little about, and the lobby, thank God, has disappeared. I do not mean the legitimate lobby, the lobby that will go to the hearings of committees and argue their case in public, with the reporters present, but I mean the buttonholing lobby; I mean the lobby that uses influence and not argument, that uses inducement and not fact, that understands some special interests and does not give a count for the general interest.

"That is the lobby I mean, and the little cowards scuttled the minute they were mentioned. I had only to say in a casual interview to the representatives of the press that there was such a lobby when all at once the rats began to scuttle.

"Good Days of Mark Hanna."

"Two years ago the Republicans fancied that there was a reaction against the Democratic party, because it had been going some, I admit. And so, in the campaign for the congressional elections, two years ago, some of their most distinguished leaders spoke indiscreetly. They said that what this country needed was a business administration, in which, from one point of view, we might have concurred if they had not added to this definition that what the country wanted was to return to the good old days of Mark Hanna.

"Further definition was unnecessary. 'The good old days of Mark Hanna!' No thoughtful man in this country would propose that we should return to the methods of political control practiced by Senator Hanna. It happened that at that time a very lovely, trustworthy gentleman was president of the United States. I mean Mr. William McKinley. He had no part discreditable to himself, so far as I know, in the political arrangements and the expenditure of unlimited money in campaigns for which Senator Hanna was responsible, but now you will notice we have returned to the good old days of Mark Hanna in the Republican party.

Old Leaders Resume Control.

"Some of the gentlemen who were prominent in that odious régime are now at the head of affairs in the management of the Republican campaign. The lieutenants of Mark Hanna have returned to authority, and the lieutenants of Mark Hanna represent the choices, the determinations, and, so much as we can conjecture, the policy of the Republican party. What they want to do is to get control and then determine the policy in private conference.

"The people of the United States have frequently been fooled, but they are not often fooled several times in the same way, and this barefaced attempt to fool them in the same old way is, in my judgment, one of the most futile things that was ever attempted.

Young Men Lead Reform.

"I do not know, for my part, how the spirit of a nation gets into one generation after another, but I do know by long contact with young men that the spirit of a nation is perhaps more intense in the generations coming on than in the more sophisticated generations that have become deeply immersed in particular lines of business.

"And so the young men have the impulse, the momentum, the whole vision of the people more intensely in them than the older men who have grown a little tired, some of them, grown a little pessimistic, some of them grown a little discouraged, some of them have had many hard knocks and suffered many disappointments, but who yet, nevertheless, with stubborn courage and steadfast strength, are themselves struggling toward the light.

"And they are calling to the young men, 'Come, recruit our ranks. Some of us are falling by the way. We need your force. We need your hope. We need your conference. We need your capacity to get together and stay together and follow the lead. Come, strengthen the great army of men who have their eyes lifted to these horizons where shines the light of hope for men of every nation and of every generation, where rests the reassurance of the world's peace and of the world's happiness.'"

O'LEARY REPLIES TO WILSON WITH LONG TELEGRAM

American Truth Society Leader Says He Will Not Sue for Slander.

With no apparent regard for the cost of telegraph tolls, Jeremiah A. O'Leary, president of the American Truth society, sent a bitter reply last night to President Wilson's stinging message that he did not want the vote of O'Leary or any of his ilk. The president's message was the result of an earlier telegram which O'Leary sent to the White House. That message attempted to show that voters are opposed to the foreign policies of the president, which O'Leary charged are pro-British.

O'Leary was in Chicago attending a secret conference of leaders of the American Truth society, the German-American alliance, the American Embargo conference, and some Irish-American organizations. The meeting was held in the Kaiserhof hotel.

Abandons Slander Suit.

For a time O'Leary was considering a suit against President Wilson for slander. O'Leary's brother and some of his friends in New York wired him to take that act on the ground of an alleged disloyalty charge.

The greater part of O'Leary's message was made of personalities and dealt little with the war situation.

"You notice," said O'Leary, "that President Wilson did not openly charge me with disloyalty. He intimated that I was disloyal. If he had made the direct charge, I would have brought suit against him at once.

"He said he would not have my vote. He knew he couldn't get it. It's a case of sour grapes with the president. I believe he has made a great political blunder in sending that message. The Irish in America will turn against him almost to a man, and the Irish vote is the bulwark of the Democratic vote. Democratic leaders are not anxious to see the vote broken up as that message will break it.

"He talks about disloyalty. Why, my relatives were fighting for this country when he was teaching a female seminary."

The Reply.

The message he sent to the president follows:

In your telegram of yesterday you have evaded every question that I raised. In acting thus you have followed your usual method of carrying on a controversy with an opponent. Now you seek, by an indirect charge of disloyalty—a charge which you dared not directly make—to escape the questions which you cannot answer.

I challenge comparison, both by heredity and environment, of my life and antecedents with yours. While three of my uncles were dying for the defense of the union, those of your kin who dared to fight were struggling to destroy it.

It has remained for you to break new ground as a president and to seek to divide your countrymen into racial and religious groups. The word "hyphenate" was never heard in American public life until you coined it to insult your hosts, real Americans of Irish blood, at the dedication of the Commodore Barry monument in Washington.

Now you speak of disloyalty. What do you mean—disloyalty to America or disloyalty to England? If the first, I throw the charge back in your teeth. If the second, I call your attention to the historical fact of the revolution which the fathers thought had delivered us from England for all time. I stand as the men of my blood have always stood, in favor of America as against every foreign power. Do you?

I charge again that your foreign policies, your Mexican entanglements, your action on the Panama canal, your failure to sustain American rights, your truckling to England, your approval of war loans, and of the munitions traffic, are all subversive of the interests of America.

I warn you that you are being weighed in the balance, and that adherence to your policies will carry you down to deserved defeat on election day.

The statement was given to the newspapers by O'Leary at the Hotel Sherman.

GERMANY DENIES IT PLANS CHANGE IN U-BOAT POLICY

Reprisals Because Americans Aid Allies Is Only Press Talk, Officials Say.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The ebullition in yesterday's newspapers over the case of the American aviator Kiffen Rockwell, who was killed recently near Thann, on the western front, now appears to be without official importance or bearing on the general submarine policy.

Inquiries show particularly that there was no foreign office inspiration or suggestion that the presence of Americans in the entente forces would be made the subject of official representations or negotiations.

It is declared that the journalistic outburst is not to be taken as an indication of any impending change in the submarine policy, but rather is an isolated breaking out of the latent feeling due to munitions shipments and like matters. The German press this morning appears to have forgotten the incident.

U-Boat Outrages Denied.

"Neither the steamer Kelvinia nor the steamer Strathtay was attacked by German submarines, it is stated by competent authorities," the Overseas News agency announces today. "Consequently reports in foreign newspapers alleging that these steamers were torpedoed by German craft without warning are untrue."

U. S. to Maintain Attitude.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Increasing agitation in Germany for a complete resumption of submarine warfare, Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's declaration before the reichstag that any statesman failing to use Germany's every weapon to shorten the war "deserves to be hanged," and the recent simultaneous publication in German papers of attacks on American neutrality, brought forth today an authoritative though informal statement from the state department of the American government's attitude toward the situation.

Any action which endangers American lives through the sinking of ships without warning or by failing to provide proper safeguards, it was emphatically asserted, will immediately reopen the submarine question with all its possibilities. But so far, in spite of what is going on in Germany, there has been absolutely no indication in the official advices to the department that Germany has violated the agreement arrived at in the Sussex case.

POLICE CAPTAINS FINED FOR SLOT MACHINE LAXITY

Merit Board Orders Pay Loss and Reprimand for Three.

The finding of the city civil service commission in the case of the three police captains accused of permitting the operation of slot machines in violation of department rules was made public yesterday.

As predicted in THE TRIBUNE, the decision provides for a fine and a reprimand, but none of the captains is to be dismissed from the force.

Finding of the Board.

The finding, which is technically in the form of a recommendation to Chief of Police Healey, is as follows:

Capt. Thomas J. Caughlin, stockyards district, thirty days' suspension, thirty days' fine and reprimand. (Equivalent to a fine of sixty days' pay, half of which goes to police pension fund.)

Capt. Thomas F. Cronin, Kensington district, thirty days' suspension, ten days' fine, and reprimand. (Equivalent to fine of forty days' pay, of which thirty days will go to the pension fund.)

Capt. James O'Toole, Sheffield avenue district, thirty days' suspension and reprimand. (Equivalent to fine of thirty days' pay, all of which goes to the pension fund.)

Caughlin Given Maximum.

Capt. Caughlin was given the maximum punishment, short of discharge, because of testimony that the machines in his district "paid" in money. Extenuating circumstances in the cases of the other two captains were cited by the commission. Inasmuch as a captain's pay is $3,000, the men on trial will lose from $250 to $500.

Chief of Police Healey is mildly criticised in an explanatory statement issued by President Coffin of the commission. The statement says the chief should have issued clear, concise orders to the commanding officers instead of transmitting complicated legal opinions with the admonition to "govern themselves accordingly."

It is announced that the commission's investigation is not completed. Further inquiry will be directed to ascertaining what political and financial interests were back of the operating of the machines.

Statement by Coffin.

Following is Capt. Coffin's statement:

"The evidence presented against Police Capts. Caughlin, Cronin, and O'Toole showed conclusively that slot machines were operated in their districts, and in the opinion of the commission said machines were comprehensive gambling devices.

"In Capt. Caughlin's district, in particular, the evidence showed that the machines paid in actual money. In the other two districts trade checks were disbursed. In Capt. Cronin's district a great number of machines were in operation, and the police under his command were apparently too unconcerned as to the legitimacy of same. In Capt O'Toole's district a few machines were running, but we believe that while he was honest in his attitude towards same, he permitted too much temporizing on the part of his subordinates with the situation."

Disapprove Healey's Action.

"We deprecate the policy of handling complicated opinions of the law department, which only experienced lawyers can interpret, down into the hands of captains of police and their subordinates, with the sole admonishment to 'govern yourselves accordingly.' Orders to the police should be clear and unmistakable, either to 'permit a thing or not.' The interpreting should be done by responsible superior authority.

"As to what connection certain political or financial interests may have had with the operation of these machines has not yet definitely appeared in the evidence thus far taken. We shall pursue our investigation further along this line. Other captains than those brought to trial are just as culpable in the matter of machines running in their districts.

Oppose Long Trials.

"We doubt the necessity of going through long trials with them and consuming the time and expense of the officials concerned and the commission in rehashing evidence with which we are already familiar. It seems as though some recommendation can be studied out that will award evenhanded justice to all involved.

"We believe that the heads of the police department in his reprimands should make it clear to all police officers that as a matter of policy this administration is emphatically opposed to the operation of gambling slot machines or other devices of any character whatsoever. As to what is lawful and what is not, will, of course, have to be determined by the city's law officers and the courts, but the police should know where their duty lies without equivocation."

The evidence in regard to the operation of the slot machines was gathered and presented by the Citizens' association.

REASON FOR THAT VISIT.

The Same Being That Wisconsin Lumberman Is to Wed Chicago Girl Thursday.

The reason for Edgar Heineman's extended visit to Chicago became known yesterday when A. Fromherz, a cigar manufacturer, announced that his daughter, Florence Fromherz, would become Mrs. Heineman next Thursday afternoon. Heineman is a wealthy young lumberman of Merrill, Wis., and early last summer he came to Chicago to visit friends. He has been here ever since.

The wedding will be held in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. Heineman's mother and sister arrived last night.

Miss Fromherz resides at 4929 Grand boulevard.

HEALEY ORDER TRANSFERS 126

Eleven Lieutenants on List—Truxton of Helen Evers Row Fame Is Shifted.

Chief of Police Healey in an order issued last evening shifted 126 members of the department. In the number were eleven lieutenants, five senior detective sergeants, eight desk and patrol sergeants, and forty-five detective sergeants. The expected transfer of a number of captains as a result of slot machine disclosures failed to materialize.

Chief Healey said the majority of the changes were at the request of the men, who seek berths nearer their homes. When asked concerning the transfers of Lieut. John Hogan of Cottage Grove avenue station and Lieut. Fred Gurney of the Fiftieth street station, who change places, and the transfers from the detective bureau, Chief Healey said they were "for the good of the service."

Trafton Gets Transfer.

Conspicuous among the changes made was that of Senior Detective Sergeant George Trafton, who was sent from the detective bureau to the Fillmore street station. It was Trafton who, with his partner, William Bowler, arrested Mrs Helen Evers, one of the principals in the "blackmail syndicate," in a south side café a week ago, precipitating the row between State's Attorney Hoyne and Attorneys Charles E. Erbstein and Patrick H. O'Donnell.

That there was any connection between the transfer of Trafton and his activities in the blackmail case, the chief refused to say.

Lieut. Coles Shifted.

Lieut. William A. Coles, who formerly was head of the chief's crime squad, was sent from the Cottage Grove avenue station to Town Hall.

One surprise in the order was the transfer of Desk Sergeant James P Quinlan of the Town Hall station. For eleven years Quinlan, who is related by marriage to Roger Sullivan, has been assigned to the north side station. He was sent to the Austin station.

Detective Sergeants George E. Mc Cormick and his partner, William J O'Neill of the detective bureau, were sent to the "woods," the South Chicago station. It is believed their "exile" is due to having fallen under the disfavor of Chief of Detectives Charles L Larkin. Sergt. William P. Egan was also sent from the bureau. He goes to Maxwell street.

COLLEGE HEAD'S CRITICISM ROILS WISCONSIN SOLDIERS.

Dr. Plantz, Lawrence College, Suggests Students Are Not Needed on Border and Should Return.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—President Samuel Plantz of Lawrence college, at Appleton, Wis., has aroused the ire of the Wisconsin guardsmen now on the border. Letters from the soldiers report President Plantz has written letters to the student militiamen suggesting their college work will be seriously impaired unless they return soon.

"I would not make this suggestion if I did not think you were on the border for no good purpose and were not needed," President Plantz is said to have written to one student, and letters of similar import to others. Dispatches from Appleton today stated that Dr. Plantz, when informed of the row caused by his letters, asserted that unless the students return soon they will be so far behind in their class work that they cannot enter until the second semester.

According to dispatches from the border, officers and men of the Wisconsin guard have denounced the attitude of Dr. Plantz, while Methodists in the brigade are preparing a letter of protest to the trustees of Lawrence college.

MISS GASTON TO START WOMAN'S TEMPLE FUND.

Enemy of Cigaret Thinks Building Should Be Preserved as Monument to Frances Willard.

Lucy Page Gaston, enemy of the cigaret has taken up a new crusade. She intends to buy the Woman's temple and maintain it as a monument to Frances Willard. If successful, $1,000,000 will be turned over to Miss Gaston within the next few months.

The temple, which stands at the corner of Monroe and La Salle streets, passed out of the control of the women some time ago. The mortgage was foreclosed. There had been several extensions of time, but the money was not raised. The building has been turned over to the trustees of the Field museum.

"I understand," Miss Gaston said, "that the trustees of the museum told capitalists then that the property was not for sale to any one but the women. We trust that now, although we have no shadow of legal right, we may yet be able to acquire the property."

Half of the $1,000,000 is to come from the people of the country, according to Miss Gaston. She intends to tell the story of the women's enterprise in farm magazines, country weeklies and religious papers. The rest of the money is to be raised in Chicago and the suburbs. Every precinct is to be organized.

High Priest of "Absolute Life" Will Go to Michigan, It Is Reported.

The Illinois state parole board has paroled Evelyn Arthur See, who has been serving an indeterminate sentence at Joliet since February, 1913. He was parold to Maj. M. A. Messelein of the Volunteers of America, head of Hope hall, a man who has made a specialty of caring for paroled prisoners and in whom the parole board is reported to have great confidence.

It is probable that See will leave prison on Tuesday or Wednesday. Indications are that he will go at once to the home of his sister in Michigan.

See first got into trouble with the police when his "Absolute Life" temple was raided in 1911. He was accused of abducting Mildred Bridges. Mildred and Mona Rees lived in the "temple" with See. He was convicted by a jury July 14, 1911, and was sentenced four months later. The Supreme court sustained the conviction and See has been in prison since February, 1913. His health has failed and he has been on the prison farm in recent months.

TURNS IN POLICE BADGE AND STAR FOR FARM LIFE

Sergeant Rooney, on Force 23 Years, Quits Crime Hunting for Peaceful Soil.

Policemen quit the force for a variety of reasons. They are "broke," superannuated, die, meet the gatman's gun, usually dropping from sight unobtrusively after the manner of pins and newspapermen.

But here is another sort of copper. Sergt. James E. Rooney has slipped the custodial fingers in the neckband of his last pinch. He quit last night, and here's his bargain:

He exchanges the drug fired phantasmagoria of the city's underworld for the serenity of the farm; the woman's scream at night for the muley cow's low; the sanguinary barroom brawl, the running thief, the suave con man, for the pilot's job on a plow, the bucolic cabaret of the frog pond, and a roof for the rain to patter on.

Popular with All.

Rooney turned in one of the most regretted resignations that a captain ever reluctantly accepted. He had served twenty-three years at the Englewood station and was popular with superiors, plain police, and mere citizens alike. Last night, when his badge came off for good, the men presented him with half a dozen pigs and eighteen Rhode Island Reds—which are chickens.

The children of the Sherwood school and little patrons of the Sherwood playgrounds gave him a signet ring, "a beautiful signet ring!" he exclaimed with genuine feeling. There was also a bouquet from Tierney to Rooney. Tierney is supervisor of the playgrounds.

Rooney's farm is four miles east of Knox, Ind. It has eighty acres, a seven room house, and a large barn. Rooney is going to raise general crops, corn, wheat, potatoes, and so on.

Comes from the Soil.

"I was born and reared on a farm," he said last night. "My home was in Montgomery county, Indiana. My wife, who is city bred, however, is the real instigator of this back to nature movement. She wanted to have a farm, and, woman like, she got her way. She and my four little daughters are delighted with the idea and can hardly wait until next Wednesday, when we pack and trek."

Rooney's daughters are Mildred, Frances, Nancy and Marjorie, the eldest 12 years old.

During his twenty-three years on the force Rooney worked on many famous cases, the most celebrated of which was the Holmes murder industry. Holmes conducted the notorious Holmes castle, in which a number of women were murdered for their insurance.

Another famous case was the Meyers murder. Meyers, a recluse miser, was found dead with his feet and hands burned to a crisp where the men had tortured him with redhot pokers, forcing him to reveal the hiding place of his money. It was through Rooney's efforts that Meyers' murderers were captured and punished.

Mayor Closes Six Saloons as Blow at Reviving Vice

Mayor Thompson yesterday exploded a bomb under the vice interests in the Twenty-second street district by revoking the licenses of six notorious saloons.

Evidence against the resorts was submitted by the Committee of Fifteen and Mayor Thompson acted independently of the police department and Chief of Police Healey.

During recent months there have been persistent reports that the old red light district is reopening, but such reports have been strenuously denied by the police.

Verifies Vice Charges.

An investigation made at the instance of the mayor revealed the correctness of the reports. The mayor immediately ordered the closing of the six worst places to serve as a warning to the police and the vicious element that he will not tolerate a reopening of the segregated district.

Among the places closed are Polack Ben's Vestibule café, at 6 East Twenty-second street; Ed Weiss' "Capitol," at 30 West Twenty-second street, and Dennis Cooney's saloon at 2136 South State street, operated in connection with the Marlborough hotel. In all six saloons it was found that men were solicited to visit places operated upstairs or in direct connection.

H. P. Crowell, president of the Committee of Fifteen presented the reports of their investigators to the mayor early last August. The mayor then asked Clifford G. Roe, assistant corporation counsel, to check them over and it was in accordance with his recommendation that the licenses were revoked.

Digest of Roe Report.

Following is a digest of Mr. Roe's report on the six saloons:

1939 Archer avenue—Said to be owned by Ollie Mullenbach and George Paloggi, saloon connected with a dive upstairs. Bartenders reported to have solicited men to patronize dive. Inmates said to work in shifts. Signal system to warn against police. Gio Paloggi, licensee.

2100 South State street—Said to be owned by Frank J. Marshall, saloon operated in connection with a resort upstairs. Bartenders solicited men patrons. Signals given by tapping on a steam pipe. Frank J. Marshall, licensee.

2136 South State street—Saloon said to be owned by Dennis Cooney, who is the licensee, and formerly conducted by Weiss brothers. Unescorted women said to have frequented café. Upstairs is hotel known as Marlborough, reported to be owned by Frank J. Marshall. Second floor of hotel used as an all night café, where unescorted women gathered and intoxicants were sold after closing hours.

30-32 West Twenty-second street—Capitol saloon, believed to be owned by Ed Weiss. Patrons of bar said to be solicited by bartenders to go to a dive upstairs. Joseph C. Shackel, licensee.

6-8 East Twenty-second street—Vestibule café. Reports were that unescorted women solicited men to go to a hotel upstairs and to other hotels in the neighborhood. This place is supposed to be owned by Benjamin Zellen (Polack Ben). Fred R. Kiser, licensee.

1920 South Wabash avenue—License in the name of Jacob Wolfson, said to be operated by Joseph Friedman. Women reported to be allowed to solicit in café; dive in rear run in connection with café. Men solicitors on sidewalk in front.

Sees Attempt to Reopen.

"The Committee of Fifteen," said Mr Roe in his letter to the mayor, "has evidence which tends to prove that the vice interests of the old red light district are endeavoring to reopen it. Every effort possible should be put forth to prevent this occurring. The revocation of these licenses by the mayor would serve to warn the vice interests that the reopening of the red light district will not be tolerated, and will have a beneficial effect on the city at large."

The Committee of Fifteen also investigated Colisimo's café at 2126 South Wabash avenue, and Freiberg's hall at 18-20 East Twenty-second street. No evidence of soliciting was found at Colisimo's, but the investigators reported that intoxicants were sold after hours. At Freiberg's the only evidence of soliciting was two instances, offers being made by women to meet men after the place closed.

Mr. Roe's recommendation was that a warning be served on the proprietors of both places.

Healey Calls Captain.

Chief Healey said he had ordered Capt. Joseph Smith to come into his office tomorrow morning and explain why the police of the Twenty-second street station had not reported the dives discovered by the Committee of Fifteen.

"If there is a basis for charges against Capt. Smith for neglect of duty, why I'll file charges," the chief said. "I've had private reports that the lid was being tilted in the district, and they are verified by the Committee of Fifteen."

The chief said he would give instructions to have the Marlborough hotel, where an all night café was discovered on the second floor, closely watched.

"We haven't witnessed any violations in the district," Capt. Smith said last night. "Of course, my officers are all known, and the proprietors would be on their guard whenever my men were around. We have found nothing such as reported by the Committee of Fifteen."

Evidence Against Eight.

"We had evidence against eight places and we are glad that the mayor has closed six of them," said Samuel P. Thrasher, superintendent for the Committee of Fifteen. "Mr. Roe examined our investigators and thoroughly sifted our evidence. The old vice lords were reorganizing and had got their foot into the stirrup, but fortunately they have not yet got into the saddle again. This action of the mayor's ought effectually to prevent their getting a fresh start."

TRAFFIC POLICEMAN, VICTIM OF MANY ACCIDENTS, QUITS

James Mulhall, All "Banged Up from Broken Bones" Received Stopping Runaways, Resigns.

James Mulhall, a traffic policeman for over twenty-three years, who was injured many times while stopping runaway horses, resigned from the department yesterday because, as he said, he was "all banged up from broken bones." In 1901, when he worked as a patrolman for six weeks, he was shot by a robber while on the northwest side. He recovered from the wound.

"I have been hurt so many times, broken ribs, collar bones, and the like, that I'm all banged up," he said. "My bones are sore and pain me. I have to quit. I don't think I'll stop any more runaways for a long time."

Mulhall has been detailed at the Washington street bridge for thirteen years. He lives at 5843 Lovejoy avenue.

Boy Killed "Hitching On."

William Cramer, 5 years old, of 2521 West Polk street, was crushed to death yesterday while "hitching" on a wagon which was being towed by another vehicle. The child crawled on the shaft, fell off, and the wheels passed over his head.

STREETER TAKES HIS 'DOCUMENTS' TO JUDGE SCULLY

"Cap" Says If They Want to Vote in His "Deestrict" They Should See Him.

Judge Thomas F. Scully of the County court had a caller while he was in his chambers yesterday. It was "Cap" Streeter of the Deestrict of Lake Michigan, who greeted the judge with a packet of official appearing maps and the usual tip of his plug hat, which he politely kept on his head.

"Judge," said the Cap, twirling his mustache, "I got all them documents to prove that the people in my land outside Cook county have no rights to vote as residents of the county."

The King of Streeterville was asked by Judge Scully if the title to his land had ever been passed upon by the Supreme court.

"No, it ain't," said the Cap. "About twenty-five years ago I wanted to annex my land to Cook county, but found out from the government I could not. The only way it can be done now is by an act of congress."

Scully to Investigate.

The judge looked over the maps of Streeterville, then threw them all on the table.

"I'm not going to give any opinion on this matter of who can vote in Streeterville just now," he said. "I want to look the question up thoroughly first. Congressman Sabath introduced a bill into congress two years ago, he tells me, asking the government to conduct a survey of the lake line of Illinois from the Indiana line to the Wisconsin boundary. Today he is writing to Washington demanding to know why the government has never taken up the matter."

Tells of Sale to Blackstone.

"There should be an investigation, judge," said "Cap" Streeter. "My property has never been annexed to the county, although I spent $800 just twenty years ago to have congress 'tend to it, but they couldn't see things my way. But the people around here are coming to me all right now.

"Just three weeks ago I sold 300 feet at Chestnut street and the lake to the Blackstone Hotel company for $100,000. They negotiated with the Chicago Title and Trust company until they had a chance to see my documents and then it was all off."

When R. T. Tompkins, assistant manager of the Blackstone, was called and asked about the deal with "Cap" Streeter he ridiculed the entire proposition.

"The Blackstone hotel never bought any property from Streeter. That old man is under a misapprehension. We have bought no property anywhere. The whole thing is utterly absurd."

No Work; Suicide.

Clarence Ashmore of 734 Pratt avenue, Evanston, was found dead in a gas filled room in a rooming house yesterday. He is believed to have committed suicide while despondent. He was out of work.

SOMME BRITISH ONLY 3 MILES FROM BAPAUME

Push Ahead Despite Inclement Weather—French Consolidate Positions.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—After five days of furious battling during which the Anglo-French armies scored some of the greatest gains of their whole offensive, there was a lull in the infantry fighting on the Somme front today, due to the inclement weather.

Gen. Haig reported tonight that the British advanced their lines slightly south of Eaucourt L'Abbaye, a village lying three miles south of Bapaume, but that there was no other change on the British Somme front.

The Germans continued to shell vigorously the newly won British positions north of Thiepval, near Destremont farm and the Stuff and Zollern redoubts.

The French war office tonight announced that no infantry actions occurred during the day on the French Somme front. There was brisk artillerying on the sectors of Bouchavesnes and Rancourt, north of which the French made a slight advance last night. On the rest of the French front no fighting of importance occurred.

The German war office statement this afternoon, covering only yesterday's operations, reported the repulse of English attacks north of the Somme.

Night Gains by British.

Last night the British improved their positions at Stuff redoubt, north of Thiepval, and beat off German counter attacks at the Hessian trench, Gen. Haig reported this afternoon.

The fighting at the latter place was severe, despite a heavy downpour of rain that converted the shell wrecked trenches into great pools of mud and water, in which Germans and British fought.

The Germans shelled British positions south of the Ancre from the Destremont farm to a point southwest of Le Sars village, toward which Haig's men are approaching. Despite the artillery attack, the British continued to improve their positions on the whole Thiepval sector.

British Life Loss High.

British losses in September were at the rate of more than 3,800 a day. The casualties on all fronts reported in this month were: Officers, 5,439; men, 114,110.

Heavy as were the British losses in September, they were lighter than those of August, which were 127,945, a daily average of 4,127. In July, the first month of the Somme offensive, the losses were about half those of August or September, notwithstanding the fact that in July the British stormed the first line German defenses. The casualties in that month were 59,675, so that the total for the three months of the Somme drive is 307,169.

French and English press dispatches report that considering the character of the fighting the losses of the allies on the Somme are low.

Many Villages Captured.

A survey of the results of the great allied drive, halted temporarily yesterday by a terrific downpour of rain, shows that the allies have reconquered 285 square kilometers of French territory (about nine-two square miles), exceeding by fifteen kilometers the territory gained by the Germans at Verdun.

Forty-five villages, each one organized into a veritable fortress, have fallen before the battering of French and British artillery. In every instance the German position was so strong that it had to be broken down by shell fire before infantry could storm it.

A total of 62,000 prisoners, 285 cannon, half of which are heavy artillery pieces, and more than 1,000 machine guns have been taken.

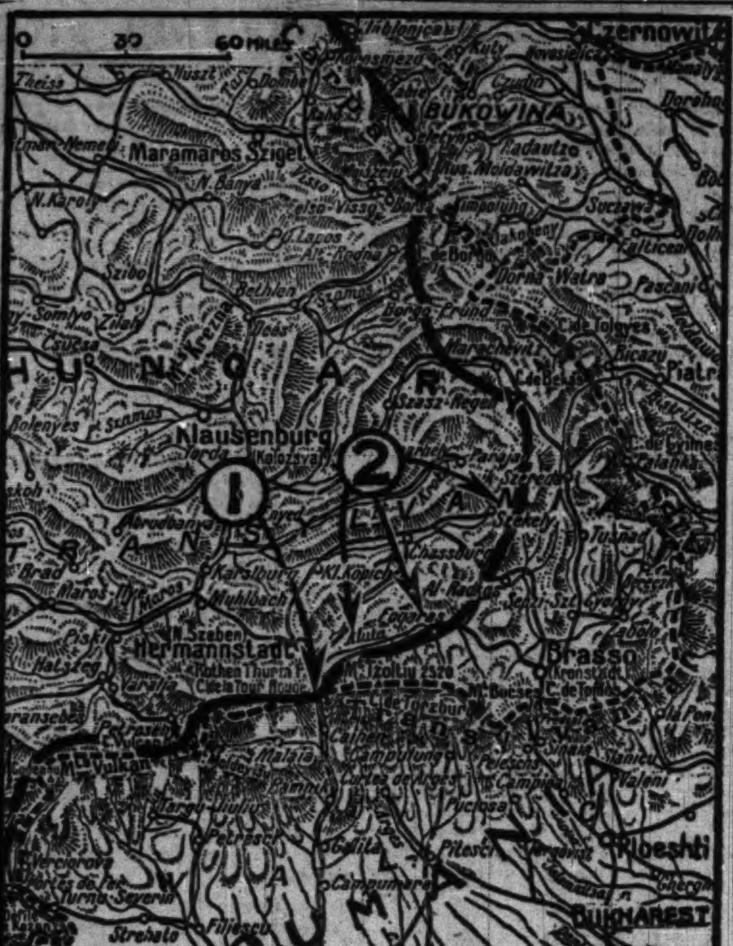
Everywhere, from the Ancre to a point near Chaulnes, the German first, second, and third lines are completely in the hands of the allies, who this week were rushing through hastily constructed German trenches for great gains when bad weather halted operations.

German War Report.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—The repulse of strong British attacks on the Somme front is recorded in today's official communication, which follows:

Army group of Prince Rupprecht—As on the preceding day, the British attacked yesterday with strong forces between the Ancre and Courcelette. After hand to hand fighting they were repulsed. Otherwise there were only minor local advances north of the Somme and in a few sectors south of the river.

TRANSYLVANIA BATTLE FRONT



1—Berlin reports an encircling movement by Austro-Hungarians crushed Roumanians in central Transylvania. The central powers forces seized Rothenthurn pass and scattered the Roumanians among the mountain wilderness.

2—In eastern Transylvania a Roumanian attack was started from Szekely Udvarhely and from Fogaras, but was repulsed. Further south German troops attacked successfully beyond Haar brook.

MINOR SUCCESSES CLAIMED BY BERLIN ON RUSS FRONT.

Germans Make Some Advances and Take Prisoners in Volhynia, Galicia, and Bukowina.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—Minor successes for the Teutonic forces and the repulse of Russian attacks are reported by the war office in today's statement from the eastern front. The announcement follows:

Army group of Prince Leopold—On the Stokhod front a company of the Polish legion made a successful advance near Sitowicze. Southwest of Witoniez the Russians attacked in vain.

In a successful operation in the region of Hukalowce, north of Zborow [on the Stripa in Galicia] on Thursday night we captured three officers and seventy men.

Army group of Archduke Charles Francis—South of the Striklauzura, in the Ludowa sector and on the Coman well prepared counter attacks were completely successful. Near Striklauzura four officers and 532 men were captured. We also took eight machine guns. Russian attacks in the Kirlibaba sector were repulsed.

GREEK WAR PARTY WINNING OVER PEACE DEPUTIES

Entrance Into European Struggle Must Await Further Negotiations.

ATHENS, Sept. 28, via London, Sept. 30.—[Delayed by Censor.]—War has not yet been declared. The king today called to the palace Nicholas Stratos, leader of the new Royalist pro-war party, and charged him with the responsibility of swinging the deputies into line for war. M. Stratos already had obtained the adherence of twenty-five former supporters of M. Gounaris [pro-German], and is beginning to emerge from the present crisis as the most capable political figure in Greece after Venizelos.

The crown council, which was to have been held to discuss the entire war situation, has been postponed, owing to the numerous conferences being held between the king and the cabinet ministers, as well as army and navy officers.

Powers Still Dickering.

It is announced that the negotiations between Greece and the entente powers are progressing satisfactorily at London and Paris, the Greek government adding today several clarifying explanations to its original proposals respecting the abandonment of neutrality by Greece.

In view of the propitious nature of these negotiations it is regarded as unlikely that the king will declare war or even issue a decree of mobilization before Monday, if even at that time, although several classes of reserves over 32 years of age have been informally called out for "exercises."

Dispatches from the island of Crete indicate that the movement headed by Venizelos has been by no means as successful as at first supposed. The loyalists are offering stiff resistance and small but sanguinary conflicts are reported not only in the Canea district but throughout the island.

Reserves Rush to Colors.

PATRAS, Greece, Sept. 28, via London, Sept. 30.—The evening newspapers of Patras today published a report that a general mobilization had been decreed. Reservists rushed to arms, presenting themselves at the barracks to be equipped for a campaign. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

The colonel in command of the Patras garrison, an adherent of former Premier Venizelos, ordered the reservists to disperse, saying King Constantine would never make war on Germany. This angered the reservists, who mishandled him badly, shouting: "Long live the king! Hurrah for war against Bulgaria!"

Venizelos Wires Poincare.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Former Premier Venizelos of Greece and Vice Admiral Coundouriotis have telegraphed to Premier Briand, congratulating him upon the recent French successes. The premier expressed his thanks to the Greek leaders through the French consul at Cana, Crete.

U. S. OFFICIALS GET REPORT OF CAPTURE OF THE BREMEN

German Submarine Said to Have Been Caught in Steel Nets—Now at Scottish Naval Base.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Another report of the capture of the German merchant submarine Bremen reached official circles here today from unofficial but usually reliable sources.

According to this account, which is given credence by some high military officers, the Bremen was seen three weeks ago at the big British naval station Rosyth, on the east coast of Scotland, having been captured in one of the steel nets recently used with such success by Great Britain against under water craft.

More than seventy submarines are said to have been taken or destroped by these nets.

Bremen Life Buoy a Hoax.

Portland, Me., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The authorities gained satisfactory proof today that a lifebuoy marked with the name "Bremen" and the German imperial crown, found in Portland harbor, was planted in the harbor as a hoax.

ABYSSINIA RULER DEPOSED.

Emperor Lidj Jeassu, 22 Years Old, Successor to Menelik, Ousted at Addis Ababa.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Emperor Lidj Jeassu of Abyssinia has been deposed at Addis Ababa. Lidj Jeassu is 22 years old and a grandson of Emperor Menelik, whom he succeeded in 1913. A dispatch from Addis Ababa announces Lidj Jeassu has been succeeded by Ouizero-Zeoditu, a daughter of the late King Menelik, who has been proclaimed "empress of Ethiopia."

CHICAGO MEDICS AID RELIEF.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Drs. C. B. Luginbuh and E. H. Harms of Chicago have been appointed special assistants to the American ambassador at Berlin. In announcing the appointments today the state department said they would be engaged in relief work among British prisoners of war in Germany.

ENGLISH PAPER DENOUNCES LLOYD-GEORGE'S VIEWS

Manchester Guardian Says Minister Will Cost Lives by His Expressions in Regard to War.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—The Manchester Guardian, strong Liberal organ, today reproved War Secretary Lloyd-George for his statements to the United Press and took occasion in its editorial criticism to urge a more detailed and concrete authorized exposition of allied aims.

The Guardian is the first influential paper in England to withhold approval of Lloyd-George's declaration that the war must be carried to a "knockout" and that neutrals must not intervene at this time.

"To reject all conversation with neutrals is a sign of violence and weakness," the Guardian said. "Such rhetorical ministerial excursions may cost many lives. Lloyd-George's language appears that of passion rather than inducing clearness."

COAL PRICE JUMP LAID TO HYSTERIA OF CONSUMERS

Chicago Panic Stricken Without Cause, Say Dealers Who Predict Lower Cost.

If Chicago will take the coal situation calmly, the price will sink and the supply will be sufficient.

That is the message of some large coal dealers who believe Chicago is panic stricken over the reported coal famine. The price of hard coal had advanced beyond the $9 mark and many dealers are charging as high as $9.50. Several dealers stated that if the consumers would only order enough coal for present purposes they will have no difficulty in getting more when it is needed.

"Hysteria is the chief cause for the present high prices," said Hood McKay, president of the O. S. Richardson Coal company. "There is a shortage of cars and labor, particularly in the anthracite region. But the trouble is small dealers and the consumers don't buy coal in this country until they absolutely need it. Everybody has left ordering coal until the last minute, and the supply is not equal to the demand.

Car Shortage Blamed.

"We are used to this situation, and we are usually able to take care of it, but because of the car shortage and the labor conditions a temporary famine is threatened. I believe some companies are raising the prices unduly. Small dealers, although they paid no more for their coal, are taking advantage of the raise and getting undue profits. All concerns have not raised their prices. It is possible to buy coal in Chicago today as cheaply as two months ago.

"Among the reasons contributing to the anthracite shortage is the calling out of the Pennsylvania National Guard. Almost 60 per cent of the guard was from the anthracite region. Many foreigners also who worked in the mines have gone back to Europe. The munitions plants are paying better wages than we can afford to pay and that has upset the labor situation somewhat. Some coal is shipped abroad, and if there were enough ships to carry coal the exportation would be a serious factor in the shortage."

Sees Plenty for Everybody.

Another coal dealer on the west side, who did not want his named used, blamed the consumer for the famine.

"Coal is coming in," he said, "and there will be plenty for everybody. The miners are working and there is no strike. The coal men don't want to see the price go up. We have had car shortages in September for the last few years. I have seen the price of coal cheaper in December than in September. There is absolutely no reason for people to become alarmed."

More Pessimistic in His View.

Still another dealer took a more pessimistic view of the situation.

"In the face of the largest coal producing year in the history of the United States, we find ourselves confronted with the probability of a serious coal famine.

"This anomaly has been brought about by the unprecedented demand for coal wrought through the vast amount of manufacturing which has gone on in America during the last year. Also more coal has been exported.

"It is estimated this year's production will run over 600,000,000 tons, 75,000,000 tons more than last year. Yet we find the stocks of coal, with few exceptions, lower than in many years throughout the country.

Big Production Early in Year.

"The tremendous yearly total of tonnage that has been piled up has been due to the fact that during the first half of 1916 coal mining activities were greater than ever before, and such a surplus was piled up that the producers began to reduce production. They did not foresee what has happened.

"So great was the demand for coal these surplus stocks have been consumed rapidly, so that now, with winter coming on and demands more pressing than ever, with the possibility of delays and congestion in winter traffic, there is a shortage in coal that it seems impossible to make up."

TRADE CONFLICT AFTER WAR; PREPARE, VANDERLIP WARNS

New York Banker Says Allies Will Use Preferential Tariffs Against U. S. in World Commerce.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 30.—That war of peace will follow the war of arms in Europe was the prediction made tonight by Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, at a dinner given in his honor by the Denver Civic and Commercial association.

"This country is preparing now in an extraordinary way," he said. "The conditions in Europe have given the United States a virtual monopoly of the world's finance and the world's commerce. But when this war ends the United States will be confronted with the gravest, most far reaching, and most vital commercial, industrial, and financial problems ever confronted by any one nation.

"A war of peace is to follow this war of arms. The allied countries will be in a combination for all the purposes of a world commerce. It will consist of a schedule of preferential tariffs, constructed most carefully, to take care of the various needs of products of the allied nations.

"We cannot afford to ignore this coming 'war of peace.' We must prepare for it. To prepare for it we must call into service the best brains of our nation."

The plebiscite also will include the Faroe islands, but not Iceland and Greenland.

Premier Zahle urged immediate action on the bill in view of the fact that the United States senate already has approved the treaty.

Costly Free School of Manual Training Is Formally Presented to Town.

George M. Pullman's gift to the town that bears his name—the George M. Pullman Free School of Manual Training—was dedicated yesterday in the presence of a throng in which were counted many leaders in Chicago business and educational life.

Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, delivered the dedicatory address from the portico of the main building. He recounted the works of the founder of Pullman and the Pullman shops and described the wonderful possibilities of a school which will accommodate more than 500 pupils.

Cost More than $3,000,000.

More than $3,000,000 has been spent in the construction of the buildings and the adornment of the grounds. One-half of the forty acre tract is given over to athletic fields and a garden. The remainder is devoted to the school buildings and the lagoons and gardens related more directly to the beautification of the school itself.

Col. Frank O. Lowden, president of the board of directors and son-in-law of Mr. Pullman, spoke in behalf of the directors. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus delivered the address at the unveiling of the bronze tablet in honor of the memory of Mr. Pullman. The invocation was by Father Edward S. Keough and the benediction by the Rev. Frederick F. Farmiloe. Mrs. Pullman, Mrs. Lowden, and Miss Frances Lowden attended the dedication.

Reception Follows Services.

Following the services there was an informal reception by the patrons and the board of directors of the school in the main building, and later there was an inspection of the buildings by the public.

The school is open to children of Pullman or any others who live in or are employed in the suburb. But the lines have not been drawn tight as to those living at a distance. There is no charge for tuition, and there are no rules for behavior beyond the reasonable behavior of the pupil.

Missing Man's Body in River.

The body of Felix Kaszezewski of 8620 Houston avenue, who has been missing since last Wednesday, was found in the Calumet river yesterday near the plant of the Wisconsin Steel company, where he had been employed.

DETAILS OF TENNES GAMBLING RING GIVEN TO JUDGE LANDIS

BRANCH AGENTS SPLIT FIFTY-FIFTY WITH "THE KING"

Federal Prosecution May Result from the Exposure of Race Bookmaking.

TENNES, 'HAND BOOK KING'

After Years of Strife with Law and Foes He Takes Rank as Chicago's Greatest Gambler.

MONT TENNES is Chicago's recognized "Handbook King." Next to Jim O'Leary he stands in the public mind as Chicago's biggest gambler, and in reality Mont succeeded Jim as monarch. He overcomes the more or less intermittent opposition offered by the police and state's attorney. His places have been raided several times, but he always "comes back."

Mont's greatest troubles came in the gamblers' war of 1907. The "independents" placed bombs under his places of "business," and on one night nearly destroyed his house. Tennes, his wife, and three children were in the house at the time of the explosion, but all escaped injury.

Holdup men and sluggers also have made life interesting for him. On one occasion he was robbed of $600 in cash and jewels valued at $1,000. On another, he was assaulted at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and badly beaten. Mont alone knew the name of his assailant, and he never told. He didn't need the police to take care of him.

Fred Stall—it was then spelled Stahl—and S. W. Sells, as well as Green, also have received the attention of the police, and their names have appeared in the newspapers in connection with gambling raids. The cigar store at 2237 Cottage Grove avenue, mentioned by Stall yesterday before Judge Landis, has been raided, and Sells and other inmates arrested.

Only once, away back in 1904, did Mont Tennes threaten to quit. In August of that year he announced himself vanquished by the reform forces. He said he was going to Europe. That was twelve years ago.

time it's just possible that you may waste your own, too. Now give me that list of names."

Willie Tennes Writes—

Willie sat down at the bailiff's desk and wrote eight names and telephone numbers.

Putting some additional information extracted by Judge Landis with some facts assembled last night by THE TRIBUNE, there is this to be said:

Stall, as it should be spelled—Auto 61241 is in the name of Peter Wender, 2131 South Wabash avenue.

Green—Auto 73658 is a private line upon which information is refused by the telephone company. Judicious use of the telephone obtained the information that the place is a barber shop and that Caso won the first race at Toronto, while bets will not be paid off until Monday.

Lynch—Monroe 250 is in the name of John Broderick, 732 West Madison street. John is a member of the state senate, and the address given is that of his saloon.

Roy—Auto 73291 is in the name of William Landford, 4020 Cottage Grove avenue. Roy Shumway is the active manager.

Club—Auto 63589 is a private line upon which information is refused by the telephone company. The club is on the fourth floor of the Adams Express building in Dearborn street, just south of Monroe.

Cleary—Auto 51653 also is protected by the telephone company. It is at 312 South Clark street, in the Imperial building. All the sheets had been taken away at 7 o'clock last night and information on the races was not to be had. Frank Cleary is active manager.

Sells—Same as Stall.

N. Clark—Auto 33241 is in the name of R. Milchoefer at 721 Fulton street.

Split Fifty-Fifty.

Various witnesses told how information regarding the races is sent direct from the tracks to the gambling places. The names of horses and jockeys and the odds come over the wire. They are not posted on boards, but written on "slips of paper" for the information of the select. The winnings and losings are split fifty-fifty with headquarters, as are legal and other expenses incidental to raids and operation.

Chief of Police Healey had little to say regarding the operations of the bookmakers disclosed by Judge Landis. The police, he said, "are keeping after the gambling and keeping after it hard." He promised, "however, to make a thorough investigation of all phases of the testimony before Judge Landis.' The places named, he said, "have been raided frequently."

One Raid Is Made.

Sergt. O'Connor of the chief's gambling squad announced at first he would make an immediate raid on the Sells & Stall "cigar store" in Cottage Grove avenue. Later he "passed the buck" to Capt. William P. O'Brien of the Cottage Grove station. A patrol wagon loaded with policemen found the place locked and not even the cigars on hand to extend a welcome.

Detectives from the central station raided a supposed gambling resort on the seventh floor of the Temple Court building at 219 South Dearborn street during the afternoon and made seventeen arrests on charges of gambling. Thomas Jefferson was held as the keeper. The police say they overheard racing returns telephoned to the place.

Landis Plunges Right In.

Upon being informed by Charles E. Erbstein, attorney for the blackmailers, that he had been unable to find additional authorities supporting his petition aimed at State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne, Judge Landis plunged at once into the bonds inquiry which he instituted the day before.

"How about these witnesses?" he asked, facing the crowded courtroom.

Two men stepped forward—F. W. Sells and Fred Stall.

"You take that chair," the judge directed, aiming his finger at Sells. "And you," he added, pointing to Stall, "go in that room back there in the corner."

District Attorney Charles F. Clyne began the examination of Sells.

Q.—What is your business? A.—I'm a saloonkeeper at Twenty-third and Indiana.

Q.—Who's your partner? A.—Fred Stall.

Q.—Any employés? A.—Yes, Charlie Bageroupe.

"What's that!" Mr. Clyne exclaimed. "Charlie Bag-the-Loot."

"Yes, sir," the witness replied, somewhat confused.

Q.—Who's the other? A.—Fred Ambridge.

Ambush. A.—No, Ambridge.

Q.—Got a man there who answers to the name of Steve? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Well, do you know George Irwin? A.—Yes, sir, for five or six years.

Q.—Ever see him work? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you another business besides running a saloon? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What is it? A.—Well, I handle commissions on the races at our cigar store.

Irwin Needs Money.

Q.—When did you last see George Irwin? A.—When he had that little trouble a month or six weeks ago. He said he needed some money.

Q.—Did he say he was going away? A.—Yes, he said he was going to New York and would be back in a week. I haven't seen or heard from him since.

Q.—Do you know Buda Godman? A.—No.

Q.—Are you sure? A.—Well, I don't think so. I may know her by sight.

Mr. Clyne then asked Judge Landis to have Buda brought from the marshal's office to the courtroom. This was done while the court took up some other cases. Buda arrived heavily veiled as usual, and took a seat behind Mr. Clyne, who directed her to raise the veil. This she did, while the crowd in the courtroom craned necks for a better view.

"Look at this woman," Mr. Clyne ordered Sells. "Have you ever seen her?"

"Yes," the witness answered, and Buda lowered her veil.

Some Disappointment.

"Mr. Erbstein," Judge Landis interrupted, "what's your client afraid of? Does she think that anything in this court can hurt her?"

The lawyer explained Buda's modest dread of the pesky newspaper photographer. Judge Landis said no photographer operated in his court, and Buda raised her veil. The spectators were plainly disappointed by what they saw.

Mr. Clyne resumed.

Q.—Do you know this woman? A.—I've seen her.

Q.—Where? A.—In Georg's café.

Q.—How often. A.—O, two or three times.

Mr. Erbstein protested against the course taken by the district attorney in his examination.

Evers Bond "Worthless."

"Of course," Judge Landis replied, "he can't go far afield, but this is such a peculiar situation here. I am inclined to let him go ahead. Did you see this Evers bond?" the judge exclaimed, facing the two attorneys. "It's smeared all over with mortgages. I don't think it's worth 50 cents, Mr. Foote," the judge went on, addressing the commissioner, "you'll have to revise your judgment on bonds."

"The bond was approved by the district attorney's representative," the commissioner protested.

"Well," the judge answered, "I don't see his name here. When you take somebody else's judgment on a bond, Mr. Foote, have him sign his name, and then be sure he's right. Is Miss Evers at large on this?" he asked Mr. Erbstein.

"Yes," answered the lawyer.

Charlie Shuns the Blame.

"I'm not to blame," Mr. Erbstein countered.

"I'm not censuring anybody," Judge Landis exploded. "I'm trying not to censure anybody. I'm trying to use restraint. Mr. A. C. Jones," he continued, speaking to the man whom he had barred from the federal building, but whom he had summoned to court, "will you be back here Monday at 12 without my issuing a subpœna for you?"

Mr. Jones agreed readily.

"Now," the judge said, turning to Sells, "did you ever hear of a man named Jones?"

"Yes, sir."

"Ever ask him to go on a bond?"

"No, sir."

"Now, Mr. Sells," the judge cautioned, "you can save my time and perhaps your own by answering these questions. Do people ever come to you for bonds?"

"Well, people do get into trouble and ask me where they can get bonds."

"Do you know anything about baseball pools?"

"No, sir; my business is racing."

Something About Baseball.

"Now if you don't mind," the judge continued apologetically, "we'll branch off for a while into baseball. Don't you know anything about these baseball pools and who runs them?"

"No, sir," the witness persisted.

"I speak feelingly on this matter," the judge continued. "I've been looking for those fellows for a long time. Go ahead with your examination, Mr. Clyne."

Mr. Clyne resumed.

Q.—What are the names of some of these bondsmen you know? A.—Well, there's Dan Kinneally and Roderick and Tony May.

Judge Landis then took charge of the examination.

Q.—Will you be here at noon Monday? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—That won't interfere with the business of your emporium, will it? A.—No, sir; I'll be here.

Enter Mr. Stall.

Sells was then excused and Judge Landis summoned Stall from "the room in the corner." Mr. Clyne learned from Stall that he was in partnership with Sells in the saloon and that the partnership also operated a cigar store at 2237 Cottage Grove avenue.

"Do you sell cigars?" Mr. Clyne asked.

"Well, not lately," the witness replied.

Q.—Is the place open? A.—Yes, sir; in the afternoon.

"What's this that's open?" Judge Landis interrupted.

"A cigar store," Stall replied timidly.

Judge Landis then took charge of the examination.

Q.—Open only in the afternoon? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What do you do there? A.—Do I have to answer that question?

Q.—Well, Mr. Stall, you'll save my time and very likely your own if you do. A.—All right, then, we take bets on horse races.

Q.—Are you ashamed of that? A.—Well——

He's "Kind of Scared."

Q.—Don't you like this? A.—You got me kind of scared.

Q.—Where are these races? A.—One's at Havre de Grace. (He pronounced it Havver de Grawss.)

Q.—What's that place? Is that the way to pronounce it? A.—Well, some of 'em say it that way, and others like Havre de Grace. (Pronounced Hayver de Grace.)

Q.—All right, now I'd like to know what progress has been made in this racing since the horse races at the county fair I used to see back in the old days. Supposing we have five horses, Raber, over there, the assistant state's attorney, and Clyne, and Erbstein, and Foote, and Commissioner Mason, back there. Now, these horses come to the wire, or the post, which is it? A.—The post, your honor.

Q.—Well, you hope they'll get to the wire? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—How do you know they're the entries? A.—By the newspapers.

Hah! There's News Bureau!

Q.—O, come now, supposing the newspapers didn't come out. You'd know the entries, wouldn't you? Tell me how. A.—Well, there's a news bureau.

Q.—What's the name? A.—I don't know. They just call us up and give us the entries.

Q.—Come, come, supposing they didn't call you. You could call them, couldn't you? Wouldn't you know how to get the entries? A.—Well, sir, I might call them or some other place.

Q.—All right, now, give me the number you'd call, the big number. A.—Do I have to answer that?

Q.—Well, I'd advise it, yes. A.—All right. Main 1858.

Q.—There, that's it. Now, who would you ask for? A.—Eph'. [Pronounced Eef.]

Q.—Mongolian, Caucasian, African, or what? Is that its last or first name? A.—First.

Q.—All right, now, what's his last name? A.—Harding.

The judge turned to Clerk Joe Sullivan.

"Issue a forthwith subpœna for Ephriam Harding, otherwise known as Eph," he ordered.

Solving Some Mysteries.

"All right, Mr. Stall," the justice resumed. "Now let's get down to this race again. There's the filly Raber, and the gelding Clyne, and the 2 year old Erbstein, and the sorrel topped Foote, and the conservative Mason. What do we get about them? A.—Whoever rides them and the odds.

Q.—Do you put that on a board? A.—No, sir, on a slip of paper.

Q.—All right, now Capt. Calader, the bailiff there, and a couple of friends are feeling a bit sporty and drop in to make a few bets. Suppose the odds on Raber are 10 to 1. By the way, I don't know what that means, do you? Supposing you tell me. A.—That means 10 to 1 that he doesn't win.

Q.—That's just figurative, Mr. Raber. Now, Mr. Stall, do you have a Katherine anywhere around? A.—A what?

Q.—Well down in the Wabash valley there used to be a hole in the table that they called the Katherine, or kate, or the kitty, or something like that. Do you have one of those? A.—No, sir.

Q.—A natural percentage! A natural percentage! What sort of a percentage is that? A.—Well, we think we'll win as a general thing.

Q.—Now, Mr. Stall, let's go back to the old days, back to Silver Cloud, back to the days when Silver Cloud was running at 25 to 1. Do you know Silver Cloud? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Well, he won the Derby back in the old days, at least, so I'm told. Now the odds were 25 to 1, so I've been told. Supposing a man bet $50 on Silver Cloud in your place and 25 to 1 and Silver Cloud won. Do you lose $1,250? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—All alone? A.—Well, I may have a partner.

Q.—You may have a partner! Who, this news bureau? A.—I don't know.

It's Mr. Tennes!

Q.—Now, Mr. Stall, you'll save us all a little time, you know, by answering these questions. A.—Well, I imagine it's Mr. Tennes.

Q.—You imagine! Don't you know? A.—Well, whatever we win he gets half and whatever we lose he pays half.

"Have you issued that subpœna for Eph'?" Judge Landis asked Clerk Sullivan.

"I don't know the address," the clerk explained.

"What's the address?" the judge fired at Stall.

"Six hundred and four Straus building," the answer came hurriedly.

"Buckner," the judge turned to his bailiff, "serve that subpœna on Ephraim Harding, otherwise known as Eph', and get Tennis, too. Now, Mr. Mr. Stall," he resumed, "supposing you lose $5,000."

"We don't go as high as that," the witness explained.

Enter the Duke.

Q.—Do you report what you lose to Eph'? A.—Yes, sir, he knows our bets. We tell him in the morning.

Q.—Well, now, supposing you call up in the morning, and Eph' is out automobile riding or something. Who do you talk to? A.—Duke.

Q.—Duke? Duke who? A.—Charles Felteys.

Q.—Why do you call him Duke? Has he whiskers? Where is he? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Now, supposing you'd lose $1,000 and you couldn't find Eph', and you were thinking of leaving for New York on the Twentieth Century Limited for three or four months in Europe. What would you do? A.—I'd get a telephone book.

Q.—All right, now who's this Tennes, Mont Tennes, I believe somebody called him? What's his business? A.—Real estate.

Q.—Real estate! It seems to me I've seen that name in connection with something beside real estate. What could it have been? A.—I don't know of any other business.

Q.—Well, what other places of business has he? A.—O he might have one at Randolph and Wabash.

A scowl crossed Mr. Erbstein's face, and he leaned back in his chair for a whispered conference with an assistant. Judge Landis continued.

Q.—He might have one? A.—Well, there are several.

Mr. Sells No Loiterer.

"Get Sells," the judge ordered.

Sells could not be found and Judge Landis directed the issuance of a forthwith subpœna. Mr. Erbstein explained he thought Sells understood he was through and instructed to return at noon Monday. "My mistake," the judge said and went on with his examination of Stall.

Q.—What is your daily business? A.—It varies.

Q.—What's the highest? A.—About $1,000.

Q.—Where is this place? A.—In a back room.

Q.—Upstairs? A.—No, on the main floor.

Q.—What's in front? A.—The cigar store.

Q.—Were you open yesterday? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Does this place appear to be a cigar store? A.—Well, the windows are covered up so you can't see in.

Q.—How long have you been there? A.—Five or six years.

Q.—How do you protect yourselves from being raided? A.—We are raided.

Q.—When was the last time? A.—Yesterday or the day before.

Q.—What happened? A.—They didn't get any evidence. We sloughed it.

Q.—You sloughed it? A.—Yes, destroyed it.

Q.—How do you get bonds? A.—We press a button, and then we call up Eph. He comes and signs the bonds.

Q.—Who was your lawyer? A.—I don't remember. Eph' got him.

Q.—O, come, now, you know who your lawyer was? A.—Well, it was a man named Seligman.

Q.—Has he got red hair? What's his first name? A.—I don't know. He's got only one eye. You can't miss him.

Subpœna for Seligman.

Somebody in court suggested the name as Henry Seligman.

"All right," the judge exclaimed. "Issue forthwith a subpœna for Henry Seligman, S-e-l-i-g-m-a-n, counsel, an officer of this court, interested in the enforcement of the law. Have you anything to ask the witness, Mr. Clyne?"

Mr. Clyne resumed his examination of Stall.

Q.—Do you know George Irwin? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Do you know where he is? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Heard anything about him recently? A.—Well, Dan Kinneally told me the other day he was worried about the bonds he'd signed for Irwin.

Q.—Do you know this woman, Buda Godman? A.—Never saw her before in my life.

Ray O'Keefe on the Stand.

Stall was excused from the stand and Ray T. O'Keefe, who had been directed to appear, was sworn as a witness. Judge Landis imediately took charge of the examination.

Q.—Haven't I seen you before? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—It was in the Waldo case, the case of that woman who was arrested one night, wasn't it? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And you and some others came to my apartment and told me a lot of things about how they were doing a favor for the woman out of friendship in signing her bonds. What was it they didn't tell me? You remember that they made me think it was a case of sympathy, and how that man spoke with tears in his voice about the poor little woman being arrested at night. Don't you remember that? A.—Well, that was the impression given.

He's a Bondsman.

Q.—Well, that didn't get by you, did it? What was it they didn't tell me? I know—they didn't tell me they'd charge that poor little woman $125 for a small bond. Well, that's not material now. What's your business? A.—I'm a bondsman. Here's my card.

Q.—(reading) The American Bonding Surety company! Are you incorporated? A.—No, sir. I'm all alone.

Q.—Did you get Henry Kraus to sign bonds for Jack French and a man named Brady? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What did you pay him? A.—$50.

Q.—What did you get? A.—One hundred and seventy-five dollars.

Q.—From whom? A.—Erbstein.

Q.—Did you have anything to do with any other bond in this case? A.—Yes, the bond for Helen Evers.

Q.—Are you sure that is a gilt edged bond? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Well, you were fooled. How do you pronounce that name, Mr. Erbstein, Evvers or E-vers?

"Evvers," Mr. Erbstein replied.

"Any relation to Johnny?"

"No; she hasn't as good a batting average."

"Well, hers is pretty high, and she's a good fielder, too."

The Evers woman, who had entered court in the custody of a marshal during the examination of Stall, smiled. Judge Landis resumed his examination of O'Keefe.

Q.—Do you know this woman, Christina Gaffney, who signed this bond? Mr. Clerk, issue a subpœna for her to be here Monday noon. What's her address? A.—No. 6329 Harper avenue.

Helen Stung for $400.

Q.—The idea of the government thinking it's getting anything on these bonds and the idea of a woman paying anything for such stuff is ludicrous. How much did Helen Evers pay for this? A.—$400.

Q.—How do you know? A.—I got the money.

Q.—What did you do with it? A.—I gave $200 to Jacob Miller.

Q.—Why? A.—He furnished Harris, the surety.

Q.—Whom else did you pay? A.—I gave Mrs. Gaffney $100.

Q.—And she said she did it for charity. Did Jake give any of the $200 to Ike? A.—I don't know.

"You don't suppose Jake would hold out on Ike, do you?" Judge Landis asked in a scandalized tone.

"Yes, I do," O'Keefe replied, laughing.

"Issue a subpœna for Jake to be here Monday," the judge ordered. "Mr. O'Keefe, you just step in that other room," he continued, pointing toward his chambers.

Eph and His Gum.

"Mr. Harding," he called.

A man of medium height, dressed in a brown suit, wearing nose glasses and a red tie, and carrying a cane and a brown hat, stepped forward and took the witness stand. He was chewing gum nervously.

"What's your name?" Judge Landis asked.

I'm a little hard of hearing," the man replied, putting a hand to his ear.

Judge Landis leaned over the bar above the witness stand.

"We'll get along better if you check your gum while we're talking," he remarked.

"Eh?" asked the witness.

"Check your gum," ordered the judge. And then, after the order had been obeyed, he repeated, "What's your name?"

"E. M. Harding," came the answer.

Q.—Ever called Eph'? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What does Stall get from you? Make these answers short and snappy, and you'll save my time and perhaps your own. A.—Fifty-fifty.

Q.—At what times? A.—When we get into court.

Q.—How many eyes has he? A.—He has one bad eye.

Q.—A bad eye? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You don't mean a vicious eye, do you? A.—No, sir.

Q.—When Fred Stall gets into trouble you furnish bonds and lawyer? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Who signs the bonds? A.—I usually sign them myself.

Q.—Did you ever sign a bond in this court? A.—No, I haven't. I wouldn't.

"No, I wouldn't advise you to," the judge remarked.

Mr. Seligman Comes.

"Call Seligman," he ordered.

Seligman appeared and was identified by Eph' and Stall, who had been called back to the courtroom for that purpose. Judge Landis questioned the lawyer.

Q—What is your name? A.—Henry Seligman.

Q.—Is Stall your client? A.—Yes, sir; I've defended him on gambling charges.

Q.—Who calls you? A.—I don't know. The calls usually come in the evening by telephone.

"Mr. Seligman, you go back out in the hall," the judge directed. "Fred Stall, you stay here. Now, Mr. Harding, what about this Mr. Silverman?"

"Seligman," Eph' corrected.

"O yes, Seligman," the judge repeated. "Seligman, Seligman; I wonder what there is about that name that makes me call him Silverman all the time. Were you ever troubled that way, Mr. Harding?"

"At first, yes," the witness replied, laughing nervously.

"How many of these bookmaking places are there?" the judge asked suddenly and sternly.

"Thirteen or fourteen," Harding answered.

"What are the names?"

"I don't know."

"Somebody telephones them every day," Judge Landis insisted. "Who is it?"

"Willie Tennes."

"Now," the judge ordered, "you call him on the phone right now and get him here right away. You can use the phone in chambers."

Harding left the stand to telephone, and O'Keefe was recalled. He admitted he had a list of bonds persons.

"Have that list here Monday," the judge ordered, "with the names, property, and quotations. Be here Monday at 12."

Woman Knew Him?

Mrs. Maud Lindley, who had been questioned on Friday, was then called.

"Mrs. Lindly," the judge greeted her, "you told some people when you left the stand yesterday that you knew me."

"Well," the woman answered, hesitating, "I thought I knew your folks."

"O, it's just as good as if it were true, any way," Judge Landis remarked. "It doesn't make any difference. What were you paid for the French bond?"

"Seventy-five dollars," Mrs. Lindley replied.

"Mr. O'Keefe," the judge said, "when you come here on Monday, you'd better be prepared to finance this proposition. You've received $575, and these bonds are no good."

O'Keefe was told, in answer to his questions, that if he furnished good bond satisfactory to the court, and if the prisoners were willing to accept them also, he might keep his previous charge. The bondsman said it was "a shame" Helen Evers had to go back to jail because of his bond.

Willie Tennis Arrives.

Meanwhile, Willie Tennes appeared in the courtroom.

"Mr. Tennes," Judge Landis welcomed him, "take this easy chair, this arm chair," and the judge pointed to the witness chair. "Mr. Harding," he added, "you step back into chambers, where there's a nice morris chair. Mr. Tennes, are you Mont's son?"

"His brother," the witness replied.

"In what business is Fred Stall?"

"He's a bookmaker."

Tennes hesitated when called upon to give the list of thirteen or fourteen bookmakers mentioned by Eph', and the latter was recalled twice that the judge might ask him if Tennes was the man who had the information. Eph' answered in the affirmative. Then came Judge Landis' peremptory order that brought the list.

State Not Restrained.

While the witness was making up the list, Judge Landis announced he had decided to deny Mr. Erbstein's petition seeking to restrain the state's attorney from interfering with the alleged members of the blackmail syndicate. The judge pointed to Buda Goodman and Helen Evers.

"Mr. Marshal," he said, "you may take these two women into custody. Keep them at your office until 2 o'clock before you take them to the county jail."

Buda replaced her veils and marshals took the two women from the courtroom.

Judge Landis then resumed his examination of Willie Tennes, and, referring to the list of bookmaking places, said:

"You don't spell Stall's name right. It's S-t-a-double-l, not S-t-a-h-l."

Stall was summoned from "his room back in the corner" and confirmed the judge's spelling. Tennes said he did not know all the addresses or the names in which the telephones stood.

Does J. Ogden Know?

"Who's the boss of the automatic telephone?" the judge asked him.

"I don't know," was the reply.

Q.—Does J. Ogden Armour have anything to do with it? A.—I think so.

Q.—Do you suppose he knows who they rent phones to? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Why do they all have automatic phones? A.—Because it's a better phone.

Q.—Didn't you ever hear anybody say that there was less danger of interruption with an automatic? A.—No, sir.

Why? Why? Why?

"Why," mused the judge, "do the Bell people want to put the automatic out of business? You say the automatic gives better service. I think so, too. Now, why—but," he interrupted himself, "I don't suppose you know. Where do you get your wire on the races?" he asked suddenly.

"Direct from the race track by the General News bureau," Tennes answered.

"Who do you deal with there?"

"John Morelock on River street."

"Issue a subpœna for John Morelock to be here Monday noon," the judge ordered. A court attaché informed him that F. W. Tracy is vice president of the automatic. He ordered that Mr. Tracy appear on Monday.

Aitken, Riding Goodyear Cords, Shatters World's Record!

Captures Astor Trophy in Sheepshead Bay Speedway 250-Mile Classic

Rickenbacher also on Goodyear Cords a Close Second

Catapulting along the edge-to-edge board course at Sheepshead Bay Saturday at the rate of 104.66 miles an hour, a world's record for the distance, Johnny Aitken drove his Peugeot to victory in the Astor Cup Race over a field of 34 starters.

He rode on Goodyear Cords!

And he won on Goodyear Cords!

Desperate competitors thundered at his hubs every mile of the way—a treacherous tire might have meant defeat—but he won—his Goodyears did their splendid part.

They stood the burning, tearing, grinding, rending punishment of 250 miles over edge-to-edge boards at a 104.66-mile pace—and victoriously!

Aitken's victory is not an isolated instance of the unflinching stamina of Goodyear Cords The racing records of the past three months are formidable with additional proof.

Proof, not alone of stamina—though this is paramount—but of speed, spring, and exultant vitality.

Proof of the very qualities that led to the adoption of Goodyear Cord tires as standard equipment on the Franklin, the Packard Twin-Six, the Locomobile, the Peerless, the White, the Haynes Twelve, the Stutz and the McFarlan.

Proof of the qualities that make these tires better.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. TO 'GO IT ALONE' IN RAISING CASH

Mayor Tells Harmony Gathering to "Roll Up Sleeves" and Get on the Job.

Faced by information conveyed by National Committeeman William Hale Thompson that the Republican national committee expects the entire campaign in Illinois, national and state, to be financed by Illinois Republicans, the party organization whipped in yesterday to the job of carrying the state in November.

News that the national management had determined to keep hands off in Illinois was conveyed to 200 state candidates, state committeemen, and county chairmen, invited to luncheon at Hotel La Salle by Mayor Thompson, in his official capacity as member of the national committee.

"Roll Up Sleeves," Mayor Urges.

"For one," Mayor Thompson said, "I shall not oppose the judgment of the national committee. It is our duty immediately to roll up our sleeves, get to work, raise what money we can, and deliver to Mr. Hughes and Mr. Fairbanks the electoral vote of the state. Illinois is Republican by 200,000, and in spite of the difficulties that may be interposed, it is our job to get that majority to the polls."

Sherman in Sizzling Talk.

Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, in a speech that sizzled with Shermanesque expressions, outlined the issues that he advised the campaigners to carry into every school house and every town hall in Illinois.

"The Adamson bill is no more an eight hour law than the Democratic party is a party of economy, thrift, and sound sense," Senator Sherman said. "The Republican party never has been opposed to an eight hour law. It is for legislation that will promote the health of children and women and of adult labor.

"And I'll never vote for a bill that is a wage raiser for a limited and preferred class of labor, when I have to do it at the point of a pistol. If the Democratic party wants to begin taking care of a selected section of laborers, why doesn't it start with the track layers and the section hands, who are getting $1.75 a day right here in Illinois, with no one standing out for them and jamming their demands through congress?

Calls "Rural Credits" a Fake.

"And there are two other of the matters of legislation for which the Democrats claim credit that I wish here and now to denounce, unpopular as it may seem to be to take this position.

"The rural credits act is the biggest fake ever dressed up like a scarcrow and started out into national politics. It will get no practical results to the farmers of Illinois. It provides simply and only that the money of the taxpayers of the north and east and west will be used by the government to lend to states that cannot borrow money in the ordinary way. Your banks and your men who make farm loans will not loan your money on peanut or cotton land, but the Democratic government will.

"And the federal reserve act is the biggest fake of all. Not one-fourth of the national bankers are for it, but they are afraid to object as long as John Skelton Williams is controller of the currency. The only reasonable features of the act are those which were taken from the Aldrich-Vreeland act. All that is arbitrary, imprudent, and unsound in the act was invented by the Democrats.

"Elect Hughes and Fairbanks and return a Republican congress and we will correct all these things at once. The cost is too infernally high to permit the Democrats to remain in power under promise of changing the recognized defects."

Madden Says Imports Increase.

Congressman Martin B. Madden spoke for the Cook county Republican committee. "You men don't know it, but I have just learned that the imports to the United States for the year ended June 30, 1916, were $368,000,000 more than in any preceding period, despite the Democratic claim that the European war has created a wall against European imports to this nation.

"During the same period, by the Underwood tariff bill, the revenue from imports was $110,000,000 less. What in the name of God will happen to American labor and American industry when the European war is over and 30,000,000 men get back to their normal work?"

Col. Frank O. Lowden, the nominee for governor, was in Pullman dedicating an industrial school that has been built for the benefit of the men employed in the Pullman shops. His place on the program, as representing the state ticket, was taken by John G. Oglesby.

Plans for Train Trips.

At the state committee meeting in the morning final arrangements were made for the campaign trip that the state congressional candidates will make through Illinois beginning Tuesday morning. An advisory committee was named and announced by Chairman Fred E. Sterling.

In the list are former Gov. Charles S. Deneen, Roy O. West, Morton D. Hull, and eight members representing the Progressive party of 1912. Col. Frank L. Smith is a member of the state committee. He spoke at the mayor's luncheon, pledging full support in behalf of himself and his friends.

WEDS HIS SECRETARY

Mr. and Mrs. W. Scott Cowen

UPPER PHOTO BY WALINGER

Illinois Republicans and the state official circle were surprised last night to hear that W. Scott Cowen, former state grain inspector, had been married. His bride is Miss Irene Margaret Guion of 2681 Orchard street. She was his secretary when he was at the head of the grain office and while he was secretary of the Republican state committee.

The ceremony was performed at the Great Northern hotel at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Judge W. N. Gemmill, a former fellow townsman of Mr. Cowen at Mount Carroll.

The attendants were Miss Vivian Guion, a niece of the bride, and Joseph J. Lenock, who has been Mr. Cowen's confidential man for fifteen years. Mr. and Mrs. Cowen departed for Denver on a wedding trip.

DEMOCRATS GIVE OUT ANTI-HUGHES TALK BY LINDSEY

Denver Progressive Raps G. O. P. Candidate's 'Pussy Footing' in Interview.

The publicity bureau of the western Democratic headquarters yesterday issued a statement which says that Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver had been in conference with Senator Thomas J. Walsh and had given out the following interview:

"As a recent member of the national Progressive party executive committee it is only natural that I should continue my interest in and work for the program of social justice announced by the Progressive of Chicago in 1912.

Sees Old Hands at Helm.

"But I cannot see how these measures are to be advanced by a party that so far as its national control is concerned is precisely the same now as it was in 1912 when it nominated Mr. Taft. Precisely the same influences then back of Mr. Taft are back of Mr. Hughes now, and precisely the same influences will dominate the house and senate if they should succeed.

"I am supporting President Wilson because we have the positive proof that these interests do not dominate him. He has also accomplished much of the program that the Progressives started out for.

"The Republican party is still the party of Penrose and Guggenheim in the nation. I think this is generally acknowledged by the Progressives in the west.

Disgusted by Hughes' Trip.

"Most of those Progressives were pretty much disgusted with Mr. Hughes' trip throughout the west. They expected him to be more courageous. They had to listen to a lot of platitudinous talk which sounded more like a local candidate running for the legislature than coming from a presidential candidate who was supposed to be brave enough to tell the people where he stood on the vital issues that President Wilson has so nobly struggled with during the last three years."

HOME FROM WAR, OUT FOR HUGHES

Indiana Woman to Stump Illinois for Preparedness After Visit to Trenches.

Mrs. Margaret Crumpacker, widow of J. W. Crumpacker of Indiana, arrived in Chicago from New York yesterday and reported at the women's department of the Republican national committee headquarters in the Conway building. She will stump the west for Hughes because she believes in preparedness, and having just come from the battlefields and hospitals of France she is burning to tell the people here what preparedness means.

Sees War in Trenches.

She went to France last December for the French wounded emergency fund. She worked through the hospitals of Brittany and Normandy, carrying supplies to small places wherever a group of nurses had established themselves. Sometimes it was in barns, often in schools and public buildings. Everywhere it was the same story of suffering. Through fortunate acquaintances Mrs. Crumpacker was taken into the trenches, the third woman in France to be given this opportunity to see war at first hand.

Accompanied by army officers from Paris, she went by train to Epernay, and from there by motor and by endless walking through miles of trenches to the first line.

"I will never forget that day," Mrs. Crumpacker said. "The underground streets and houses were as orderly as if it were home. Not that it was like home; it seemed more like a topsy-turvy world, guns and the litter of war everywhere.

For Hughes and Preparedness.

"It is no wonder that I feel so intensely on the subject of preparedness. Since I came home from France I have worked with the Patriotic Education society in New York toward the introduction of military training into our high schools.

"I am to speak through this state for Hughes because his is the party of preparedness, and I am sure I can tell the women of this state such stories of the trenches and the hospitals that they will see this country's need just as I do."

DENOUNCES LABOR POLICY OF PRESIDENT AS MENACE TO NATION

WILSON CRAVEN; REPUDIATE HIM, COLONEL'S PLEA

Roosevelt, "have we had such an ignoble contrast between words and deeds of a chief executive."

Denounces Strike Action.

The colonel laid heavy blows on Mr. Wilson in handling the Adamson eight hour law. With all his old fire and pep he lashed the president unmercifully for his submission to organized tyranny and said that Mr. Wilson "took his orders from that one of the parties in interest which he most feared, insisted that the law be passed without inquiry, and then deferred the operation of the law until after election, which, of course, could only have been done for political reasons."

Mr. Roosevelt quoted from an editorial published in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE last Sunday, as follows:

"Democracy cannot live if organized minorities can force it to unconsidered acts."

Opposes "Labor Tyranny."

Mr. Roosevelt said that he stood for organized labor and for the eight hour proposal as a general rule, but that the manner in which President Wilson surrendered to the labor leaders confronts the nation with a new danger.

"I equally abhor both the white terror and the red terror," he said. "And I will stand as stoutly against one as against the other. We have seen in this country few things more discreditable to our representatives and more ominous for the future of the nation than the spectacle of the president and congress of the United States being required to pass a certain bill before a certain hour at the dictation of certain men who sat in the gallery with their watches in their hands threatening ruin and disaster to the nation if there was the smallest failure to satisfy their demands."

"Pitiless Publicity" Views.

Col. Roosevelt departed from his set speech in a couple of important side observations. He was discussing his charge that Wilson is a man of many words and not deeds, when he stopped, smiled, and pitched his voice high.

"Mr. Wilson stands for pitiless publicity, I understand," he said. "Well, now, I didn't coin that phrase, but I put it into practice while I was president, thus giving you the contrast at both ends."

In charging Wilson with having bungled and cowardly handled the German situation, he stopped to remark: "Mr. Wilson's notes on strict accountability didn't amount to anything, and, by the way, the speech of the German chancellor only the other day would indicate that the submarine warfare is to be resumed generally. We are a nation without the respect of other nations."

The speech is to be the Republican campaign text book. Something like 10,000 copies have been ordered for distribution among the Republican stump army.

Col. Roosevelt's Speech.

Col. Roosevelt's address was as follows:

"At the outset I wish to say a word as to the protests now made by so many people that we must not criticize the president. The newspapers and individuals making these protests are, for the most part, the very ones who and which when I was president spread every species of calumny and slander about me. I then, as president, took the view that no one had a right to speak untruthfully of the president or of any one else, but that even less than any one else ought the president to escape from truthful criticism.

"I never complained of any attack on me unless it was false, and if it was false, and the man making it was important enough, I clearly showed its falsity. I apply to others only the standard by which I asked that I myself be treated.

A Presidential Critic.

"It is the standard explicitly set in reference to myself by Mr. Charles Bonaparte on May 2, 1902, in his speech to the Civil Service Reform association of Maryland.

"Speaking of me, the then president, he said:

> Give him Hail Columbia (not to speak of anything less suitable for public mention) when he does aught that savors of that abuse of public trust for personal or party ends which he has himself so often and so strenuously condemned; if he is the man some of us think him, he will think all the better of us for doing this; but, whatever he or anybody else may think, it is the right thing for us to do, and we have no business here, his association and its fellows have no warrant for further existence, unless we are ready to do it. Moreover, although we should, so far as may be practicable in reason, learn all material facts bearing on the conduct of a public servant before we blame him, there is no call for encyclopædic research into minute details to justify outspoken censure, when this appears, on a fair, sober, second thought, well deserved. It is the president's duty, no less than it was Mrs. Cæsar's ot escape reasonable suspicion of wrongdoing; should he or any other official tell us: "If you knew the facst you wouldn't [illegible] have a ready answer: "Give us the facts and we'll see."

Tried to Support Wilson.

"I, at the time emphatically indorsed this position of Mr. Bonaparte's, who himself later served in my cabinet. His attitude was the proper one to take towards the then president; and it is the proper one to take towards the present president.

"I never uttered one word of criticism of President Wilson until a year and a half after he was elected president. If he had stood by the honor and the interest of the American people I would have thrown up my hat for him and would have supported him heart and soul. I not merely kept silent during the first eighteen months or two years. I tried actively to support him. The only errors I have made in connection with Mr. Wilson were due to incautiously accepting his statements and supporting his policies in the effort to stand by the president.

"It was with deep reluctance that I was forced to the conclusion that the effort to stand by him was incompatible with standing by the interests of mankind, and the honor of this nation.

"But in my view there was no alternative for any honorable man when once I became convinced, as I am convinced, that the conscience of this people has been seared, and its moral sense dulled by the leadership of the administration and of congress during the last three years. These false servants of the people have taught us to enjoy soft ease and swollen wealth in the present without taking one effective step to ward off ruinous disaster in the future. These false servants of the people have betrayed the soul of the nation.

Put Righteousness Before Peace.

"The supporters of Mr. Wilson say that the American people should vote for him because he has kept us out of war. It is worth while to remember that this is a claim that cannot be advanced either on behalf of Washington or of Lincoln. Neither Washington nor Lincoln kept us out of war. Americans and the people of the world at large now reverence the memories of these two men because, and only because, they put righteousness before peace. They abhorred war. They shunned unjust or wanton or reckless war. But they possessed that stern valor of patriotism which bade them put duty first, not safety first; which bade them accept war rather than an unrighteous and disastrous peace.

"There were peace at any price men in the days of Washington. They were the Tories. There were peace at any price men in the days of Lincoln. They were the Copperheads. The men who now with timid hearts and quavering voices praise Mr. Wilson for having kept us out of war are the spiritual heirs of the Tories of 1776, and the Copperheads of 1864. The men who followed Washington at Trenton and Yorktown, and who suffered with him through the winter at Valley Forge, and the men who wore the blue under Grant, and the gray under Lee, were men of valor, who sacrificed everything to serve the right as it was given them to see the right. They spurned with contemptuous indignation the counsels of the feeble and cowardly folk who in their day spoke for peace at any price.

Disaster Sure in End.

"President Wilson, by his policy of tame submission to insult and injury from all whom he feared, has invited the murder of our men, women, and children by Mexican bandits on land and by German submarines on the sea. He has spoken much of the new freedom. In international practice this has meant freedom for the representatives of any foreign power to murder American men and outrage American women unchecked by the president.

"President Wilson has counted upon his belief that the American people are indifferent to their duties, because they are too much absorbed in war profits, too much pleased with the unhealthy prosperity which flourishes because others are suffering, too greedily content with a momentary immunity from danger, due to the fact that all possible foes are otherwise engaged.

"He has believed that they will remain blind to the fact that disaster will surely in the end overtake them if they shirk their duties in the present. He believes that if they are allowed to enjoy good profits and high wages, and go to the movies, and purchase automobiles, they will pay no thought to the possibility of future ruin, and no thought to the sufferings of their fellow countrymen and countrywomen who at the present moment suffer the last extremities of torture and outrage.

The Puzzled Mexican.

"Porter Emerson Browne has shown exactly the way in which we are looked at abroad in a recent statement, which runs as follows:

> An American friend of mine attended a dinner given in Mexico by the erstwhile revolutionist thereof, Pascual Orozco. Pascual was puzzled. He asked my friend to explain that which so mystified him. 'We have robbed your men, dishonored your women, killed your children; tell me,' pleaded Pascual, 'what does an American need to make him fight?' Pascual, you see, being only an ignorant Mexican, couldn't understand why a wife or a couple of children more or less mean little when you have a new automobile and a fat bank account."

"I do not ask you to take my statement for Mr. Wilson's motive and actions. I ask you only to consider his own statements, and the statements of his authorized representatives, and his actions, and above all, his constant inaction.

Case of the Lusitania.

"Nearly one year and a half has passed since the Lusitania was sunk. The act represented the most colossal single instance of the murder of noncombatants, including men, women and children, that had been perpetrated by any power calling itself civilized for over a century. President Wilson had full notice as to what was to be done, for the German ambassador, Mr. von Bernstorff, had publicly given such notice to the people of the United States.

"For less than such action President George Washington, when ours was a weak infant nation, forced the recall of the French ambassador, Genet. But President Wilson did not act. He only spoke. And his words were a direct incitement to the repetition of the wrong. For immediately after the sinking of the Lusitania he uttered his famous sentence about being 'too proud to fight.'

Bad Effects of the Phrase.

"In all our history there has never been any other American president who has used a phrase that has done such widespread damage to the good name of America. It is one of those dreadful phrases which, as by a lighting flash, illumines the soul of the man using it, and remains forever fixed in the minds of mankind in connection with that man. But this is not all. When the man is president of the United States it is a sad and dreadful thing that the shame is necessarily shared by the nation itself; and it is completely assumed by the nation if it fails to repudiate the man who uttered the phrase.

"Imagine George Washington after the Lexington fight, or even after the Boston massacre, selecting the occasion as an appropriate one for remarking that the American people might be 'too proud to fight!' Imagine Abraham Lincoln making such a statement two days after the firing on Sumter!

Not Time to Talk Patriotism.

"Nor was this phrase an isolated one. Shortly afterwards, under date of May 27, the New York Times contained the statement that President Wilson declined an invitation to speak at Independence hall on July 5, and in response to a suggestion that he should only speak on patriotism, remarked:

"'This is perhaps the very time when I would not care to arouse the sentiment of patriotism.' I call your attention to the fact that I take this statement from one of the most prominent Wilson papers. President Wilson refused to speak in Independence hall on the 128th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in that hall, and he so refused because inasmuch as over 100 of our men, women and children had just been murdered on the high seas he regarded it as 'the very moment when he would not care to arouse the sentiment of patriotism.'

Strikes When Iron Is Cold.

"Mr. Wilson has a positive genius for striking when the iron is cold and fearing to strike when the iron is hot. If one hundred and twenty-eight years ago Washington and Jefferson, and the other men who signed the Declaration of Independence had felt the same way about fighting as Mr. Wilson does, we would never have had a country. Had Lincoln felt the same way, there would be no such thing as the American republic now in existence.

"Most assuredly, my fellow countrymen, the American republic will not live, and will not deserve to live, if for the views of men who signed the Declaratoin of Independence on July 4, 1776, we substitute as the basis of national action the views of the president who, one hundred and twenty-eight years later, declined to speak in commemoration of the day because in a dangerous crisis it seemed to his cold heart unwise 'to arouse the spirit of patriotism.'

Charges Inconsistency.

"The other day, discussing his refusal to recognize Huerta, President Wilson said in his speech of acceptance that he would refuse to recognize any 'title based upon intrigue and assasEsination,' and that he would 'refuse to exetend the hand of welcome to any one who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence.' Fine words; only, as usual, they are contradicted by Mr. Wilson's deeds.

"Let this statement about Huerta be tested by Mr. Wilson's record in exactly similar cases when dealing with other men. In February, 1914, at the very time he was refusing to recognize Huerta in Mexico, President Wilson recognized Col. Benavides in Peru, although Benavides had obtained his power by the exact means which Mr. Wilson denounced in the case of Huerta.

"The government of Benavides was founded on assassination, and had no vestige of constitutional authority back of it. It came into power in February, 1914, when Col. Benavides led the garrison troops against the president's palace, imprisoned the president, and assassinatedthe minister of war, and various others. Minister McMillan reported these facts fully to thepresident.

Benavides Worse than Huerta.

"The case against Benavides was far more flagrant than that against Huerta; but President Wilson boldly 'extended the hand of welcome to the man who obtained power in a sister republic by treachery and violence, and whose title was based upon assassination and intrigue.

"It is absolutely impossible to accept Mr. Wilson's statement as a justification in the case of Huerta, unless we admit that that very statement irretrievably condemns him in the case of Benavides. The only other explanation is that Mr. Wilson's statement in the Huerta matter was not intended to correspond with the facts, but merely to impress well meaning persons who were ignorant of the facts.

"In both San Domingo and Haiti President Wilson intervened by force on behalf of men who had obtained power precisely as Mr. Huerta obtained it. Indeed, in the case of Haiti, President Zamor was guilty of far worse conduct. But San Domingo and Haiti were weak and President Wilson was willing to act as regards them as he did not venture to act in Mexico.

Does Not Stand "Acid Test."

"But it is Mr. Wilson's recognition of Carranza which more than anything else applies the 'acid test,' of which Mr. Wilson is so fond of speaking, to Mr. Wilson's own allegations as to why he did not recognize Huerta. Every argument against Huerta applied with tenfold more truth and weight against Carranza. Immediately after Mr. Wilson recognized Carranza the latter court martialed and shot a former member of Huerta's cabinet, Garcia Granados, who had committed no crime whatever except having served in Huerta's cabinet. It was a deliberate murder of a man of good character who was at the time in private life, and Carranza had already permitted his followers to assassinate members of the house and members of the senate of the Mexican congress.

"For full particulars I refer you to the speech of Senator Fall on June 2 last. On April 3, 1915, the Americans resident in the City of Mexico sent to the department of state a letter setting forth that Carranza's troops had, without check by him and acting by his orders, killed men, outraged women, and raided churches.

Self-Accused, He Says.

"Moreover Mr. Wilson is himself a witness against his present ally. I refer you to the letter of Mr. Wilson's own secretary of state of June 4 last. In this letter it is explicitly stated that Carrancista soldiers in September, 1915, invaded American territory at several different points and engaged in burning and looting American property and killing American citizens, and, says Mr. Wilson through his secretary of state, 'not only were these murders characterized by ruthless brutality, but uncivilized acts of mutilation were perpetrated.'

"One of these 'uncivilized' acts was committed on Sept. 29, when some of Carranza's soldiers captured an American trooper, killed him, and cut off his head and ears. Exactly twenty days later, on Oct. 19, Mr. Wilson expressed pleasure in informing Carranza that he recognized him! Since the recognition Carranza's troops, by his orders, have treacherously attacked and murdered American soldiers on at least two occasions.

Carranza Treachery.

"If the acts above recited—which are merely samples of the course of conduct Carranza has already pursued—do not constitute 'intrigue and assassination, treachery and violence,' then the words have lost their meaning. Mr. Wilson took pleasure in 'extending the hand of welcome' to Carranza, whose own hand is red with the blood of murdered men and women of his own nation, and whose hands, unlike the hands of Huerta, were also red with the blood of murdered Americans, of murdered American civilians, and of murdered American soldiers wearing the American uniform. But President Wilson cared as little for the deaths of these men as he cared for the honor of the uniform. He with pleasure 'extended the hand of welcome' to the man guilty of their murder.

Bills Accumulating.

"On Sept. 5 there appeared in the newspapers a statement by Secretary of the Interior Lane of Mr. Wilson's cabinet, who is engaged in the humiliating and disgraceful negotiations Mr. Wilson's government is carrying on with the Mexican representatives at New London—and, by the way, as the former negotiations were said to be with the A, B, C powers, these negotiations in view of the Mexican demands for money, might well be called the I. O. U. negotiations. Mr. Lane explained that in endeavoring to get a settlement the American delegates 'will not resort to the note sending plan,' and he adds that 'note sending has not been a success.' Mr. Lane is entirely right, and his statement is a condemnation of the entire diplomatic policy of the president in whose cabinet he sits.

"The New York Times, under date of Feb. 11, stated that the claims of Americans and foreigners for the loss of property and life in Mexico now total about $1,000,000,000, of which $600,000,000 are due to Americans, and the other $400,000,000 to natives of Germany, England, France, and Spain. The Times further mentioned that Mr. Lane has been told that the representatives of these powers regarded the United States as obligated to make good their property losses, and to pay indemnity for the lives of their compatriots.

Punitive Expeditions.

"It was also announced in the public press that $100,000,000 was expended in Gen. Pershing's expedition into Mexico, and that we are now expending $15,000,000 a week to keep 150,000 men on the border of Mexico in order to enable Mr. Wilson to continue to wage peace with that country.

"It seems probable that the first fruits of Mr. Wilson's policy in Mexico will be that we shall find ourselves saddled with a debt of $1,500,000,000, while already many more of our people have been killed than were killed in the war with Spain; and our policy has been ruinous to Mexico, dishonorable to ourselves, and infamous from the standpoint of humanity; while not the slightest progress toward a permanent settlement has been made.

"In dealing with foreign nations, if we are to retain our self-respect and protect our citizens, the first essential is that when we speak it shall be understood that we mean what we say. In his speech at West Point on June 2 last President Wilson said: 'Mankind is going to know that when America speaks she means what she says.' Most emphatically mankind will never know this as long as Mr. Wilson is president.

Unbacked Notes.

"President Wilson says in his speech of acceptance that he is 'more interested in the fortunes of oppressed men and pitiful women and children than in any property rights whatever.' President Wilson sent note after note to England protesting against interference with property rights, and he has just taken action on behalf of property rights, against France and England, which if he had really thought about it in advance, and meant what he said, might very well lead to the most serious consequences with these powers. If it does not have this effect it will be because Mr. Wilson's words will again be left unbacked by deeds.

"Mexico offers the most striking instance of contrast between words and deeds on the part of our government. Mr. Wilson speaks loftily on behalf of oppressed men and pitiful women in the abstract; but when the forces of Carranza and Villa murdered American men and outraged American women, acting under the direct authority of their leaders, Mr. Wilson made no effective protest of any kind; and in his speech of acceptance he has actually apologized for these men on the ground that they represented at least the fierce passions of reconstruction which lie at the very heart of liberty. It is difficult to speak patiently of such an utterance when we remember the infamy which it covers, and the abject submission to infamy for which it seeks to apologize.

Contrasts Words and Deeds.

"President Wilson says that he is interested in the fortunes of pitiful women and children. On the Lusitania there were drowned 103 babies under 2 years of age, fifty of them being babies under 1 year of age. How did Mr. Wilson's interest in these pitiful women and children show itself? It showed itself by the statement just two days later about being 'too proud to fight.' It showed itself in his statement a little over two weeks later to the effect that it was inexpedient then to arouse the spirit of patriotism.

"Let him square these acts with these words of his. Let him square these words with his professions of interest in the fortunes of pitiful women and children. Let him square his absolute failure to take any action whatever with his statements that any nation that violates our essential rights must be checked and called to account by direct challenge and resistance. Never in our history has there been such ignoble contrast between the words and the deeds of a chief executive.

Compared to the Walrus.

"There is, however, a parallel for the kind of interest and concern President Wilson has thus shown for oppressed men and pitiful women and children. But we have to go for it, not to history, but to fiction. His attitude recalls that of the walrus in 'Alice Through the Looking Glass,' who took the oysters out to walk on the beach and then ate them up. While eating them the walrus bewailed their fate, and his words, emotions, and actions are thus described:

"I weep for you, the walrus said,
I deeply sympathize;
With sobs and tears he sorted out
Those of the largest size,
Holding his pocket handkerchief
Before his streaming eyes.

Forty-one Discrepancies.

"As on almost every question President Wilson has occupied at least two diametrically opposite positions, we can usually find in some of his words an outline of the position we ought to have taken; but almost without exception, these fine words have had the meaning weaseled out of them by other words, and usually there have been no deeds whatever.

"Take, as an instance, the question of prparedness, and of the means necessary to secure it. In the fourteen months extending from Dec. 8, 1914, to Feb. 10, 1916, there were fifteen messages, letters, and speeches of President Wilson which I have read. In these fifteen messages, letters, and speeches during those fourteen months, President Wilson took forty-one different positions about preparedness and the measures necessary to secure it, and each of these forty-one positions contradicted from one to six of the others.

Cites Illustrations.

"In many of his speeches the weasel words of one portion of the speech took all the meaning out of the words used in another portion of that speech, and these latter words themselves had a weasel significance as regards yet other words. He argued for preparedness, and against preparedness. He stated that our army was ample, and that we did not have enough troops to patrol the Mexican border in time of peace. He said the world was on fire, and that sparks were liable to drop anywhere and cause us to burst into flame; and he also said that there was no immediate danger. He said that there was no sudden crisis, and then again that he did not know what a single day would bring forth.

"He said that we were on the verge of a maelstrom, and then that there was no special or critical situation. He said the danger was constant and immediate, and also that we were not threatened from any quarter. He said that there was no fear among us, and also that we were in daily danger of seeing the vital interest and honor of the country menaced and the flag of the United States stained with impunity. He said that we were in very critical danger of being involved in the great European struggle, and also that there was no need to discuss the question of defense, or to get nervous or excited about it.

As to Army Volunteers.

"In one and the same speech he said that a sufficient number of men would volunteer, and that if they did not he would be ashamed of America, and he also said that he did not know of any law which laid upon them the duty of coming into the army, if it should be necessary to call for volunteers. He said that we needed 500,000 volunteers, and that if there was any legitimate criticism of this demand it was because it was too small, and as soon as Congressman Hay objected to the plan he promptly abandoned it.

Eight Hour Legislation.

"I ask you to test the character and courage of Mr. Hughes and Mr. Wilson by comparing their attitudes as regards the demands of the railway brotherhoods, which culminated recently in the miscalled eight hour legislation at Washington.

"During the last eighteen years, covering the period when I was governor and president, I have hitherto on every important issue supported the brotherhoods. I am proud of the fact that I am an honorary member of one of the brotherhoods. I have publicly stated that during the ten years when I held high public office I found myself on the whole in closer agreement with the brotherhods than with any similar organized body, whether of business men, professional men, or labor men, with the possible exception of the members of the surgical and medical profession, in so far as they can be said to be organized.

"But it is the duty of every good American, and especially every good public servant, in each question that arises touching the relations of labor and capital to judge that particular question squarely on its merit. I equally abhor both the white terror and the red terror, and I will stand as stoutly against one as against the other.

Ominous for the Future.

"We have seen in this country few things more discreditable to our representatives and more ominous for the future of the nation than the spectacle of the president and congress of the United States being required to pass a certain bill before a certain hour at the dictation of certain men who sat in the gallery with their watches in their

VERBAL HOT SHOTS AIMED AT WILSON BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT

"Mr. Wilson has a positive genius for striking when the iron is cold and fearing to strike when the iron is hot."

"We have seen few things more discreditable to our representatives and more ominous for the future of our nation than the spectacle of the president and congress being required to pass a certain bill before a certain hour at the dictation of certain men who sat in the gallery with their watches in their hand."

"I believe in labor unions. But I believe first and foremost in liberty and justice obtained through the union to which all of us belong."

"I shall do everything in my power for the workingman except what is wrong."

"If our people follow the president who has kept them in the easy path of temporary comfort at the sacrifice of national honor, and of the immutable principles of righteousness, then as a people we shall lose all moral greatness in the present, and most assuredly we shall see this loss followed by the loss of material greatness in the future."

"Repudiate Mr. Wilson because only by so doing can we save America from that taint of gross selfishness and cowardice which we owe to Mr. Wilson's substitution of adroit elocution for straightforward action."

"As a people we need the sterner virtues even more then we need the softer virtues."

Perfection in details for instance—The Curtains

CADILLAC EIGHT

The Cadillac Eight of today is more than well built, more than well finished. It is refined, perfected, improved in a hundred worthwhile details.

These new type curtains are but an instance. They can be put in place quicker because of the snap-fasteners instead of turn-buttons. They give as clear vision as the windows of a limousine. They open with the doors. They fit closer than any curtains you have ever seen. They look smart and they don't flap in the wind.

In such details as this—in body, motor, chassis—the Cadillac engineers have made little refinements and improvements whose sum total is greater comfort, keener performance, longer life.

The new Cadillac has a way all its own on rough roads. It doesn't ride like an automobile, as you have known automobiles. It seems to float along with a gently undulating motion, secure against jolts, never throwing you off the seat.

A ride in the new Cadillac is an experience you will remember—because it will determine you to own a Cadillac. The demonstration will take just half an hour; it will show you many fine points of performance. You can arrange it over the telephone—Calumet 4841.

ROOSEVELT DECLARES FEAR DICTATES POLICIES OF THE PRESIDENT

WILSON CRAVEN; REPUDIATE HIM, COLONEL'S PLEA

hands, threatening ruin and disaster to the nation if there was the smallest failure to satisfy their demands.

"As president I dealt at various times with both corporation and labor unions. In every case according to the best of my ability I stood in favor of the corporation or union that was doing right, and against the corporation or union that was doing wrong. For example, I stood against the Western Federation of Miners at one time, just as I stood against the richest and most powerful corporations of Wall street at other times. I am therefore not asking any public servant to take a stand which I myself did not take when I was in public office.

Recalls Anthracite Strike.

"In particular I ask you to remember the anthracite coal strike, because the menace that strike contained was even greater than the menace of a general tie-up of the transportation systems of the country, for it meant the possibility of actual death by cold to hundreds of thousands of our people. At that time the great and wealthy mine owners, backed by the heads of the wealthiest and most powerful industrial and railroad corporations in the country, refused to arbitrate. The men struck. Winter was approaching, and fell disaster threatened all the eastern half of our country.

"The representatives of the mine owners in response to my request insisted that there was nothing to arbitrate; and through their counsel also insisted that I had no power under the constitution to act, and that the public could not interfere through the representatives of the public with the way in which they managed their business. I took the opposite view. I held that where the public necessity was national and imperative, it became the duty of the chief of the nation to act.

Three Parties in Interest.

"I held that in any such gigantic controversy between labor and capital as to threaten the welfare of the nation, there were three parties in interest—viz: the capitalists, the workingmen, and finally the people as a whole; and that where the public need was vital the need must control. I specifically took the view that before final action was taken on the points at issue we must have full information given to the public and the representatives of the public by an unbiased body after a thorough study of the situation; that the power of the government must be used to make effective the findings of this body, and that, pending its finding, the work of mining must go on, because the public need so demanded; and that, therefore, I would use the entire power of the nation to see that the work went on, that there was an arbitration by dispassionate experts, and that the conclusions of this arbitration were accepted.

Coerced Mine Owners.

"When the mine owners, backed by the most powerful financial interests in New York, refused to arbitrate, I proceeded to appoint an arbitration commission without regard to them, and I secured the assent of a political opponent, Mr. Cleveland, an ex-president of the United States, to serve as head of that commission. I saw the lieutenant general of the army, and arranged with him that, if necessary, I would put the army in possession of the mines and would treat him as the receiver to run the mines, and to see that neither side interfered with the running.

"Fortunately, when it became evident that I would put my program through at no matter what hazard or difficulty, the hazards and difficulties both vanished, and I was able to secure an agreement for arbitration and for the return of the men to work pending the result of the arbitration.

Real Issue Cloaked.

"I believe in labor unions. But I believe first and foremost in liberty and justice obtained through the union to which all of us belong, the union of all the people of the United States. I believe in the eight hour day as the general rule toward which we must strive; but I recognize that special needs must be met in special industries; and that in all such cases there must be very careful consideration of all the conditions before final action is taken.

"In this case, however, the eight hour day is not the issue. The issue is an increase of wages, given by law, without previous investigation or knowledge. The principle of the eight hour day is not at issue and is adroitly invoked merely to cloak the real issue.

"Eight hours may be the outside limit of proper work time in Mr. Ford's factory, where the man is all the time working at just one thing intensively, and without vacation; but eight hours that include periods of doing nothing but sit around, and also change of occupation, may not be long enough. Moreover, there are occupations of intermittent activity where to limit the total time on duty in any one day to eight hours would be an absurdity, and there are others where excessive activity on one day is compensated for by complete leisure on the following day.

Careful Study Needed.

"The case at issue is preëminently one that comes in the category of those that can be settled only after careful investigation and full consideration of many important conflicting elements. I believe in the eight hour day, on moral and sociological grounds, as being the ideal towards which we should strive. I believe in wages being just as high in any business as is compatible with square treatment to the other parties in interest. But if the government is to intervene in order to secure shorter hours and better wages it must do so only after full knowledge and not merely under the duress of threats.

"Moreover the issue must be honestly stated. The government must not be used really to get higher wages when the nominal and surface demand seems to be for fewer hours of labor. It appears that what in this case is demanded is not really a day of eight hours' labor, but a higher rate of pay for the eight hours, or a higher rate of overtime pay beyond eight hours. In other words it is not a law to limit hours of labor in the sense that we use in speaking of an eight hour day for women, or an eight hour law for three shifts in continuous industry. It is primarily a bill to secure an advance in wages; the securing of an eight hour day is wholly secondary, and as regards many employés would probably not be brought about or desired.

Rights of the Public.

"When any labor trouble becomes of such size as to involve the public the public has a right to interfere, to insist that there shall be no interference with the welfare and safety of the public, and therefore to insist on arbitration, that is, for just decision by the government, after an investigation conducted through a commission which will get all the facts and lay them before the executive and legislative representatives of the public for what action they deem necessary.

"These were the principles which by actual deed, when I was president, I upheld in the teeth of violent opposition from the most powerful corporations in the land, representing the employers' interest. The opposition of these great employing corporations was asserted in every possible way against me throughout the period when I held public office or was a candidate for public office. I absolutely disregarded it, because I thought that only by disregarding it could I do my duty to the country. In just the same way and from just the same motives I shall now disregard any opposition by the representatives of misguided labor unions to the principles which I then put into effect and which they then applauded me for putting into effect.

One Law for All.

"As I said when I was president, I believe that the welfare of the laboring man, with the sole exception of the welfare of the farmer, is more important to this country than the welfare of any other citizen; I shall do all I can to secure his permanent welfare; I shall do everything in my power for the working man except what is wrong; but I will do wrong neither for him nor for any other man.

"There must be but one law to be applied in these cases and to be yielded to by all alike. To yield to the threats of a great organized body of workers is just as evil and cowardly thing in a public man as to yield to the influence of representatives of great organized capital, and in the long run just as dangerous to the country.

Facts Not Given to Public.

"Now I wish it distinctly understood that I am not in the least prepared to say that this demand is wrong. It may be absolutely right. My point is that without full investigatino we cannot say whether it is right or wrong. President Wilson yielded to the dictation of the heads of the brotherhoods and made no effort to find out whether the demand was right or wrong. He made no effort to find out whether it could be complied with without raising freight rates. He made no effort to find out all the equities in the case—those affecting the men, those affecting the stockholders, those affecting the shippers. He took his orders from that one of the parties in interest which he most feared. He insisted that the law be passed without inquiry.

"And then he deferred the operation of the law until after election, which of course could only have been done for political reasons. We have not at this moment any power to determine which side of the controversy is right and which wrong. We do not know whether it is right to increase the wages without increasing the freight rates, and whether in such event it is proper to the public that both the rates and wages shall be increased to the amount this bill will require; or whether any increase in rates ought to be made; or whether in the interest of the public neither wages nor rates should be increased.

Eight Hours Not the Issue.

"I believe, from the standpoint of the public interest, in the proper limitation by law of the hours of work on railroads; but it is essential that there shall be full knowledge and consideration of all the facts before determining exactly what the law shall be.

"The question at issue was not that of an eight hour day at all. The question was whether the president and congress should enact a law, without investigation and without knowledge, to give increased wages to a certain portion of the body of wage earners. The labor leaders on this issue, without regard to the right or wrong of the matter, first coerced the president and then with his aid coerced congress.

"The question at issue was not one of the hours of labor. It was one of wages. And it was settled by the president and congress without investigation and without knowledge. The settlement was due partly to fear and partly to hope of political profit.

Mind Made Up in Advance.

"President Wilson in his speech on the 23d of this month sought to explain and justify his action. He stated his whole case with probably unconscious accuracy when he said that before he undertook to settle the controversy he had 'learned that the whole temper of the legislative bodies of the United States was in favor' of what one side announced to be its contention. In other words, he had made up his mind in advance, and he made it up because he believed the majority of the congressmen (for the most part pure politicians) were on what they deemed to be the popular side.

"In this speech he explicitly admitted that in this controversy 'the main partner was left out of the reckoning,' because the two parties declined to consider 'what rights had the 100,000,000 people of the United States?' And President Wilson eagerly joined with these men in refusing to consider the rights of these 100,000,000 of people. President Wilson knows well that he has betrayed the rights of these people.

Fine Words Contradicted.

"He admits that when in the same speech, with his usual faculty for using fine words about the future when he desires to cover up mean deeds in the present, he says, 'How are we going to prevent any organization from overriding the interests of society? . . . America has the privilege to say: you must not interrupt the national life without consulting us. Exactly! Fine words! Words such as Mr. Wilson loves to use. And as is customary with Mr. Wilson, these fine words of his about abstract rights are flatly contradicted by his unworthy deeds as soon as the concrete case arises.

"Mr. Wilson uses these lofty words about the future at the very time when he has made America submit to seeing 'an organization override the interests of society,' when by his action he has permitted this organization to 'interrupt the national life without consulting us.'

"Of course, it is a mere pretense to say that there is any sacred social reason why there is any greater reason to refuse to arbitrate the number of hours of labor than to refuse to arbitrate the amount of wages. And the question really at issue in this case does not really refer to the number of hours of labor. It refers really to the rate of wages. What Mr. Wilson really did was to insist on legislation about the wage scale without any previous investigation or knowledge.

Wilson Once Against Unions.

"If the improper course which the president followed had been due to mistaken conviction, to erroneous principle, its effect would nevertheless have been evil. As it is, the effect is far worse, because there is grave reason to believe that the course he followed was directly opposed to his real convictions.

"The president is now a candidate for office and speaks well of labor. Until he became a candidate for office, and as long as he was president of a university, he, with entire safety, ignored or assailed the labor unions. Indeed, he was then their bitter, ungenerous, and often unjust critic. At the People's Forum on Feb. 25, 1905, he said: 'Labor unions drag the highest man to the level of the lowest.' In an address at a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria on March 18, 1907, in speaking of the capitalists, he said: 'There is another equally formidable enemy to equality and betterment of opportunity, and that is the class formed by the labor organizations and leaders of this country.' In a letter written Jan. 12, 1909, he said. 'I am a fierce partisan of the open shop.'

Change of Attitude.

"In June of the same year, speaking at Princeton, he said: 'The usual standard of the employé in our day is to give as little as he may for his wages. Labor is standardized by the trades unions and this is the standard to which it is made to conform. I need not point out how economically disastrous such a regulation of labor is. The labor of America is rapidly becoming unprofitable under this regulation. Our economic supremacy may be lost because the country grows more and more full of unprofitable servants.'

"I have no question that when Mr. Wilson thus spoke he expressed his sincere convictions. Less than two years later he was in public life and immediately his attitude changed. There is no reason to believe that his convictions changed.

"The course actually followed by the president and the majority of congress put the interests of the country second to considerations of unhealthy political expediency. It appealed to timid and shortsighted men outside of congress no less than to those within congress. It is upheld now by certain men who say 'Thank God, President Wilson averted a strike' just exactly as they and those like them say 'Thank God, President Wilson has kept us out of war.' These persons do not ask whether he averted the strike honorably or dishonorably, any more than they ask whether he averted a war honorably or dishonorably.

Temporary Benefit Only.

"They have not considered in either case whether temporary safety was to be ignobly purchased at the cost of future disaster. All that they have demanded was that war should be averted in one case, and a strike averted in the other case, in order that they might not have to undergo risk or temporary material discomfort. They have been too timid and too shortsighted to make any sacrifice for the sake of right and justice, or to undergo any risk in order to preserve the foundations of democracy and of free government in America. These men have shown entire willingness to submit to organized tyranny both from outside our borders and from inside our borders, if only at the moment they could avoid inconvenience and financial loss.

"These men are not the heirs of the Americans who brought the revolutionary war to a successful close; nor of the men who wore the blue and the gray for four long years in the great struggle of the civil war. If the American people of today are willing to accept such leadership, they will give justification for the belief that they prize ease and comfort above the principles for which their forefathers suffered and died.

Issues Basely Denied.

"We of the United States invite disaster, we sacrifice every principle of manhood, if we raise a breed of men in this country who determine vital issues in such fashion. Such men when they face any issue merely ask if it is difficult to meet it honestly and bravely, and if it is they instantly proceed to meet it dishonestly and timidly. They measure the acts of their public men in terms of immediate material content and ease. They do not require them to act in terms of right and justice. They say that they stand for the administration because it has kept us out of war and has averted a strike. They refuse seriously to consider, as all high minded Americans ought to consider, the president's refusal to do his plain and honest duty by meeting great crises honorably and courageously.

"If our people follow the president who has kept them in the easy path of temporary comfort and material ease at the sacrifice of national honor and of true Americanism, and of the immutable principles of righteousness, then as a people we shall lose all moral greatness in the present and most assuredly we shall see this loss followed by the loss of material greatness in the future.

Has Always Retreated.

"An ounce of performance outweighs a ton of promise. In all these cases whenever there was any risk, any danger to be encountered, President Wilson has promptly retreated. He has then sought to cover his retreat by uttering high sounding words. But in these cases his high sounding words amount to absolutely nothing. Only his acts, or failures to act, count.

"In the anthracite strike we settled the principle that the public rights are superior to any private rights in matters of vital public moment. President Wilson surrendered this principle at the demand of the great labor leaders, without investigation and regardless of the facts, and shifted the burden to the public. For justice in dealing between capital and labor he has substituted the policy of craven surrender to whichever side has the superiority in brute force. Once more in our internal affairs as in our external affairs he has stood for peace at any price. He refuses to look ahead.

Cowed by Labor Leaders.

"He shows not one shred of that stern and unyielding courage which enables a leader to face temporary risk, discomfort, and hardship for the sake of a lofty ideal and a splendid ultimate triumph. He was cowed by the big labor leaders exactly as he had already been cowed by Germany and by Mexico. He himself acknowledged the evil of the situation when he said, 'it must never be allowed again.' But by his actions he has guaranteed that it will arise again, whenever there is in the White House a man too timid to face threats or front danger.

"Mr. Wilson's acts in the White House have shown that what he seeks in any emergency of this nature is momentary relief, temporary safety, purchased at whatever cost of present ignominy and at whatever risk of future disaster. President Wilson has announced that in theory he stood for arbitration in such matters, but 'the minute that he was threatened he not only abandoned the principle, but supported the assault on it. The union leaders announced that they had 'steadily refused to arbitrate,' and that in their action they were 'supported by the president of the United States.' President Wilson was the guardian of the public weal. He betrayed the public weal.

Confirmed by Labor Leader.

"This is specifically set forth in the official announcement of the chairman of the union representatives, who thus described the contest:

"'In times like this men go back to primal instinct—to the day of the caveman, who, with his half-gnawed bone, snarled at the other caveman who wanted to take his bone away. We leaders are fighting for our men, the railroads are fighting for their stockholders and the shippers for themselves. And the public will pay.' And President Wilson let the public pay. He let the contest be decided not on principles of justice, but by the rules obtaining between cavemen snarling over a bone. No wonder that the rugged cavemen of industrial warfare treated with utter contempt the feeble appeals of the apostle of peace at any price.

"By his actions President Wilson did lasting harm to the nation. The vice of his procedure was fourfold. He delivered a deadly blow at the principle of industrial arbitration. He immensely weakened the power of the national executive to act under such conditions on behalf of the public. He established the shameful and perilous precedent that the government of the United States can be coerced and legislation extorted from congress by terrorization and the threat of violence. He aided in securing a settlement which puts a premium on the overriding of justice by appeals to brute force.

Plea of One Who Flees.

"President Wilson seeks to justify himself on the ground that it was 'futile' and dangerous to 'stand firmly.' This is an appeal that can with equal truth be made by every soldier who runs away in battle. He further alleges his belief that the cause he championed 'has the sanction of the judgment of society in its favor.'

"I remember thirty odd years ago in the Black hills a local vigilance committee which was in doubt about hanging a suspected wrongdoer. While they were discussing the matter there appeared over the neighboring divide a frowsy, elderly horseman in a linen duster, who promptly galloped towards them, waving his arms and shouting 'Hang him! Hang him!' The leader of the vigilantes at once asked the frowsy stranger what he knew of the facts, whereupon the stranger answered, 'I do not know anything about the facts, and I never saw the man before, but there's eleven of you and only one of him, and I believe in majority rule!' This is merely a picturesque paraphrase of what Mr. Wilson calls action under 'the sanction of society.' It exemplifies the principle upon which President Wilson has acted in those public matters, internal and external, where he was threatened with the use of force.

Repudiate Wilson, He Pleads.

"I appeal to my fellow citizens that they shall elect Mr. Hughes and repudiate Mr. Wilson because only by so doing can they save America from that taint of gross selfishness and cowardice which we owe to Mr. Wilson's substitution of adroit elocution for straightforward action. The permanent interests of the American people lie not in ease and comfort for the moment, no matter how obtained, as Mr. Wilson would teach us, but in resolute championship of the ideals of national and international democratic duty, and in preparedness to make this championship effective by our strength.

"President Wilson embodies in his person that most dangerous doctrine which teaches our people that when fronted with really formidable responsibilities we can shirk trouble and labor and risk and avoid duty by the simple process of drugging our souls with the narcotic of meaningless phrasemongering. Mr. Hughes, to the exact contrary, embodies the ideal of service rendered through conscientious effort in the face of danger and difficulty. Mr. Wilson turns his words into deeds only if this can be achieved by adroit political maneuvering, by bartering a debauched civil service for congressional votes on behalf of some measure which he had solemnly promised to oppose.

"Our own self-respect demands that we support the man of deeds done in the open against the man of furtive and shifting political maneuvers; the man of service against the man who whenever opposed by a dangerous foe always takes refuge in empty elocution.

U. S. Needs Sterner Virtues.

"There is nothing that we of this country so much need as to practice the doctrine of service. As a people we need the sterner virtues even more than we need the softer virtues. Material prosperity, bodily ease, money, pleasure, are all desirable; but woe to us if we consider them as the be-all and end-all of our private lives or of our collective national life! Woe to us if our material prosperity brings in its wake lethargy of spirit and deadness of soul!

"Let us in our lives apply the great doctrines of duty and of service. Above all let us realize that lofty profession is a mischievous sham when it is not translated into efficient performance. Among the companions of Lucifer in Milton's mighty epic there was none among the fiercer fiends so dangerous as he who

257 This-Year Cars
Combined in the New Mitchell Luxury Bodies

This tells John W. Bate's idea of efficiency, applied to fine body building. See if it meets your approval. Then come see the result. In the Mitchell enclosed cars you will find a score of attractions which no other one car offers.

John W. Bate, the great efficiency expert, has just completed for Mitchells seven extra-fine bodies.

Before they were designed, he had his experts and artists examine 257 new models, European and American. So no luxury or comfort—no artistic touch—has been omitted from these models.

The result is enclosed cars, and all-season models, combining the ideas of all the masters of this craft.

Two For All Weathers

The cars for all weathers are popular now. And they are bound to be ten times so.

One is the Springfield Type Touring Sedan, daintily upholstered and trimmed. An exquisite closed car when the windows are up. A 7-passenger Touring Car with the windows down. A perfect car for any weather, or for any time of year.

Another is the Cabriolet—a Coupe whose windows drop. And, with the top down, it becomes an open Roadster.

Two Winter Cars

All the luxuries known in winter cars are combined in the Mitchell Limousine. Every fine Limousine offers many attractions. Come and see the one model which combines all these attractions. And a score which you don't see elsewhere.

The Mitchell Coupe—with seats for four—is a smaller edition of this Limousine. In both these models all the plate glass windows drop.

Every Part Bate-Built

In the latest Mitchell nearly every part is a John W. Bate production. He has made in this car over 700 improvements.

High-speed, economical Six—48 horsepower, 127-inch wheelbase. Equipment includes 26 extra features—one a power tire pump.

Every part is given at least 50 per cent over-strength. There are 440 parts which are either drop-forged or steel-stamped.

All the major strains are met with Chrome-Vanadium steel, costing up to 15 cents per pound. And the parts are oversize.

The result is a lifetime car. Seven of these cars have averaged 176,000 miles apiece—over 30 years of ordinary service.

And the Mitchell is built in the Mitchell plant, where efficiency is made a fine art. Here Mr. Bate has cut factory costs in two. As a result, you get in the Mitchell at least 20 per cent extra value. And you get 26 costly features which other cars omit.

Come and see these cars with the new-style bodies—open, closed and convertible. It is the finest car exhibit in town.

HUGHES WARNS BUSINESS NOT TRUST WILSON

Winds Up First Tour at Buffalo with Blows at Bad Faith of Administration.

BY E. C. HILL.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Charles E. Hughes ended his second western tour in this city tonight, striking so hard at Wilsonism that 12,000 persons wedged into the Broadway auditorium set up a new cheering record for Erie county.

He launched his attack against a salient exposed by the president's Baltimore speech, and warned the business of the country that the administration's recent promises to both cannot be trusted after its record in the six power loan to China, its scandalous course in Santo Domingo, and its betrayal of legitimate American interests in Mexico.

The blows he dealt tonight against the weakness and bad faith of the administration followed his fighting tour of the day through Allegheny, Cattaraugus, and Chautauqua counties, where he spoke to 25,000 persons.

Puts Vigor Into Campaign.

The Hughes in action over the four counties and in Buffalo was a Hughes reinvigorated by a remarkable welcome in his home state and by the palpable fact that he has put into the Republican campaign in New York the punch it needed.

After responding to the cheers of 50,000 in the streets of Buffalo. He paraded the administration's broken promises in all their rags and tatters and then leveled his fire at the president's recent soothing assurances to business.

"When I speak of this record," he said, "I do not speak in disparagement of words. As a verbal administration, undoubtedly the administration has been most successful. But we desire performance. Our opponents have a great deal to say now in regard to the facilities for American enterprise and business protection of American trade. But in order to test these promises and professions we inquire with respect to the record that has been made in the past.

"Take, for example, the matter of the six powers' loan to China. There was afforded an opportunity by which our bankers could share to the extent of one-sixth in this loan. It was a matter of great moment to the nation, because it permitted an opportunity not only to China but to facilitate our trade.

"But when the present administration came into power and these bankers asked whether they would have the cooperation and protection of the administration they were informed in effect that the administration did not desire them to continue. We lost an opportunity for foreign trade."

Hits Diplomatic Policy.

Mr. Hughes came then to the course of his administration in wrecking the diplomatic service in Latin-American countries so as to give jobs to deserving Democrats, thereby injuring the United States in the esteem and respect of those countries and definitely crippling trade.

"It withdrew man after man from the nations in Latin-America, men who were well trained diplomats, well known for their experience and special fitness, in order to supply places and meet the demands of partisan expediency. It it very regrettable, indeed, that anything of that sort should happen in connection with Latin-America. Many men were removed to our serious injury.

"Our relations, our advantages, largely depend upon the prestige and influence of this nation.

Again Challenges Wilson.

Mr. Hughes for the third time challenged the president to deny his secret instructions to John Lind concerning Dictator Huerta of Mexico. After explaining that Mr. Wilson had interfered in Mexican politics and had intervened there to satisfy a vindictive dislike of Huerta, Mr. Hughes said of the Lind memorandum:

"What right had the president of the United States to send any such message as that?"

He said Mr. Wilson, after unseating Huerta, had first favored Villa, then Carranza.

"Who will it be next?" Mr. Hughes asked.

Mr. Hughes did not fail before this audience to arraign with the greatest severity the president's procedure in the passage of the Adamson bill, nor to apply his protection arguments to the concrete fact that the present prosperity is due to the war and cannot be made permanent.

Puts In Permanent Busy Day.

He left Hornell this morning at 8 o'clock. It was impossible for him to speak at length at many of the stops, but he managed to say just enough at most places to concentrate his arguments.

He appeared before large crowds at Andover, Wellsville, Friendship, Cuba, Olean, Salamanca, Randolph, Jamestown, Westfield, Fredonia, Silver Creek, and Dunkirk, crowds that applauded him heartily.

He was on old fighting ground, as he expressed it to several gatherings, and the inspiration that comes from speaking in friendly country fired all of his talks.

One hundred years ago last Friday Mrs. Ellen Callaghan of Spencer, Ia., was born and baptized Ellen Regan in County Cork, Ireland. In 1837, the year Michigan was admitted to the union, she was married to Daniel Callaghan. They had eight children, four of whom died in infancy. In September, 1860, the family came to America, locating first at Green Lake, Wis. Thirty-three years ago they again moved, this time to government lands in Clay county, Iowa, near the present site of the village of Royal. Five years ago Mrs. Callaghan took up her residence with her son John in Spencer. Her four surviving children are Owen, aged 77, and John, aged 68, of Spencer; Patrick, aged 75, of Sioux City, and Michael, aged 70, of San Diego. Patrick and Michael are both veterans of the civil war.

CONSERVATION GOES BEGGING UNDER WILSON

Influence of Administration Is Against Progressive Laws —Trusts Benefit.

ARTICLE NO. 13.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Except in a few instances President Wilson and his administration have thrown their influence against progressive measures providing for conservation of the nation's natural resources for the benefit of all the people.

Throughout the Wilson administration great water power, mining, lumber, and similar interests, powerfully aided by the administration and Democratic leaders, have been struggling to gain permanent control of priceless property of the nation or terms of special privilege.

They have been stubbornly fought by Progressive Republicans and a few Progressive Democrats, who have won some important victories, only to meet reverses as the administration gradually has surrendered to the special privilege interests.

Concession Seekers Winning.

Now the allied concession seekers are at the threshold of the victory which, with the assistance of the administration, they expect to achieve in the session of congress beginning next December.

With the steadily rising price of coal dimly shadowing forth the plight of future generations of the American people if they hand over to the trusts the resources on which they must fall back when fuel becomes scarce, the importance of the outcome of the contest in congress cannot be overestimated.

That contest next winter will decide whether the nation's natural resources are to be unlocked on terms of profitable private development, but still within complete control by the people, or unlocked and virtually given away forever to private exploitation.

Calls Self Conservationist.

In his campaign for election President Wilson represented himself as a strong conservationist, and the Democratic party at Baltimore had refused to include a plank in its platform indorsing the proposed relinquishment of the national forests to the western states.

For a time after he took office the president appeared to be sincerely devoted to his promised conservation program. He furthered the enactment of the Alaska railroad and Alaska coal land leasing laws, both favored by conservationists. Recently he again defended conservation by vetoing the municipal park bill, which would have permitted municipalities, even those organized for the purpose, to obtain national forest lands.

Aside from these instances the president has lent the influence of his administration to various schemes to hamstring conservation.

Shields Bill Is Defeated.

In the last congress the house committee on interstate commerce, after hearings at which the only witnesses were three water power lobbyists, favorably reported the Adamson bill to regulate water power in navigable streams. The bill gave the water power trust almost everything it wanted. It aroused a storm of disapproval in the house and the president was compelled to take a hand in the matter. He did not, however, compel the elimination of the provisions chiefly desired by the concession seekers.

The house rewrote the bill in a form satisfactory to the conservationists. In the senate committee the Progressive house bill was shelved in favor of the Shields bill, the principal provisions of which were suggested by Rome G. Brown of Minneapolis, a leading representative of water power interests. Secretary of War Garrison indorsed this measure, but the opposition of progressive Republicans prevented its passage.

In this congress the Shields bill was favorably reported to the senate without hearings. Mr. Garrison had withdrawn his previous indorsement of the measure.

While the bill was in progress of passage by the senate there congregated in Washington the most numerous and powerful lobby of water power officials and employés observed here in many a day. The Shields bill is now pending in the conference committee of the two houses.

The Ferris bill, a progressive conservation measure for leasing water power on public lands, was passed by the house in the last congress despite the strenuous opposition of the water power interests. It died in the senate for want of administration support. Secretary of the Interior Lane, who largely drafted the measure, did not even appear before the senate committee in its defense.

Ferris Bill Shelved.

In the present congress the Ferris bill again was passed by the house, but the senate committee substituted therefor the Myers bill, which not only favors the water power interests, but proposes to tear down all the safeguards thrown about hydro-electric resources by previous administrations in the forest service and interior department. The Myers bill, pending in the senate, is now an administration measure and has been indorsed by Secretary Lane, who repudiates his previous action in support of the Ferris bill. To the great joy of the water power trust, President Wilson himself indorsed the Myers bill in his speech of acceptance, thereby repudiating his previous messages to congress advocating the Ferris bill, which is favored by the conservationists.

What the Trust Wants.

The principal difference between the opposing forces in this contest is that the concession seekers want an indeterminate franchise, with little or no compensation to the government and providing that if the government ever takes over the plant it shall pay not only for the physical property but for the intangible value of the franchise the government itself has granted. The conservationists contend for revocable determinate franchises, with compensation to the government, providing for government purchase at a fair valuation, excluding intangible rights.

Several attempted raids on natural resources have been blocked by exposures engineered by Gifford Pinchot. In 1914 Secretary Garrison recommended the passage of Senator Martin's bill for a concession of water power rights in the Roanoke river. Mr. Pinchot exposed this as a vicious project, similar to those concessions blocked by Roosevelt and Taft vetoes. Mr. Garrison promptly withdrew his approval, saying he had given it unwittingly.

Trusts Well Intrenched.

Secretary Garrison's repudiation of his approval of two measures sought by the water power interests indicated that the hydro-electric trust is strongly intrenched in the war department and able repeatedly to "put it over" the secretary.

Even the most vital needs of the government in maintaining adequate national defense are now threatened with sacrifice because of the attitude of the president. The Phelan bill proposes to hand over to powerful oil interests valuable public oil lands, including those reserved for the navy. Secretary Lane is backing the measure. Attorney General Gregory and Secretary of the Navy Daniels are opposing it, the latter stating that the mere threat of its passage has caused the navy department to consider the advisability of abandoning the construction of oil burning warships, which are entirely dependent upon an unlimited supply of oil. Without oil burning warships and plenty of oil the enlarged navy provided by congress would be practically useless. The president has stood aloof from this cabinet split on conservation and has done nothing to prevent the passage of the Phelan bill, which its sponsors hope to accomplish at the next session.

Radium Lands Lost.

The endeavor to procure legislation proposed in 1914 by the administration to conserve the radium deposits on public lands, particularly for use in the treatment of tuberculosis, was a complete failure. Secretary Lane, saying it meant "life and death to thousands," joined the conservationists in its support. Powerful interests, working through certain Democratic leaders, blocked the Foster bill in the house until it was dropped, and similarly caused the shelving of an already emasculated bill in the senate. The administration surrendered, and, by the time the proposed legislation had been squelched, it was found that its enemies had obtained title to practically all the radium bearing public lands.

HUGHES' ONE AIM ELECTION, VANCE M'CORMICK CHARGES.

Talks to Please People, No Matter How Inconsistent He May Be, Democratic Chairman Says.

New York, Sept. 30.—Vance C. McCormick, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said tonight:

"Mr. Hughes once more compels us to infer that he has no further purpose and policy in the campaign than the desire to be elected. He now declares that he believes in the principle of the eight hour day. If so, why does he object to the eight hour law? It is merely the embodiment of the principle which he indorses. Does the Republican nominee favor a principle and object to its expression? He has said that he believes in deeds, and not words. Would he make an exception here?

"I believe, however, that the real reason for Mr. Hughes' seeming inconsistency is that he has suddenly 'seen a light.' He has the opportunist type of mind to a highly developed degree, and he here again says what he thinks the people would like to hear him say. His conversion to the eight hour day need not surprise any one."

Fined on Serious Charge.

William Martin, 46 years old, was fined $100 and costs yesterday by Judge Sullivan on a serious charge. Miss Josephine Peebles, 20 years old, whose mother conducts a restaurant at 7029 North Clark street, testified he attempted to attack her in her room about a month ago.

NEW YORK CURB ODDS ON HUGHES LENGTHEN TO 5 TO 2

John Corcoran of Chicago Takes Long End of $25,000 to $10,000 Republican Candidate Wins.

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—One of the curb runners reported today in behalf of an outside broker named Ketcham that he had placed a bet of $10,000 on Wilson against $25,000 on Hughes, and that John Corcoran, a Chicago sporting man, had taken the long end of the wager.

L. J. Stokes was offering $1,000 on Wilson against $2,400 on Hughes, which represents odds of 5 against 12. In addition to this Stokes had $5,000 to bet on Wilson against $12,500 on Hughes.

Edward McQuade had little Wilson money, but at the same time had commissions aggregating $20,000 to bet on Hughes at odds of 2 to 1.

FISHER TO REPRESENT CITY

He Will Be Special Counsel in Traction and Subway Commission.

Fisher as special attorney for the Chicago Traction and Subway commission, in accordance with a resolution adopted by the council local transportation committee last June. Mr. Fisher is to receive $100 a day for office work and $1[illegible] a day and expenses while outside.

All Aims of Automobile Industry Achieved

¶ The Owen Magnetic is the one car in the world which fully embodies all the greatest ideals for which the automobile industry has been striving through the years.

¶ Ease of control, elasticity of power, constant torque, smooth riding—others have sought to gain these by multiplying cylinders and by other devices which merely minimized the imperfections of geared transmission.

¶ In the Owen Magnetic all these ends are attained at one stroke through the wonderful MAGNETIC transmission which does away with the whole bunglesome, clanging machinery of gears, gear shifts, clutch and clumsy levers. Instead of three or four speeds you have a thousand speeds—the power turns on and off like water.

¶ The whole car is in keeping with this great magnetic unit. It has all the best features found on other high grade cars—and more. It is the only gas car in the world which has an electric brake. This and the self-starting mechanism are combined with the magnetic transmission in one simple, dependable unit.

¶ It has a powerful six-cylinder engine and Coach-Work which may be compared only to the finest European styles.

¶ Models on exhibition—or Made-to-Order. Limousine, Town Car and Landau Models from $4200 to $5000. Touring Cars and Roadsters from $3150 to $3750. Demonstration by appointment.

CUNNEA ASSAILS HOYNE'S RECORD AS PROSECUTOR

Socialist Candidate Opens the Campaign with Broadside at His 1912 Rival.

In opening his campaign for the state's attorneyship on the Socialist ticket last night William A. Cunnea completely ignored Harry B. Miller, the Republican candidate, and spent the greater part of his time assailing the Hoyne régime. His attacks were directed especially at Hoyne's treatment of labor cases.

Mr. Cunnea, along with half a dozen of the most distinguished Socialists in America, spoke at two schools on the northwest side, the Sabin at Hirsch and Leavitt streets and the Columbus at Leavitt and Augusta. The audiences jammed both halls and overflow crowds of 2,000 filled the streets in front of each school.

Charges He Was Counted Out.

"Mr. Hoyne, your state's attorney, who won his office only by counting me out four years ago, demanded bail of $15,000 for every man indicted in the so-called labor conspiracy cases," said Mr. Cunnea. "And when a few weeks after he was bailed out, Axel Alex, the lather, was murdered in cold blood by a Negro nonunion man, Mr. Hoyne let him go in bonds of $10,000.

"When Mr. Hoyne had enough evidence to indict the garment manufacturers for conspiracy in hiring sluggers to serve their ends, he failed to obtain indictments. He had no trouble indicting and prosecuting lathers and painters and machinists, but he found it impossible to act against Kuppenheimer and Abt and the Meyer brothers."

Mr. Cunnea concluded with the statement that this year he will not be counted out, because since the last election of a state's attorney the Socialist party has developed enough strength in Chicago to make such tactics impossible.

Socialist Congressman Talks.

Meyer London, Socialist congressman from New York, was among the other speakers.

"There is no difference between the old parties," he said, "except that one has nominated Hughes, who has whiskers, and the other Wilson, who hasn't any. No voter can vote intelligently on the woman suffrage planks the two old parties adopted. The only real issue is between the workers, who want more wages, and the employers, who want to pay less."

State Representative Christian Madsen of the Twenty-first district was applauded for more than five minutes at both schools. Ald. Rodriguez was also enthusiastically received.

DRYS WIN IN MISSOURI; TO VOTE ON AMENDMENT

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 30.—The Supreme court today overruled Secretary of State Roach in his action of rejecting the prohibition amendment from the official ballot.

An order of the court was issued directing him to certify out the proposed amendment to the various counties for publication and to place the proposition upon the official ballot for the November election.

The ruling opinion in the case was not filed. It will come later. Chief Justice Woodson and Judge Graves dissented, but they were overruled by Judges Faris, Walker, Bond, and Blair. Judge Revelle is out of the city.

OPEN ELECTRIC SERVICE FROM LOOP TO WAUKEGAN.

Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Train Leaves City at 4:10, Arriving Before 6.

Waukegan became a potential part of Chicago this morning when the first through special of the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Electric railway left the Jackson boulevard terminal over the loop tracks at 4:10 o'clock and arrived in Waukegan before 6 o'clock.

The service, under the direction of Britton I. Budd, president under the new management, will be broadened until consistent "loop and north shore" service has been established.

The first train will be the "newspaper special," in which the final editions of newspapers will be carried through to Waukegan without a halt. Heretofore THE TRIBUNE, for example, has been carried on the Northwestern steam railway. This morning is the first delivery on the new electric schedule. THE TRIBUNE's city edition will hereafter be on Waukegan breakfast tables before 6 o'clock.

The Budd management also has announced a new Chicago-Milwaukee service, with dining and parlor cars.

FAIRBANKS ON THE STUMP.

Hughes' Running Mate, in Utah, Says Democrats Disregard Pledge of Economy.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 30.—Charges that the Democratic pledge of economy in government had been utterly disregarded and that the administration had indulged in extravagance without a parallel were made by Charles W. Fairbanks in his two addresses here this afternoon.

MRS. HARTWELL'S ROMANCE NO. 2 NEARING AN END

Judge Indicates He'll Grant Former Nellie Ingal a Decree from "Gentleman Burglar."

Mrs. Nellie D. Kenner Ingal-Alexander-Hartwell, the last two names representing marriages (the others her own), will get her divorce from Roy S. Hartwell, alleged "gentleman burglar," it was indicated yesterday by Judge Denis Sullivan.

Detectives still are searching for Hartwell, who is accused of passing a forged check on his mother-in-law, for which he is indicted in New York, and for burglaries of which he is accused in New York state.

Mrs. Hartwell's life has not been lacking in romances. In 1912, when she was a law student in Northwestern university, she met and was courted by "Lord" Thomas B. Henry. This affair lost its zest when Henry was arrested for irregularities in a real estate way and was given a police character.

Later she met Edward I. Alexander Jr., a Chicago lawyer. They were married, but divorced because they couldn't get along.

On March 31, 1915, she married Hartwell. The wedding took place in Hudson, N. Y., and they made their home in Poughkeepsie in the Ingal summer home. It was charged that Hartwell made the proposition that he "jimmy" his father-in-law's front door, upon which evidence burglary insurance might be collected. This was rejected, whereupon Hartwell is said to have robbed a number of country places along the Hudson.

The Ingal Chicago residence is at 1122 Bryn Mawr avenue.

DANIELS WINDS UP TOUR.

Adrian, Mich., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Secretary Daniels of the navy concluded his tour of Michigan with an address before 1,500 Democrats here tonight. Delegations of Democrats from Jackson, Monroe, Ann Arbor, and Detroit, Mich., were on hand. Mr. Daniels left tonight for Chicago.

CHICAGO NAMED AN AERO STATION

U. S. Aviation School Assured—Machines Sent to Teach Flying.

STUDENTS FOR RESERVE

Information that Chicago has been selected as the site for one of the three United States army aviation schools and that two aeroplanes have already arrived was given out by Capt. J. C. Morrow of the United States signal corps, in charge of aviation in the central department. The other two schools, both of which already have been established, are at San Diego, Cal., and Mineola, Long Island, N. Y.

"By an arrangement with the Aero Club of Illinois," said Capt. Morrow, "the United States was going to use the club's aviation field at Ashburn, Ill., for one of its aviation schools.

Get Two Curtiss Machines.

"Last Thursday we received two Curtiss tractor aeroplanes to be used in instructing aviators, and next Monday we will receive two more. Arrangements have been made to start active work on the field Monday, and I have hired several civilian mechanics to overhaul all machines and get them in working order.

"Later, after the school has been developed, this work will be done by skilled mechanics from the regular army. A number of steel portable houses, to be used for storehouses, shops, offices, and hangars, are also on the way and will be here shortly."

Students to Join Reserve Corps.

Students who will receive instruction at the school, the captain explained, will be enrolled in the reserve corps when they are proficient.

"In a few days I expect to receive 500 copies of instructions, which fully describe the whole matter. The applicants will make application to Washington, their qualifications will be passed on, and then they will be given a stiff mental, moral, and physical examination. Those who pass will be given an opportunity to learn flying under government instruction and at government expense.

"Last of all, here is a point I want you to get right, and that is the name. The school will be the United States Aviation station and is not connected in any way with the militia or state organizations."

TRIAL MARRIAGE QUITE THE THING IN FAR NORTH

Movie Camera Man Does Not Mean Evanston—He Refers to Latitude 72.

George H. Wilkins of London, a member of the just completed Canadian government arctic expedition that spent three years under Steffansson and Anderson, explorers, arrived in Chicago yesterday loaded with films and trophies of all sorts from the terra incognita of Coronation gulf and vicinity.

"The blonde Eskimos, as they are called," said Mr. Wilkins, "are very interesting people. There is no regular marriage ceremony and polygamy prevails in a good many tribes, but the trial marriage is everywhere recognized as legitimate.

"The girls are by no means without fascination. They are a bit chunky, perhaps, for our ideal, but one gets accustomed to their physical type before long and learns to appreciate their kindliness. I never met kinder or more loyal friends in any part of the world.

"There is one idea that ought to be exploded. We read in books of exploration that the Eskimos go to bed all standing—that is with their clothes on. Well, the fact is they invariably sleep absolutely naked, men and women. The snowhouses are so hot inside when they get those oil lamps going that nobody could wear any clothing.

"When our first winter overtook us on Minto Inlet we went into winter quarters with some of the Eskimos to show us the ropes. The autumn is their time for weddings and most of the girls get married between the ages of 15 and 16. They pick a man they want and go ask him to marry them, or the man may do the asking.

"If there is trouble the girl goes back to her people, or she need not do so. The man may take another wife, and, for that matter, two more, and the wives seem to live together in harmony. I lived with one man who had three wives and with one woman who had two husbands. The woman who had two husbands always managed to keep one of them out fishing a good part of the time. She didn't seem to care which one."

DRY CANDIDATES CHEERED IN NINE KANSAS TOWNS.

J. Frank Hanly Meets Old Friend Who Hired Him as Teacher in Illinois Years Ago.

Wichita, Kas., Sept. 30.—Dusty and weary after a hard day's campaigning in nine Kansas towns, the Prohibition national candidates came into Wichita tonight, well pleased with the prospects of a Sunday rest.

Kansas crowds were not large today, but they applauded enthusiastically. Both J. Frank Hanly and Ira Landrith, candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency, respectively, devoted themselves to urging Kansas to "pass the good things around" by helping the nation to attain the dry state that it has experienced for thirty-four years.

Among those who attended the local meeting tonight was A. L. Johnson of Kingman, who years ago hired Hanly off a ditching job back in Alvin, Ill., to teach school. Johnson beamed tonight as he told how he carried the fight in Hanly's behalf to victory over another school trustee who did not like the applicant's appearance in muddy boots and overalls.

AN INVITATION

You are invited to attend an exhibit of

The ROAMER

America's Smartest Car to be held in the Elizabethan Room in the CONGRESS HOTEL and ANNEX
Michigan Avenue at Congress from October second to seventh,
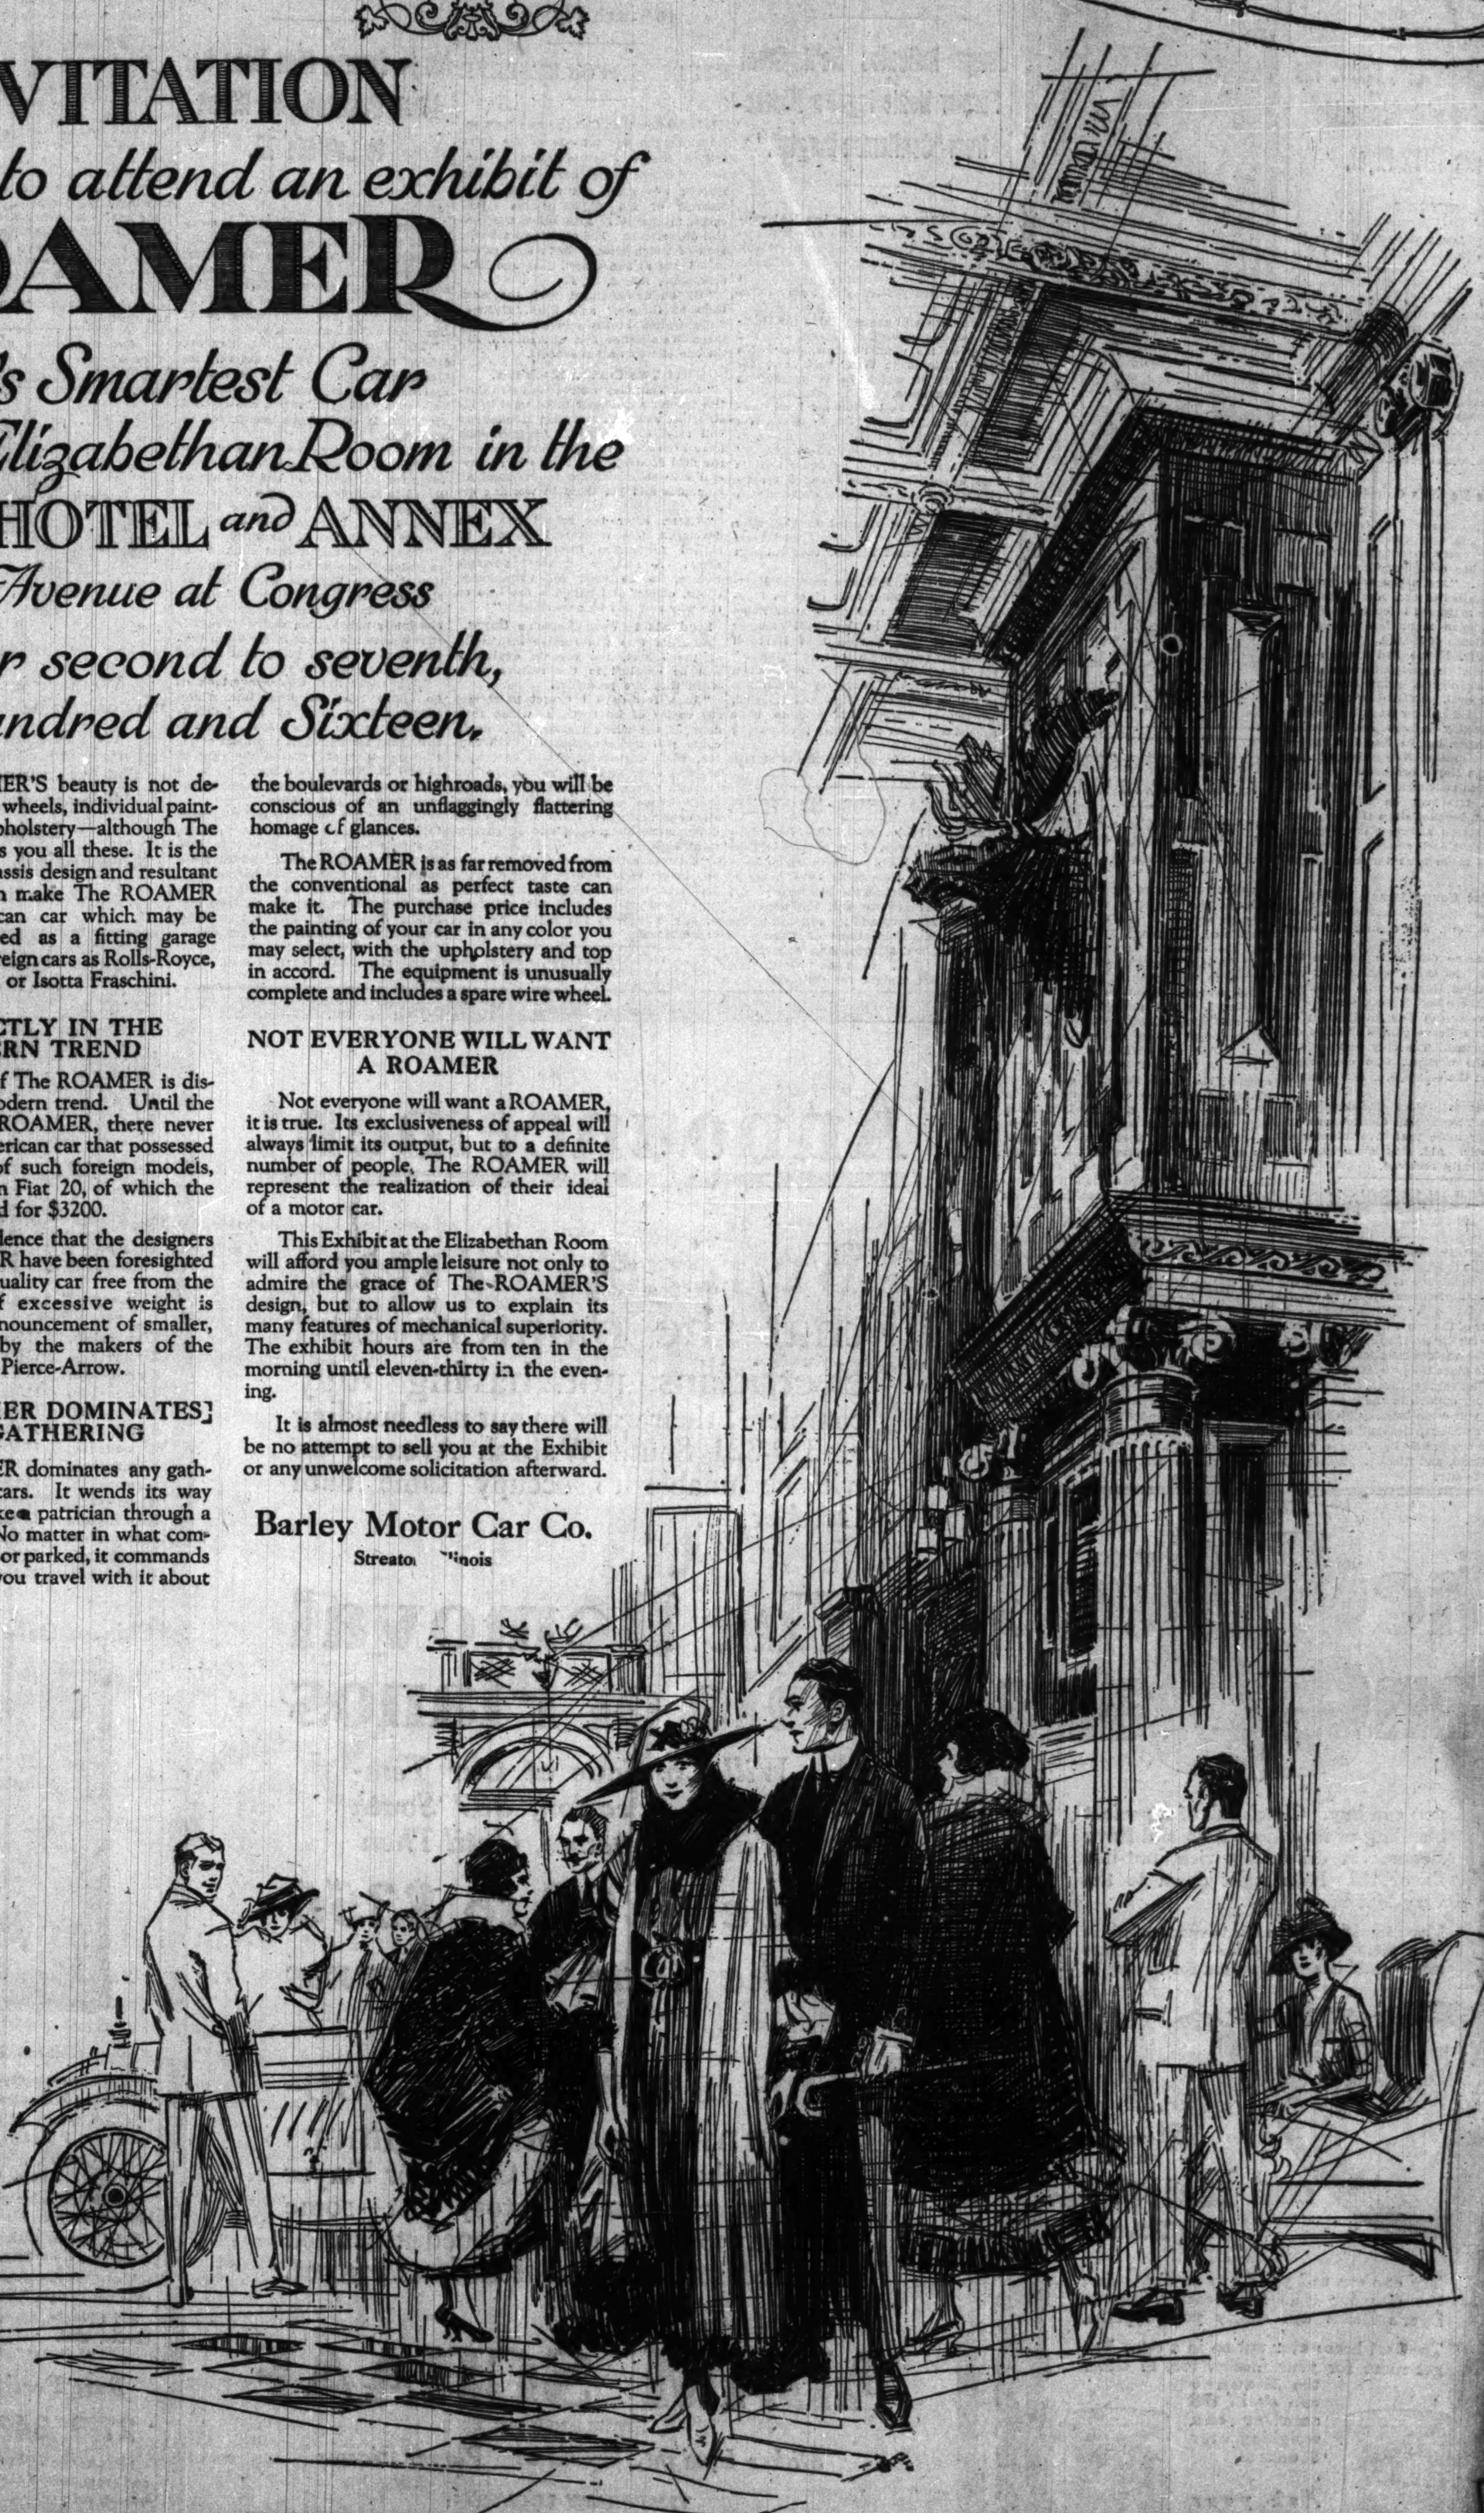
Nineteen Hundred and Sixteen.



THIS EXHIBIT of The ROAMER marks a most radical departure in motor car merchandising but The ROAMER justifies it because you could ransack the country and not find another car like it—there never has been an American car as distinctly beautiful as The ROAMER.

Year after year this car or that car has been heralded as the "most beautiful" until today it may be difficult to make you believe these definite assertions, but the proof of them lies in a single glance at any one of the eight ROAMER cars which will be displayed in the Elizabethan Room this week.

IT IS NOT DIFFICULT TO BUILD A GOOD AUTOMOBILE

There are a number of automobiles in the United States which are as well built as The ROAMER, because it is no difficult matter to build a good automobile when it is to be sold above a certain price. But the building of beautiful motor cars—unless prohibitively priced—has been a neglected art in this country. We mean beauty of distinction—of individuality, of personality.

The beauty of The ROAMER is inherent and intrinsic. Who can describe the graceful tilt of a beautiful woman's chin? The sweeping symmetry of a yacht, the care-free swerve of surf on the sand—all these epitomize the same mastery of design which identifies The ROAMER.

The ROAMER'S beauty is not dependent on wire wheels, individual painting or special upholstery—although The ROAMER offers you all these. It is the fundamental chassis design and resultant body lines which make The ROAMER the one American car which may be rightly considered as a fitting garage mate for such foreign cars as Rolls-Royce, Simplex, Lancia, or Isotta Fraschini.

DISTINCTLY IN THE MODERN TREND

The design of The ROAMER is distinctly in the modern trend. Until the advent of The ROAMER, there never has been an American car that possessed the advantages of such foreign models, say, as the Italian Fiat 20, of which the chassis alone sold for $3200.

Another evidence that the designers of The ROAMER have been foresighted in producing a quality car free from the disadvantages of excessive weight is shown in the announcement of smaller, lighter models by the makers of the Locomobile and Pierce-Arrow.

THE ROAMER DOMINATES ANY GATHERING

The ROAMER dominates any gathering of motor cars. It wends its way through traffic like a patrician through a drawing room. No matter in what company it is driven or parked, it commands admiration. If you travel with it about the boulevards or highroads, you will be conscious of an unflaggingly flattering homage of glances.

The ROAMER is as far removed from the conventional as perfect taste can make it. The purchase price includes the painting of your car in any color you may select, with the upholstery and top in accord. The equipment is unusually complete and includes a spare wire wheel.

NOT EVERYONE WILL WANT A ROAMER

Not everyone will want a ROAMER, it is true. Its exclusiveness of appeal will always limit its output, but to a definite number of people. The ROAMER will represent the realization of their ideal of a motor car.

This Exhibit at the Elizabethan Room will afford you ample leisure not only to admire the grace of The ROAMER'S design, but to allow us to explain its many features of mechanical superiority. The exhibit hours are from ten in the morning until eleven-thirty in the evening.

It is almost needless to say there will be no attempt to sell you at the Exhibit or any unwelcome solicitation afterward.

WEST OFF TODAY TO GIVE JURORS BLACKMAIL DATA

Appears Tuesday as New York Witness—Sure He'll Testify Against Miss Godman.

LONG BELIEVED HER LOYAL.

Edward R. West of Highland Park will leave for New York today to appear on Tuesday before the grand jury as the chief witness against the members of the blackmail syndicate who swindled him out of $15,000.

The preliminary hearing of the men and women arrested for the West swindle and in the raid on the Tyson apartments in Grand boulevard, which was set for tomorrow before United States Commissioner Mark A. Foote, will be continued ten days to await action in New York.

Buda Godman, the beautiful "lure" of the band in fleecing the wealthy Chicago man, it was said yesterday, had been West's friend for three years.

That Touch of Romance.

Affairs of the blackmail syndicate touched the edges of romance in Mr. West's admittedly serious regard for this Lorelei of the red lights. His faith in her died hard.

Just before he concluded to make a clean breast to the authorities one of his friends did his best to disillusion him regarding the true character of the woman who had woven her witcheries about him.

"I saw Buda Godman last night," the friend told West during a midday business lunch. "She was in a café below the dead line with a young fellow with a police record known as 'Jimmy' Christian. I was informed that she was living with him."

Forthwith Mr. West called upon the fascinating Miss Godman and to her face charged her with unfaithfulness.

"I met this man Christian," said the beauty affecting disdain, "while on a slumming tour with a party of friends. Of course, I never associate with such people."

With this falsehood she soothed his injured feelings and covered up her defection. Mr. West believed her. At the time, it is said, Christian had been her paramour for many months. Their affair had begun a little after Mr. West's romance had reached its apex last March, when he took out a license to wed his inamorata of the double life.

Couldn't Convince Him.

When the scales had begun to fall from West's eyes and he broached his suspicions that he had been robbed to Col. Milton G. Foreman and Egbert Robertson the lawyers could not convince him that Buda Godman had been a party to the blackmail conspiracy.

A little later, in the office of Hinton G. Clabaugh, chief investigator of the department of justice, Mr. West identified the pictures of Homer T. French, George Irwin, and Doc Brady as the men who had swindled him. Still he would not believe the woman he once had planned to make his wife had betrayed him into the hands of thieves.

For hours Mr. Clabaugh worked with him to prove the woman was hand in glove with one of the boldest gangs of criminals in the country. It was only after Mr. Clabaugh had read letter after letter from Jimmy Christian to Miss Godman and as many from her to him that the deluded man awoke at last to the truth.

It is said Mr. West had an engagement to visit Miss Godman Sunday afternoon. Her arrest on Saturday night broke the appointment.

Looks Over Transom.

Mr. West visited the federal building yesterday on a mission of identification. At the government's request he identified Homer French and Miss Godman in person.

His visit was marked by a strange occurrence. He was not confronted with Miss Godman. He mounted a chair and looked through a glass transom at the woman he once loved as she sat in Mr. Clabaugh's office, unconscious of his scrutiny. Why? That is Mr. Clabaugh's secret. The federal official denied that he feared Mr. West's determination to testify against the woman might break down if he were introduced into her presence and came once more under the spell that had meant disaster in the past.

Certainly no such scruples prevented Mr. West's being introduced face to face to Homer French.

"That's Fillmore," said Mr. West as he bent upon French a pair of eyes that snapped with hatred. "How do you do, Mr. French? I 'got mine,' thanks to you and your gang, but it is with great happiness that I inform you that you will 'get yours.'"

Raid Trio Released.

John E. Lawrence, alias Jack Kenny, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Golden, arrested in a raid on a rooming house at [illegible] Calumet avenue, were released in the afternoon on bonds. Kenny was allowed to go on his own recognizance after signing a $1,000 bond. Golden's bond was $3,500 and his wife's $2,500. Mr. Clabaugh said he had no evidence that they were blackmailers, but were friends of members of the blackmail syndicate.

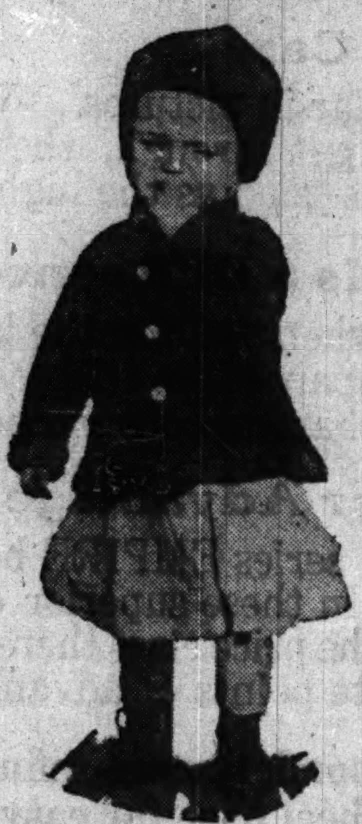
Morphine valued at $1,200 was found in their possession; also a counterfeit "bank roll" such as is used by bunko men and wire tappers. Seventy-one dollars in good money formed the outside layers. The core was of spurious bills across which were printed "Phoney Money. You Can't Pass Me." The three were put under bonds for violation of the Harrison anti-drug law.

Kenny once played first base on the Brooklyn baseball team.

It was reported in police circles that two Municipal court judges had been blackmailed. Mr. Clabaugh said he had heard of no such cases.

LOST OR LEFT?

This Young Man, 2 Years Old, Probably Is Wondering Whether He Has Lost a Home or Has Found One.



He isn't old enough to tell his name. He is 2 years old, and he was left yesterday in a meat market at 710 West Fourteenth place. The woman who left him spoke Polish and wore a shawl about her head and shoulders. The butcher brought the little fellow to the Maxwell street station and asked permission to adopt him. And that's where matters now stand. The boy wears a red stocking cap, a dark coat, black stockings, and shoes.

ESTATE OF $125,000 LEFT BY WILLIAM J. CALHOUN.

Widow and Two Daughters of Former Minister to China Chief Beneficiaries Under Will.

The will of William J. Calhoun, former United States minister to China, was filed for probate yesterday and described an estate valued at $125,000. The beneficiaries, in equal shares, are his widow, Mrs. Lucy Calhoun of 1310 Astor street, and his two daughters, Mrs. Marion Stanwood of Paultney, Va., and Corinne Gray of Dedham, Mass.

Mr. Calhoun bequeathed to his widow his collection of Chinese paintings, prints, and sketches, and the silks, tapestries, rugs, and bric-a-brac acquired during his sojourn in China. He also gave to his widow the insignia conferred on him by the Chinese government, called the Order of the Golden Sheaf.

To his nephew, Donald H. Mann, he left all his law books. The Central Trust company was appointed executor of the estate.

INCREASE AUTO BUSINESS 150 PER CENT IN FIVE YEARS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Manufactures of automobiles and automobile parts showed an increase of 153.9 per cent in the five years from 1909 to 1914. Preliminary statistics of the 1914 manufactures census announced today by Samuel L. Rogers, director of the census, shows the value of those products in 1914 was $632,831,000, an increase of $383,629,000 over 1909.

Persons engaged in the industry numbered 145,951, an increase of 71 per cent over 1909. Capital invested amounted to $407,730,000, an increase of 134.5 per cent, and wages paid aggregated $139,453,000, an increase of 139.7 per cent.

Materials cost $356,206,000, an increase of 170.6 per cent, and value added by manufacture was $276,623,000.

NO ELEVATORS FOR THEM.

Ohio Brother and Sister Climb Eight Flights Rather than Trust Selves to Lifts.

Elevators are tabooed by M. C. Riessen and his sister, Miss C. H. Riessen of Napoleon, O., who registered at the Auditorium hotel last night. They refused to ride in an elevator to their rooms on the eighth floor.

"Never rid in them and don't intend to now," was the declaration of Miss Riessen, to Clerk Edward Flynn, who handed the keys to the "bellman" and told him to "walk them up to 833 and 839."

Each insisted on a piece of paper with the room numbers plainly written thereon.

"Sister might get away from me," explained Riessen, "and if I could not find her we could remember our rooms by this paper."

He was told the keys bore the room number as also did the doors, but the writen numbers were demanded.

RISKS HER LIFE FOR MAN.

Miss Bettie Rose of Hammond Stops Bullet with Her Body.

Miss Bettie Rose of Hammond, who is claimed as his wife by Herbert Koch, is near death from a bullet wound she received when she stepped in to save Koch.

Koch followed Miss Rose and Andrew Sedor to Whiting, and there the trio engaged in a quarrel. Policeman Jonas interfered, and Koch threatened to shoot him. As Jonas drew his revolver Miss Rose threw herself in front of Koch and stoped the bullet with her body.

She was hurried to a hospital, and it is said she probably will die.

NEW YORK CITY FACES PERIL OF A MILK FAMINE

Break Between Producers and Distributors—Pigs, Not the Children, to Get Supply.

SHORTAGE 2,000,000 QUARTS

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Unless the big milk companies can get milk from Canada, Pennsylvania, and other distant points New York City and the metropolitan district will receive only 15 per cent of its usual supply tomorrow night, for the long threatened break between producers and distributors has been precipitated.

As a result, 2,000,000 quarts of milk will be made into butter and cheese or fed to the pigs, regardless of the need of the invalids, children, innocent victims of the milk situation.

Dealers Balk Producers.

The large distributors, such as Bordens, Sheffield, and the Mutual-McDermott concerns, refused today to sign contracts with the Dairymen's league, the organization of 17,000 producers who control 1,000,000 cows. It was their last day, and five officers of the league sat for hours waiting in vain for overtures in the office of State Food Commissioner John J. Dillon on Franklin street.

The milk companies held out for their right to make contracts with individual dairymen, offering them in some instances more for milk than the latter had demanded. But the dairymen were determined to stand by agreements they had made among themselves not to consider offers unless coming through the dairymen's league.

Up to Health Department.

Commissioner Dillon, who has fostered the league of dairymen and whose office, he says, demands of him constant effort to better conditions of the producers and consumers, declared the only thing that will save the consumers from suffering is the temporary suspension of regulations by the health department.

"Since the distributors refuse to deal with appointed representatives of the producers the milk famine is here, and will be felt by Tuesday, unless Commissioner Emerson gives relief," Mr. Dillon said. "Two years ago raw milk from inspected farms was allowed to enter New York. Dairymen can bring it here again, and the consumers in the crisis can pasteurize it themselves, if the regulation demanding that milk go through this process at plants upstate be suspended."

Calls Condition Serious.

Commissioner Emerson declared the subject was too serious to trifle with and that he intends to enforce the regulations.

He refused to consider the proposition offered by Mr. Dillon. At the same time, Mr. Dillon declares, it allows the commissioner's inspectors to be lax in their watch on milk brought by the big concerns from uninspected farms in Canada and Pennsylvania.

Contracts with hospitals and other institutions and with hotels and restaurants will receive first consideration, the big distributors said, but the fact that none of the companies will get more than 3 per cent of their milk supply from usual sources will cause trouble in meeting these demands. Service to families will be curtailed at first and then stopped altogether.

CARRANZA LIMITS THE TERM OF PRESIDENT TO 4 YEARS.

Decree to Apply After Holding of Constitutional Assembly and Election of Chief Magistrate.

Mexico City, Sept. 30.—Carranza, the provisional president of Mexico, today issued a decree limiting the term of a president of the republic to four years and providing for reelection of the chief executive. This is to apply after the holding of the constitutional assembly and subsequent to the election of a president.

The decree provides that if a president dies the man who fills out his term shall not be eligible for election for another term until a period of four years has elapsed. The man to fill out the term of a president who dies or leaves office is chosen by a two-thirds vote of congress, if that legislative body is in session. If not, a permanent commission shall designate the man until congress convenes.

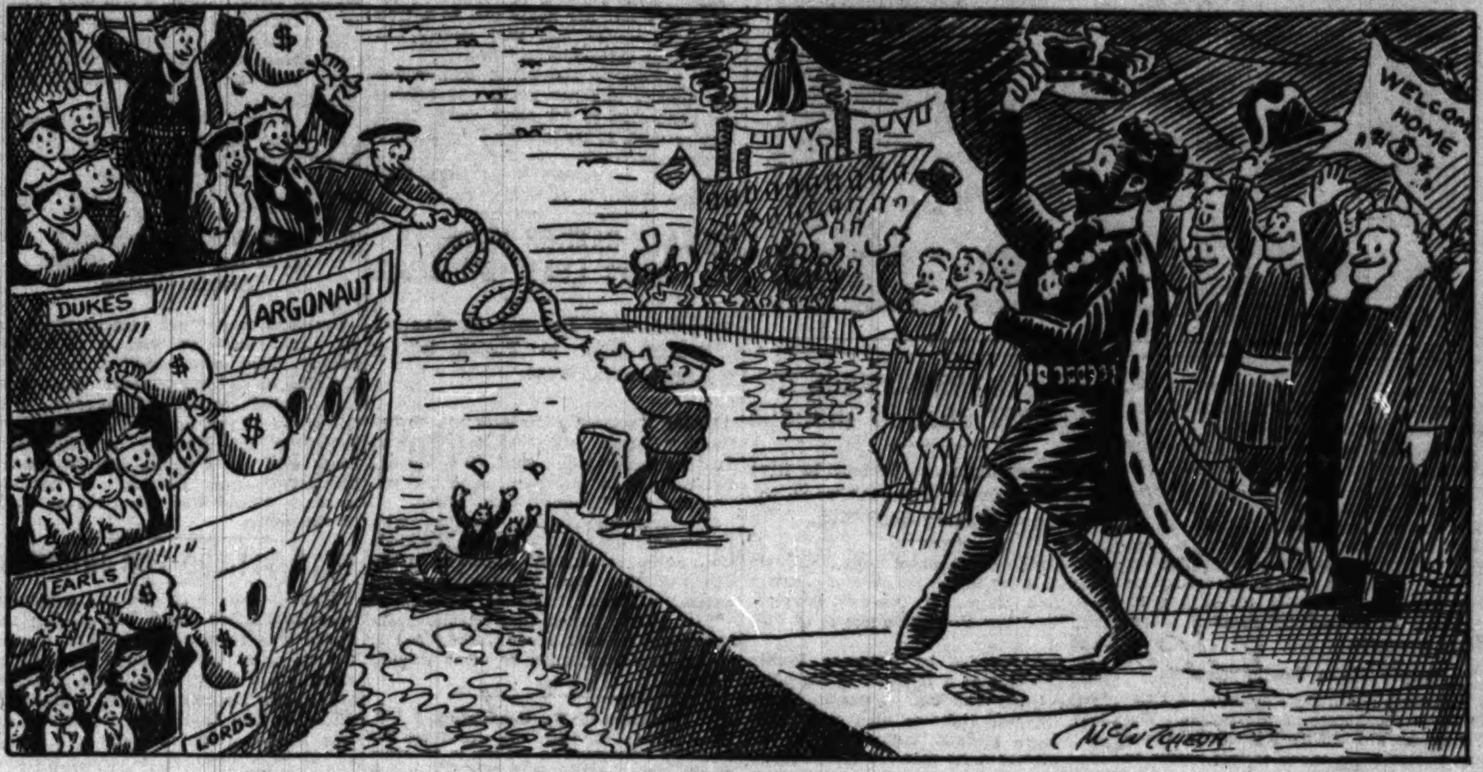
AIR TRAVEL WILL BE SAFE?

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—John Wilson of Franklin, Pa., cousin of President Wilson, announced today the completion of tests of a recently invented stabilizer which, he declares, makes aerial navigation as safe as either steamship or automobile travel. The first public demonstration of the invention, which is the property of W. J. Macy, an electrical engineer of Chicago, will be given at the Hempstead plains (L. I.) aviation field.

THE GOLDEN FLEECE

An After the War Romance.

[Copyright: 1916: By John T. McCutcheon.]



SYNOPSIS OF THE PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

The King is distressed by the vacuum in the treasury and sends for the Lord High Chancellor of the Exchequer. The latter proposes a plan for the swift recovery of most of the vast wealth that has been spent for supplies in America. The King approves the plan and sends for the Lord High Commander of All the Land and Naval Forces of the Empire. When the Lord High Commander appears the King discloses the plan. The commander is thunderstruck, as well he might be. The King orders the Lord High Commander to assemble all the armed forces of the empire in front of the palace and when they are all there he goes out on the balcony and begins to address them. The King addresses the assembled land and naval forces in front of his palace and then selects from them one hundred men whom he lines up before him. He then draws his sword and advances toward them. A shudder of horror goes up from the assembled legions.

CHAPTER IV.

The King, with drawn sword, advanced toward the hundred men whom he had selected from all the Land and Naval Forces of the Empire. His demeanor was determined but not menacing. He stopped before the first man in the line, and, raising his sword, brought it down smartly upon the head of the soldier.

"I name you Duke of the Realm!" said the King, as the man rubbed his head in surprise. A symbol of the ducal rank was hung around the neck of the newly acclaimed peer.

Then the king stepped to the next man and tapped him on the head with his sword.

"I name you Duke of the Dominion!" he said, and conferred a like symbol upon him.

Then, from one to the next, the King proceeded down the line of one hundred men. They were the handsomest in the service. Some were tall and handsome, some were short and handsome, some were thin and handsome, and some were thick and handsome. There were handsome men to suit all possible tastes.

Twenty dukes were named. Some were newly created and some were appointed to dukedoms whose holders and line of succession had been destroyed in the war.

In like manner were named twenty marquesses and earls, twenty viscounts, twenty lords, and twenty knights.

"My lords," said the King, when he had finished the investiture of rank, "you have been selected as my army to invade America, and, by conquest, bring back the billions of gold which the Americans have wrung from us. Your duty will be a highly patriotic one, and one which I hope will prove to be as pleasant as it will be easy.

"The great flood of money," he continued, "which we have spent in America has lodged almost entirely in the hands of a hundred Yankee families. They have yanked our legs to the limit." The King smiled at his little joke and after a short time many others joined him. "The whole United States has enjoyed a wartime prosperity in which wages have struggled to keep up with the cost of living. But the rich fruits have been garnered by the few. In the hands of this small and favored class has fallen 90 per cent of the golden deluge. A hundred families have gotten the lion's share, and that's the share that the lion must get back. Perhaps you begin to catch the drift of my idea?"

A broad smile of comprehension rippled on every face. In many cases it was almost a grin.

"You will be supplied with a list of the hundred richest heiresses in the United States. They are to be your prospective war brides. The dukes will be assigned to the ones whose fortunes exceed two hundred millions, the earls and marquesses will take those ranging between one hundred and two hundred millions, and the others will capture the small fry of heiresses under the hundred million mark.

"Each man will be given the name of a certain heiress and care has been taken that appropriate pairings be arranged. Stout dukes for stout heiresses, thin lords for scrawny heiresses, and so on. Each man will be supplied with specifications, including weight, complexion, favorite flower, etc."

The King stepped back and shouted, "Forward march!" and the hundred peers marched to a steamship that was anchored near by. Loud cheers swelled up from the great crowds as the steamer warped out into the channel. Whistles were blown and government 2 per cents advanced two points before tea time. Hope was high that the crippled finances of the realm would soon be restored to healthy normality again.

In two weeks the invading force began sending back their first communiques. Many engagements were reported with easy victories all along the Gold Coast of America. Great crowds watched the bulletin boards and burst into cheers as each new engagement was announced. When the engagement of the Duke of Cairo to Miss Ingot appeared in a communique, a half holiday was given to all the school children and the flag was hoisted up six feet higher on the National Treasury flagstaff. And when the cablegram came with the news that all the hundred heiresses had capitulated, the joy in the empire was boundless!

The King himself met the ship when it returned with the victorious invaders and their trophies and, in a few well chosen words, he delivered an address of welcome to the seven billion dollars which the raiders had acquired.

The next day consols rose twenty points and the National Treasury was saved!

THE END.

TORTURE METHODS CHARGED TO EAST CHICAGO POLICE.

Attorney Says Client Was Strung Up by Thumbs Because He Wouldn't Confess.

Strung up by the thumbs, beaten and disfigured because he would not confess, are some of the charges made yesterday against six policemen of East Chicago by Michael Tipsia, through his attorney, Francis Borrelli.

Borrelli declares the methods used in questioning Tipsia were the "third degree" methods of a half century ago and matchless, save for the inquisition, in brutality. Tipsia, who is a Chicago youth, was arrested last Saturday in East Chicago on a charge of robbery.

"I am going to file charges with the state's attorney of the county," said Attorney Borrelli. "The boy showed marks of most inhuman treatment."

According to the East Chicago police, Tipsia was identified as a holdup man and there was no need of "third degree" tactics even were such methods in use in East Chicago. Policemen Kerr, Solomon, Gorman, Weinstock, Sterling, and Dollard are accused in Borelli's statement.

LEGAL MOVING VAN RATES.

City Clerk Receives Complaints of Overcharges from Householders.

City Clerk Siman has received numerous complaints that overcharges are made by operators of moving vans.

Following are the ordinance rates:

Automobile trucks, $3.50 an hour for truck and operator; 50 cents an hour for each additional helper.

One horse vehicle, $1.25 an hour for vehicle and driver; 50 cents for each additional man.

Two or three horse vehicle, $1.50 an hour for vehicle and driver and 50 cents an hour for each assistant.

SHELDON REJOINS REGULARS

Lieut. Col. Raymond Sheldon of the Second Illinois infantry yesterday resigned to reënter the regular army, in which he was a captain before being appointed lieutenant colonel and regimental "coach" of the Second. His resignation was accepted in an order issued by Adjt. Gen. Dickson. The regiment is now at Springfield, waiting to be mustered out.

ALBERT STALLE IS CHEF AND GOEPFERT IS A COOK.

When Mr. Goepfert Was Married the Papers Called Him "Chef of Hotel Sherman."

Albert Stalle spent a busy day with Chicago newspapers yesterday because reporters do not seem to understand that it is impossible for a hostelry to have more than one chef at a time.

Albert Stalle is the chef at the Hotel Sherman and he wants it known that he is still with his first wife and three children and was in no way involved in the recent marriage of Charles Goepfert, a French cook at the hotel, and Miss Mary Mutterer, a German employé of the same establishment.

"Hundreds of Chicagoans know me as the 'Chef,'" he explained yesterday, "so when the papers put it in the paper that the chef had been married, well, it made things bad for me. They have been calling up all day asking about my first wife and children, until I can't stand it any longer."

REFUSES A HABEAS WRIT.

Judge David Rules Against Acting in Case of Man Said to Be Serving Two Sentences.

Judge David in the Superior court yesterday refused to take any action on a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of Fred Martin, who, it is claimed, was serving two sentences at once. Martin was sentenced to six months in the bridewell on a charge of larceny. Then he was indicted on a charge of murdering Petty Devine at Hill and Wells street on March 5. He was held in jail pending trial, at which he was acquitted. It was claimed the time he was in jail should apply on the bridewell sentence.

YOUTH GETS LIFE IN PRISON.

Paul Verholye Sentenced at Geneva, Ill., for Strangling 16 Year Old Girl to Death.

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Paul Verholye, 19 years old, who strangled his sweetheart, Gwendolin Holden, 16 years old, last May, was given a life sentence in Joliet penitentiary by Judge Clinton F. Irwin at Geneva today. Judge Irwin wept in his chambers after sentencing the boy. Verholye had pleaded guilty.

HERE'S "UNFIRED" DINNER; IT'S CALLED "APYTROPHER."

American Naturopathic Association Has "Nut" Banquet, Including "Aesthetic Synede and Brom."

A "nut" dinner was served to more than seventy-five members of the American Naturopathic association in the Hotel Sherman last night. The menu was composed of "unfired" foods.

The dinner was served under the directions of Dr. George J. Drews of Chicago.

The official menu card stated that it was an "Apyrtropher dinner," which Dr. Drews said was a Greek word meaning "unfire feeding." The menu consisted of:

"Cream of tomato bouillon, aesthetic synede salad, honey-sauce relish, Apyro pie, made of nuts and fruits and without dough, honey cream [ice cream], and brom, a confection of nuts and fruits and cereals."

THREE OF HIS FINGERS GONE

Mrs. Marjorie Mack Asks Police to Help Find Missing Husband.

Mrs. Marjorie Mack of 1151 West Adams street has asked THE TRIBUNE to aid in the search for her husband, Edward D. Mack, who has been missing from home since Tuesday, Sept. 26. There was no reason for her husband's disappearance, according to Mrs. Mack, and she fears he has met with foul play. When he left home he was bound for the north to buy a team of horses and had over $200 in his possession. Mack owns a lumber yard and sawmill at 1114 West Randolph street. He is six feet tall and is partly bald. He has blue eyes, weighs 165 pounds, and three of the fingers of his right hand are missing.

WIFE OF MARSHALL IS ILL.

Suffers at Elkhart, Ind., from What Is Believed to Be Ptomaine Poisoning.

Elkhart, Ind., Sept. 30.—Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, wife of the vice president, was so ill here today that a physician was called to attend her. The symptoms were said to be those of ptomaine poisoning, and Mrs. Marshall was placed under the care of a nurse.

MRS. "BONNIE" HENDERSON TELLS NEW QUARREL STORY

Says Honeymoon Was Halted When Relatives Intimated Bridegroom Was Spending Too Much Money.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—According to a story given out today Mrs. "Bonnie" Tucker-Henderson, whose marital troubles were given publicity in Chicago recently, imparted to a friend who visited her yesterday that her aged husband, W. D. Henderson, will join her here in the near future, as stock dividends are due. When he arrives here she predicts the quarrel that ended their honeymoon will be only a memory. This quarrel, she told her friend, was due to relatives who insinuated the honeymoon was costing too much money.

DEAR SENT TO BRIDEWELL.

"Brains" of Auto Thieves' Trust Gets Light Sentence on Jury's Finding Car of Small Value.

Earl Dear, alleged "brains" of one of two "automobile thieves' trusts," was sentenced to a year in the bridewell and fined $1,000 by Judge Sabath in the Criminal court yesterday.

He was found guilty recently by a jury which fixed the value of an automobile he had stolen at $10, thus saving him from the penitentiary. Attorney Charles C. Williams, counsel for Dear, argued the recommendation of leniency by the jury should be considered.

"I think the jury showed sufficient leniency itself in not sending this thief to the penitentiary," said Judge Sabath.

PREFERS DOGS TO CHILDREN

That's What H. B. Smith Told the Police About His Landlord.

"He'd rather have dogs than children," H. B. Smith told the Sheffield avenue police. He referred to E. Wollenweber, who owns the building at 1142 George street. Smith lived there for eight years, he said, and a month ago he received notice to move on account of his children, one 8 and the other 11 years old. Wollenweber, he added, locked the front door and the furniture had to be taken out a rear door. It cost an additional $12 to move the piano, Smith said.

MRS. LE DUC'S OWN STORY OF SHOOTING BARED

Explains Motor Party and Subsequent Meeting with Graveur at the Hotel.

HUSBAND CALLS IT TRUE.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Lillian Le Duc, recovering from her wound in the triple shooting in the Walton hotel that cost the lives of Joseph Graveur and Mrs. Harry Belzer, has told her story.

Her husband, Joseph Le Duc, happy for the first time in several sleepless nights and days, repeated it tonight for THE TRIBUNE correspondent.

"Everything's cleared up now," said Le Duc. "She's a happy girl."

Here Is Her Story.

This is her story:

"The time has come to tell you everything, Joe," she said to her husband. "A great deal has been said and printed that isn't true.

"Last Friday I was packing up my things in the Hotel Theresa when Joe (Graveur) called on the phone and asked me if it was true I was going to Philadelphia. He said Mrs. Mann, my sister, had told him I was about to leave.

"'Yes, I am,' I told him, and he said, 'Well, I am going over to Philadelphia and I'll take you along.' I answered that it was all right.

"That was about half past nine Friday morning. Graveur drove up to the Theresa in his gray roadster some time later and we started off on the fastest and wildest automobile trip I had ever taken. We fairly flew over the roads. Graveur drove like mad and laughed when I said I would never take another ride like it. All along the way he talked about himself and about his girls—mostly about his girls. He had a different sweetheart in every town, he confessed. I laughed and bantered with him, and the journey passed without incident.

Only Had Small Handbag.

"Some time after 3 o'clock in the afternoon Joe and I arrived in Philadelphia. All I had with me was a small black handbag. My trunk and all of my valuables, including my money, I had checked at New York. There were a few toilet articles in the handbag and a few extra pieces of clothing.

"I got out of the machine near Market street and bade Graveur good-by. He drove away and I walked to a station on the elevated and rode to Sixty-third street, to the home of my nephew, Roland R. Reutinger of 125 South Sixty-third street.

"From Friday until Tuesday I stayed at the home of my nephew. During that time I never heard once from Graveur. I imagined he had gone back to New York.

"On Tuesday afternoon, I judge it was about 2:30 o'clock, Graveur called me on the phone at my nephew's house. 'Lillian,' he said, 'come out to dinner with me, and afterwards we will go to the theater.'

"I told him I was about to return to New York and was leaving the house.

"'That's all right,' he said, 'meet me and I'll take care of your handbag until you're ready to leave.'

Promises to Meet Him.

"I promised then to meet him downtown at 5 o'clock. I met him at the Walton. He took my handbag and put it in his room. Graveur said he knew a fine place where we could get a shore dinner, so we went there. The name of the place was Culps or Kulps (Mrs. Le Duc was uncertain about the name of the restaurant, but guessed that it was near Market street).

"The dinner was fine and I never enjoyed anything more in my life, not even the dinner at Tappan's inn at Coney island (Graveur, Mrs. Le Duc, and her sister, Mrs. Hobart Mann, and her husband motored down to Tappan's inn and had a shore dinner before Mrs. Le Duc left New York).

"After the dinner Joe bought tickets for the Lyric theater. We saw the show through.

Go to Roof Garden.

"Then, at Graveur's suggestion, I went with him to the roof garden of the Walton. We were sitting on the balcony of the café, near a window. There was a breeze going, and it was cool. Graveur complained about being cold. He said he was afraid he would catch a terrible cold through the bald spot on top of his head. Finally he said, 'I am going to take you home now in my machine, but first I've got to go down and get my overcoat. The room is right below here. Wait a minute and I'll come back.'

"Graveur was getting up from the table when I remembered my handbag was in the room. I told him I might as well go down with him. We walked down the stairway from the café to the ninth floor, and Joe opened the door of his room. 'Lillian, some one's been in this room,' he said. 'All your things are scattered over the floor.'

Not Inside Room.

"I had just stepped across the threshold of the door and was not even inside the room. I had my hand on the door when suddenly a woman stepped from somewhere inside the room, near the bathroom, and fired at me. Then she shot at Graveur and fired two more bullets.

"I staggered up to the café and told as well as I could what had happened. So that the people in the café wouldn't know what had happened I was half carried and half pushed into the woman's waiting room to the side of the stairway. Then I was taken to the Jefferson hospital, but some one had removed my hat and my gray moleskin scarf."

Here Mrs. Le Duc ended her story.

Her husband said the explanation was perfect.

CALLS FAIRBANKS THE CHICAGO OF ALASKAN WILDS

Writer Describes Strange Features of Chief Trading Center of U. S. Territory.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

[Copyright: 1916: By Frank G. Carpenter.]

FAIRBANKS, Alaska.—Fairbanks is the Chicago of Alaska, the future metropolis in the heart of the territory.

It is to be the terminus of Uncle Sam's new railway, the point where the river and rail navigation will center and join.

The town might be called the hub of Alaska. It is almost equidistant between Bering sea and the international boundary, and nearly half way between the Pacific and the Arctic oceans.

It lies well up on the globe, and its latitude is 65 degrees north. If you should draw a line through Fairbanks running around the world, it would cross the Seward peninsula about a hundred miles or more north of Nome, would go through Bering strait and cut Siberia almost in half.

Thence it would go on through Russia 300 miles north of Petrograd, and through Norway and Sweden at about the same distance north of Christiania and Stockholm. It would run through the center of Iceland and cross Greenland several hundred miles north of the southern boundary. It would go through the upper part of Hudson's bay, and over the wildest part of the Dominion of Canada, crossing the international boundary not far from where it is cut by the Yukon.

Three Routes to Fairbanks.

There are three routes by which the town is reached from the outside. The first involves a thousand miles by ocean steamer from Seattle to Skagway, 110 miles by rail over the White pass to the head of navigation of the Yukon at White Horse, and from there just about 1,500 miles down that river and up the Tanana to Fairbanks.

Another route is from Seattle to Nome and St. Michael, at the mouth of the Yukon, across the Pacific ocean and Bering sea. This is 2,700 miles long, and one has to travel 1,100 miles more up the Yukon river before he gets here. The first trip takes ten or twelve days, the second, with the stoppages necessary, from two weeks to a month, and both must be made in the summer, when navigation is open.

The third route is by ship from Puget sound to Valdez or Cordova, on Prince William sound, and thence here across country by dog sled or by automobile.

The last route is the shorter, but much more expensive. When the railroad is finished the trip to Fairbanks will be made in four or five days, and the cost will be greatly reduced. The town will then be one of the traffic points on the map of the world.

Paints Pictures of City.

Let me give you some pictures of the Fairbanks of today. Fairbanks is like nothing in the heavens above, in the earth beneath, or in the waters under the earth. It is a combination of the picturesque and the plain, of the shabby and the sumptuous, of the old and the new, and in all it is different.

Take a look at the main business street. It is a wide dirt road with plank sidewalks, from which rise frame buildings of one and two stories. The front walls of the stores extend high above the roofs and are cut off horizontally to make them look taller.

The stores are wholesale and retail. The goods in the stores are of their own kind. There are establishments filled with mining machinery and stores carrying all sorts of goods.

The traffic is interesting. The crowds on the street are a mixture. They include men and women as well dressed as those of any city east of the Alleghenies, and miners clad in blue jeans or khaki. Well blacked shoes go along side by side with rough boots that lace almost to the knees, and on their heels tramp white rubber boots that reach to the hips. There are crowds of men in their shirt sleeves on the street corners. They wear soft hats or sombreros. There are few plugs.

Motor Vehicles Are Common.

Now turn your eyes to the roadways. See those great drays hauling hay and oats to the steamers. Each has a load worth $200 or $300, for hay brings $100 a ton and other feed is proportionately high.

See the automobiles of various makes and the motor trucks carrying heavy articles of one kind or another. There are many motor vehicles away up here, and jitney busses go regularly each day to the gold bearing creeks.

There is an overland stage that makes the trip from Fairbanks to Chitina, the terminus of the Copper river railroad.

In the winter there are many dog sleds with long teams of dogs, and there are sleds drawn by horses that take the place of the automobiles in making the trip out of the country.

Fairbanks has several good hotels. The rates are about $3 per day. I get my meals at a restaurant kept by a young woman. Her charge is from 50 cents to 75 cents a meal and the food is delicious.

Mayor and City Council.

Fairbanks is governed by a mayor and a town council. It has much civil spirit. There are men's clubs and women's clubs, and fraternal orders, such as the Odd Fellows and Masons, the Arctic Brotherhood, the Pioneers and others. The town has three or four newspapers. It has good public schools, and Catholic, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Methodist, and Christian Science churches.

It has a public library, a picturesque structure built of logs, which is fairly well equipped with books and periodicals, and two modern hospitals. It has a good fire department, a telephone system and an electric light plant. A large part of it has water works throughout the summer and in some cases throughout the winter. The pipes are kept from freezing in winter by running steam pipes alongside.

People Have Pretty Homes.

The most picturesque feature of Fairbanks is the homes of the people. The residences are chiefly log cabins, ranging in size from those of two rooms to some of a dozen or more.

The cabins are built of cyprus and birch logs, with the bark on or off, at the taste of the builder.

Nearly every home has its porch, and on the smaller ones the low ridge roofs extend far out at the front, covering the lounging place of the family during the hot summer days.

Some of the houses are half log and half frame. Some are roofed with boards, some with galvanized iron painted green, and others with poles covered with earth. The latter have grass and flowers growing upon them.

Many of the log cabins have conservatories or hothouses, and some have pretty lawns of green grass with beds of beautiful flowers. All have gardens and nearly every one has its patch of potatoes and turnips.

Hedges of sweet peas, the vines of which grow to the height of a man, may wall one side of a garden, and great beds of poppies line the walks through the center. Nearly every home has its pansy bed, and many have genariums, nasturtiums, and other brilliant hued flowers.

The only places that compare with Fairbanks as to its luxuriant vegetation in summer are the towns of southeastern Alaska, and the Puget sound region. The short, hot summers give Dame Nature seven league boots, and you can almost see the grass grow.

LAWYERS FORM LEAGUE TO ASSIST BOYS IN TROUBLE

Attorneys Organize Society to Give Legal Advice Without Fee in the Hope of Making Good Men.

To defend and counsel boys in trouble without a fee is the purpose of a newly organized league of Chicago lawyers. It is the Boys' Protective league of Chicago.

It was founded by Attorney Phillip Sheridan Roe at a meeting in his office in the Unity building. He is its president. So far eight or nine other lawyers have pledged themselves to become members, he said. Later on many lawyers are expected to ally themselves with the movement, he asserted.

"We will defend boys taken into all courts in addition to the boys' court," Attorney Roe said. "Our service will be free. I believe many boys can be counseled to become real men if they are defended at the right time and then advised as to how to live in the future."

HELP FOR KULAK FAMILY.

$20 Added to Fund to Help Parents Bury Children and Fight Illness of Two Others.

Aid for John and Mary Kulak, who with three children dead are fighting for the lives of the two remaining, came to THE TRIBUNE yesterday in the shape of a $20 check from B. E. Bensinger, president of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company. This will be added to numerous donations which have come in to the hard pressed family since the story of its ill fortune was published. Arrangements have been made for the removal of John and Mary from the potters' field, where they were buried, and Michael, who was the third of the family to die in the diphtheria epidemic, will be given a decent burial. The other two Kulak children are still critically ill at the isolation hospital.

MARY HICKEY COLLECTS HER GOATS AND DONKEY.

Quaint Old Woman Who Lived in Lake Forest Homes, Uninvited, Gathers Her Live Stock.

Mary Hickey, with her goats and her donkey, is free again. Mary is the quaint old woman who achieved note when she was brought in court on the complaint of Prentiss Cooney that she was annoying his household by sleeping in various unused rooms and being protected by the servants. Several Lake Forest women came forward in Judge Pearson's court yesterday and offered to give her a home.

Chief McGuire said he didn't mind, only Mary left her goats tied to a tree for three weeks, and they nearly ate the tree up before she returned.

Mary went to the police station for her donkey and her goats and offered the policemen $2 for their keep. This was refused, so she left the $2 on the fire department truck.

PRIVATE BANKER NOVOTNY ISN'T LEAST BIT DEAD.

Proprietor of Defunct Institution Would Like to Punch Gossip Right in the Nose.

Victor Novotny, proprietor of the defunct "Illinois Fifty-first and Western Savings bank," is not dead. No, indeed! Let the person who telephoned the sad news to THE TRIBUNE take notice.

The erstwhile private banker, who boasts that his bank "paid all the creditors dollar for dollar," appeared in the office of THE TRIBUNE yesterday and entered vigorous denial of his demise.

"I'd like to punch that telephoner in the nose," he said, among other things, which he accompanied by much waving of arms.

Wants to Be Cremated.

Leon Favier, 85 years old, ended his life yesterday by turning on the gas in his room at 104 South Desplaines street. He left a note asking that his body be cremated.

"26" DICE GAMES RUN, SAYS LETTER TO HEALEY.

Citizens' Association President Calls on Chief to Suppress Petty Gambling.

In a letter from Moses E. Greenebaum, president of the Citizens' association, Chief of Police Healey was asked yesterday to suppress "26" dice games, which are "springing up again," according to the letter.

"In investigating complaints," reads the letter in part, "our investigators have obtained legal evidence of the operation of '26' dice games in the following saloons:

"Clifford Bros., 6226 South Halsted street; William Carberry, 6301 South Halsted street; G. A. Ford, 6528 South Halsted street; Murphy Bros., 1556 West Sixty-third street; Graham & West, 5514 South State street; H. C. Brinkman, 5860 South State street; and Charles Grand, 126 West Madison street."

The letter states that investigators have found that the games are patronized "largely by boys."

PYTHIANS GIVE FIELD DAY.

K. P. Athletic Association and Baseball League Holds Annual Outing.

Pythians turned out yesterday at the old Cubs' park to witness the third annual field day and drills of the Knights of Pythias athletic association and baseball league. The proceeds will go to the Pythian home at Decatur. Drills by the Knights of Khorassan corps and the Pythian Sisters proved attractive. Last evening a complimentary dinner was given to the boys of the home.

GETS $11,500 FOR INJURIES

What is said to be one of the largest verdicts handed down for similar injuries was returned by a jury in the Circuit court before Judge Oscar Torrison, when Henry Felau was awarded $11,500 for injuries received while employed by the Lake Sand company. An iron bucket weighing about a ton and a half was dropped, breaking Felau's right leg.

Each of these ten men is a specialist in the field of advertising and selling, with years of practical experience. There is not a "professional" teacher among them. Not one of them is teaching for the money there is in it, but because they want to place the ethics of advertising and selling on a higher, cleaner plane.

AMERICAN BOYS SERVING FRANCE HAVE GRIM JOKE

Chicago and Illinois Seem to Be Only Schools Not Shown in Ambulances.

BY CAROLYN WILSON.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—Do you remember the story of the heroically named George Washington Lopp of Paris, who, a short time ago, broke into print under a Paris headline on account of minor and major injuries inflicted on his wife and daughter with a chisel? And that shortly after Miss Lopp was married, her head swathed in bandages?

And that at the time Lopp defended himself in terms which now serve among the Americans here as the proverbial excuse for every mistake made in Paris: "They said I hit my wife with a revolver, but I didn't, I swear I didn't; it was only a chisel."

Well, I'm recalling this to your mind because the American ambulance in Paris has recently come into possession of a wonderful château out at Passy where the boys stay when they are back on rest from the front. And as Lopp was at the American ambulance and only too well known by all the boys, they have named the new château "Chiselhurst."

Joke with Vox Pop.

An amusing series of vox populi letters has been appearing in the Paris Herald from the uninitiated, inquiring into the meaning of the name. And the boys, bent on yet more mischief, have answered these letters over initials which are the same as those of Capt. Kipling, head of the Paris section of the ambulance.

Capt. Kipling, whose pet name among the boys is the "Kitchen Stove," for reasons obvious, when one recalls the old statement about "having everything on but the kitchen stove." The worthy captain wears that, too. Dangling from shoulder, belt, buttonholes, and pockets are more accouterments than Peary or Livingstone, or Daniel Boone would ever have needed for the most severe or most prolonged absence from humankind.

The captain, seeing his initials signed, tears down to the New York Herald office, threatening dire and windy threats. But, as it is soon proved to him, any one by the name of King could as easily have written the letters. So then Kipling runs to Lopp and assures him that he has had nothing to do with the letters in the paper, and in the meantime the boys flaunt their "Chiselhurst" banner and regale guests with the latest bit of gossip about the feud.

Chateau Beautiful One.

It is really rather an undignified name to baptize such an old and magnificent château with. One of the oldest, largest, and most beautifully laid out in Passy, this house had been handed over, with its large gardens, laid out according to eighteenth century designs, to all the Americans who are in the field service of the ambulance. It must be understood that this section is definitely separated from the Paris branch of the hospital and only those men who are doing active work are allowed to live here.

It is impossible adequately to describe the charm of this old place to people whose architecture has no history—its long, winding paths, its formed gardens leading to the Seine, its paneled rooms with exquisitely carved oak doors, its gracious staircases. Nor is its present charm all. For two hundred years interesting people have lived there, many of them, names intimately connected with Franco-American history. Franklin made his first experiments here, met and talked to Le Veillard here, and got his promise to come to America.

Many Famous Visitors.

Jean Jacques Rousseau was often here at the iron springs which are on the grounds. Zola was a loiterer in the gardens, and at another period the Bartholdt family lived here, and the sculptor whose statue of Liberty now stands in New York harbor could also see a reproduction of this statue on the bridge opposite the gardens.

It is just the place for the boys to come back after their months of nerve racking work in the Vosges, at Verdun, and along the Somme. For they slave, these fellows. At Verdun, for instance, they have two weeks' duty, twenty-four hours on, twenty-four hours off. You can imagine what the roads are like in a district which for seven months has been under continual shell fire, and the fact that only one of the ambulance men has been killed is a piece of the greatest luck, for they are everywhere, never shirking, never leaving.

Only Chicago Not There.

There are at present about 200 men in the different sections. There are, I think, 60 ambulances, counting those used for transporting wounded here in Paris. It would seem, to look at the list of men, and of universities, at the names of ambulances and at the special services sent out from various cities, that almost every decent sized city in the United States is represented but Chicago. There is no Chicago ambulance, there has been no special squad from the university as there has been from most others. Indeed, according to the list I have under my hand of 226 graduates from fifty-one different universities and colleges, there has been not University of Chicago or of Illinois graduate.

To date there have been forty-four members of the ambulance decorated for bravery in service.

The time of a lot of these men is coming to an end. Some volunteered for six months, some for three, some for a year. There is need of more men. Will Chicago send some?

SHE TOOK POISON

Janet Allyn Phillips, Albert Phillips

Miss Janet Allyn, an actress, disappointed in an affair of the heart, swallowed poison as she mingled with the shopping crowd at State and Washington streets yesterday. She had been living at the St. Regis hotel.

According to the police Miss Allyn has been known as the wife of Albert Phillips, once a stock actor in Englewood theaters. It is believed she and Phillips, who is playing in Denver, had a disagreement.

INVESTMENT BANKERS HAVE SPECIAL CONVENTION TRAIN.

Representatives of Western Houses Leave Chicago for Meeting in Cincinnati, O., This Week.

Representatives of investment distributing houses in the west left the Union station yesterday afternoon on a special train for the fifth annual convention of the Investment Bankers of America in Cincinnati. All angles of the investment field will be discussed during the three days' sessions.

The special train was a duplicate of the Broadway Limited, and en route to Cincinnati those on the Chicago special were entertained with vaudeville and other features to drive away the distasteful elements of travel. From New York there is a similar train over the Pennsylvania, which will reach Cincinnati early tomorrow, bearing the eastern investment bankers.

The Chicago train was scheduled to reach Cincinnati about 10 o'clock and was to be met at Hamilton, O., by the Cincinnati committee, which extended greetings to the western investment bankers.

The convention is expected to be the largest that has yet been held by the investment bankers, and the Cincinnati contingent has made arrangements for the pleasure of the bankers as well as for their intellectual entertainment. The convention will conclude with a banquet Wednesday night.

THE PART THE WAR PLAYED.

They are dazzling figures which the reviews of our foreign trade present. They are so great that they stun, and out of their overwhelming nature much capital has been made by those who seek to prove that the administration has had some part in developing trade. Against this contention stands the searching analysis presented by Mr. Henning last week. The administration seeks to deny that our prosperity was due to the war. Mr. Henning proves that it was due to nothing else.

Our exports of domestic goods in the second year of the war, the government figures show, reached the unprecedented total of $4,200,000,000. They were $1,000,000,000 greater than just before the war. They exceeded imports by $2,100,000,000.

These are the mouth-filling figures which Mr. Wilson's apologists set forth. But here are some of the facts disclosed by analysis of the figures:

Of that great total 53 per cent was potential munitions.

Of the increased trade 96 per cent was the increase in potential munitions.

The favorable trade balance for the year was much less than the year's total in potential munitions.

Munitions, exclusive of foodstuffs, in 1914 made up only 10.5 per cent of our total exports. In 1916 they made up 38.5 per cent.

Chemicals, cartridges, and other explosives alone before the war amounted to $34,000,000, of which $27,000,000 was in chemicals. This last year they reached $591,000,000, and still they climb. Before the war we sold $4,000,000 worth of horses and mules. In this second year of war we sold $96,000,000 worth.

From figures of this sort several obvious conclusions are to be drawn. First, is the certainty that our current prosperity is due to the war and to nothing else.

Second, there is the realization that although it took American factories nearly two years to reach their maximum output of munitions, it will take only two minutes to end the placing of new contracts. Munition making under current contracts is not going to end the moment that peace is declared, but the placing of new orders will end, the employment to full capacity will end, the paying of record wages will end, and the feverish speed of our prosperity will end.

On the time required for American trade to subside there is widely varying opinion. On the fact that it will subside there is none.

It behooves the United States, then, to take time to breathe and to examine the sure events of the future. Chief of them is the death of our munitions business.

The trade figures show what that will mean. Of the total increase in our foreign exports from 1914 to 1916, 96 per cent was the increase in potential munitions. That left 4 per cent, and even of the 4 per cent a certain amount was in goods which went to the armies in the field, for the table of potential munitions is not all inclusive.

But that is not all. Our exports to South America bounded from the 1914 total of $124,000,000 to $180,000,000 in 1916. Those to British India and Hongkong grew from $26,000,000 to $36,000,000. Those to Australia and New Zealand grew from $55,000,000 to $74,000,000. Those to Africa grew from $28,000,000 to $43,000,000, most of the added trade going to British African territory. Here is a total of $100,000,000 trade we now enjoy which we did not enjoy before the war. That wipes out the 4 per cent and more, for the vast bulk of this trade has been obtained solely by grace of the war, which has permitted the United States to soar on without competition. In South America we have gobbled the trade which once was Germany's, and with it we have taken some of the trade which England has been temporarily too busy to handle. We owe little to our own industry in seeking trade.

In other words, impossible as it sounds, there is incontrovertible evidence that had it not been for the war not only would we have enjoyed no boom in trade but our exports would have dropped below the 1914 mark, poor as that was.

When peace comes, then we may expect to find Germany seeking to regain her lost trade—and seeking by desperate methods which will surpass even her extraordinary merchandising methods of before the war. We may expect the allies to do the same. If there is any doubt on that subject a reading of the allies' Paris agreement will remove it.

Against this disturbing situation we have what the administration boasts as "retaliatory legislation." It is not mandatory but enabling legislation. It is effective only when used by a courageous executive. It is an array of words similar to "strict accountability" or "omit no word or act" or other impressive locutions which have been followed by an unimpressive lack of any definite, resolute act at the hands of Mr. Wilson.

The indisputable evidence of the munitions figures tells the part the war played in our prosperity. The figures, it is well to note, are compiled by a department of the administration. To that same department the country is indebted for detailed figures showing exactly the effect of the Underwood tariff, from which it required a world war to rescue American industry. Mr. Wilson came into office with a complete Democratic control of congress in March, 1913. In November came the tariff. Note the results:

In every month but one (when the increase was less than one-tenth of 1 per cent) there was a decrease in exports until December, 1914, when the munitions orders came to the rescue.

Of the eight months following November, 1913, there was an increase in imports in each of six months. In the other two the decreases in imports were less than one-tenth of the increases.

In other words, while American factories were sending less and less abroad, foreign factories were flooding our markets to a greater and greater degree. We were approaching an unfavorable balance of trade. Railway profits and bank clearings ebbed and business failures increased in number each year of the Wilson administration.

This is the situation in which the country found itself after the Democrats had gained control and started their experiments with the various branches of government. The reports of the department of commerce cannot be blinked. One shows that the Democratic legislation, which incidentally has totally failed in its announced purpose to lower the cost of living, succeeded only in demoralizing industry. The other shows that from this ruin the country was saved only by the greatest war in history. Together they show that today, precisely as in 1896, the great issue of the campaign is the prosperity of the nation, whether it again will be put in hazard.

A GREAT ORATION.

In today's TRIBUNE is published a speech which it is our opinion will be historic. It is the address of Theodore Roosevelt delivered yesterday at Battle Creek, Michigan.

It is the most formidable indictment of Woodrow Wilson's presidency which has been made or is likely to be made. No American executive has ever been subjected to so searching, so overwhelming, and at the same time just, an analysis of his official character.

But it is more, much more, than an indictment of Mr. Wilson's presidency. It is also one of the most eloquent appeals ever made to the conscience of a people. We are sorry for any American man or woman who does not respond to this challenge. We are sorry for our American republic if the impassioned eloquence of this appeal does not renew within its soul the splendid spirit of its historic past, rousing it from the sluggard and expedient mood of the present day to face with the old courage and confidence and aspiration the duties, responsibilities and opportunities of this great epoch in the life of all nations.

GOOD REASON FOR CONFIDENCE.

It is not difficult to understand why, as Mr. Phillips' dispatch to THE TRIBUNE states, the Illinois Republicans expect to elect all their congressional candidates in November. It is difficult to see how any of the present Democratic congressmen could be returned by a constituency in which the voters' intelligence approached normal.

The Democratic congressmen from Illinois during their incumbency have exercised two legitimate privileges beyond any fair complaint. They have drawn the full amount of their salaries and allowances, and for the most part they have obtained their full share of federal patronage. There most of them have stopped.

The Illinois Democratic congressmen have blindly and obediently voted as their southern dictators bade them. They have blandly piled up taxes on their constituents, and with lavish hand have tossed away the proceeds of these taxes, paid by the mighty industries of field and factory in Illinois. At the nod of their southern masters they have acquiesced in the dropping of northern money into extravagant and useless river and harbor projects of the south, projects designed solely to bring northern money into circulation among the people who by the nature of things must always control a Democratic administration and today are in absolute control of our national legislation.

The Democratic congressmen from Illinois, who cannot plead ignorance of exactly what they were doing, have helped pass a tariff law which unduly burdened their constituents and unfairly benefited other parts of the nation. In nearly every act and vote on matters of this sort they have betrayed their constituents. They have not been representative. They have not been courageous. They have not been even patriotic. They have drawn their salaries and their patronage. Their constituents have paid these sums, plus uncounted millions more, in great measure because of the representatives' complete misrepresentation.

The Democratic delegation from Illinois has been a failure.

An Illinoisan who votes for a Democratic congressman in November could profitably have his head examined.

OXCART OR EXPRESS?

Endorsements of the tax amendment multiply. The four candidates for governor on the various tickets have pronounced in favor of it. Gov. Dunne, who has twice recommended tax reform to the legislature, says the amendment "is distinctly worth while in itself, and it will make possible forms of taxation for which there is the greatest need and a justifiable demand." Mr. Lowden advises Illinois "to lose no time in getting in line with the foremost thought on the subject of revenue reform." The Socialist and Prohibition candidates heartily favor it and will urge its endorsement at the polls by their followers.

It is up to the voters of Illinois now to indicate whether they are content to march with the awkward squad or with the vanguard of enlightened progress. As Mr. George C. Gale recently said, the oxcart is just as adaptable to the modern demands for rapid transportation as our ancient and worn out tax system is to the many modern forms of wealth which it is supposed to reach and tax. Shall we continue to ride in the oxcart of 1818 or in the Twentieth Century express?

The real taxable valuation of Illinois is not represented by the returns made under the present system. Real estate, which cannot be hidden, bears an unjust burden, while many other forms of wealth which are intangible escape the assessors. The old system permits evasion and induces perjury. Honesty cannot be expected when our very laws breed the opposite. No one who suffers under the unfair burden or who loves justice should fail to vote for the amendment. To neglect this duty is to vote against it, for a majority of the entire vote cast is necessary for carrying the measure.

Editorial of the Day

CHANGEABLE LAW.

[From the Ohio State Journal.]

Elihu Root says there are too many lawyers in this country who know too little law, and at times there seem to be too many lawyers who know too much law and as a consequence justice is often defeated.—Exchange.

Some people might think this remark is foolish, but it is not, because there is so much bad law and knowing much of it tends to its supremacy. Law is a fashion that changes with human conditions. What it was ten years ago it is not now. It grows with the world. It is part of the evolution of mankind, and every man should understand it so, especially if he is a lawmaker. Law is simply human desire put into form and hence is not constant; and the precedent of yesterday is error today. So the lawyer of the cidevant sort is a sure sign there are too many lawyers. A case lawyer becomes a standpatter as soon as he wants an office. He gets conservative and antique. They are fine fellows, but they are in the ambulance while the march is in progress.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1916: By the Brentwood Company.]

LADY OLIVIA FITZPATRICK, who has just passed away at Ruthin castle, the country seat of her daughter, Mrs. William Cornwallis West, in Wales, was one of the matriarchs of English society, being nearly 95 years old and retaining until quite recently possession of all her mental and, in an astonishing degree, of her physical, faculties.

A daughter of the second Marquis of Headfort, she, to the amazement of every one who knew her, married, several years before the Crimean war, a clergyman, the Rev. Frederick Fitzpatrick, at that time rector of Cloona, in County Leitrim.

She was a famous beauty, blessed with a superabundant amount of Irish wit, sprightliness, and fascination.

Lady Olivia had two daughters, who were about as dissimilar as it is possible for two sisters to be. The elder, Mary, became the wife of Col. William Cornwallis West, lord lieutenant of Denbighshire, owner of Ruthin castle, in that county, and of Newlands manor in Hampshire; while the other, Edwina, became first of all Mrs. John Brooke of Summerton, County Dublin, and is now Mrs. Guy Percy Wyndham.

Mrs. Cornwallis West has had three children, her eldest daughter being the German Princess Pless, a beauty of international celebrity, and now, with her children, is at her castle of Furstenstein in Silesia, while the other daughter is the wife of the Duke of Westminster, from whom she has been separated for some years, and has been engaged since the beginning of the war in nursing the wounded at a hospital which she had fitted up on the coast of Normandy.

Mrs. William Cornwallis West's only son, named George, formerly an officer of the Scots guards, married the American widow of Lord Randolph Churchill, who was several years older than his own mother.

Cornwallis West was eventually divorced by Lady Randolph, who thereupon resumed the name of her first husband, and after a few months' interval he married the actress Mrs. Patrick Campbell, also many years his senior. He spent the greater part of last year with her in the United States, where she was engaged in a tour, he acting as her manager.

It does not seem to have been a very remunerative occupation. For when he returned to England last winter he found himself landed in the bankruptcy court, where he attributed his large liabilities to the extravagance of his first wife.

At the time of his appearance in court, George Cornwallis West asked for his discharge in order to enable him to recover his commission in the army and to proceed to the front in France.

As the Duchess of Westminster has two little girls, and her sister, the Princess of Pless, three boys, the eldest of them a godson jointly of the kaiser and of Edward VII., Lady Olivia Fitzpatrick, who has just gone to her last rest, was a great-grandmother several times over.

Historic Devizes castle, which has just been placed on the market and which is advertised for sale by private treaty, belongs jointly to Fannie Lady Rich, widow of the late baronet, and to his nephew and successor, Col. Sir Almeric Rich, now doing service at the war department in London.

He has an American wife, the daughter of John Conness, formerly United States senator for California, but now of Mattapan, Mass., and has an only son and namesake, Almeric, 18 years old, who has lately received a commission in the army and has gone to the front in France.

Devizes castle was built by Roger, Bishop of Salisbury, on a palatial scale in the reign of Henry I., and on his downfall was seized by the crown, in 1139, and became a dower house of the queens of England, being occupied in turn not only by many English queens but also by kings, including Edward I. and Henry VIII.

It was held for the crown by its governor, Sir Charles Lloyd, against Oliver Cromwell, and was partly destroyed during the siege, and then became once more the country seat of the Bishops of Salisbury. The bishops, however, found it too expensive to keep up and it was sold seventy years ago to the late R. B. Leech, who transformed it into a habitable abode, replete with every modern luxury, without, however, in any way impairing the design of the old Norman stronghold.

From him it passed by purchase to the late Sir Charles Rich, who found the standing council of the baronetage and played a leading rôle in the movement which culminated in placing the roster of baronets under the control of the sovereign in council, purging it of all bogus baronets and usurpers.

The Rich family is an ancient one, and Sir Richard Rich was lord high chancellor of England in the reign of Edward VI., but incurred much opprobrium by the baseness of his conduct to Sir Thomas More, who, it may be remembered, was beheaded in London Tower. His son, the second Lord Rich, was one of the peers who in Elizabeth's reign sat on the trial of the Duke of Norfolk, and the third peer was created Earl of Warwick.

The second Earl of Warwick of the house of Rich was the friend of Oliver Cromwell. In spite of this Lord Warwick's youngest son, who had been created Lord Holland, attempted to rescue Charles I. from his imprisonment in Carisbrooke castle and to restore him to the throne.

Captured in the attempt, Lord Holland was tried, convicted, and beheaded in what is now known as Palace yard, at the entrance of Westminster hall. Oliver Cromwell's youngest daughter, Frances, married Robert Rich, a favorite grandson of the second Earl of Warwick, but died only three months later.

The earldom of Warwick passed out of the Rich family in 1759, while in 1785 the entire Rich family, which also owned a baronetcy, became extinct in the male line, the estates passing to the last baronet's daughter, Mary, married to the Rev. Charles Bostock. The latter, with the permission of the crown, assumed his wife's name and arms and received a baronetcy in his own right. It is from him that the present Sir Almeric Rich is descended.

ABSOLUTE SUPPRESSION OF CONSUMPTION.

THE fight against consumption is winning out. The prevalence of the disease is becoming less year by year and the outlook is that within a generation measures for gradual repression may be replaced by measures for absolute suppression. Dr. Heiser reports that in a certain section of Australia it has been found advisable to institute measures for eradicating consumption. Those measures, consisting in the discovery of every case and its hospitalization, except where the case could be left at home with entire safety, have resulted in wholly freeing the people of certain parts of that country from consumption. The people of those sections now look upon consumption as we look on yellow fever and cholera.

Acting upon this report from Australia, the Metropolitan Life Insurance company has voted $100,000 to defray the expenses of a similar experiment somewhere in the United States. They are to select a town of about 5,000 inhabitants for the experiment, some town where the people know about hygiene and sanitation, and, at the same time, are willing to undertake the experiment. Several towns have applied and applications are still being received.

Every person in the town is to be periodically examined for consumption, every consumptive is to be cared for in a sanitarium, unless he can be cared for with complete safety at home, and every home and working place is to be made hygienic.

Dr. D. B. Armstrong has been chosen as the director. The Metropolitan is to bear all extraordinary expense. They propose to settle the question as to whether we are ready to be rid of consumption or whether we can be made ready within a few years.

The European countries in which there is health insurance, notably Germany and England, have found that the most effective attacks on consumption of which they have known are the result of the operation of these acts. Security against want in times of illness, the opportunity to properly convalesce, the opportunity for periodic examinations, and the maintenance of sanitaria, dispensaries and schools are very rapidly reducing the ravages of consumption. In this country we are planning for larger and more effective campaigns. What we are doing is in a minor key in comparison with the more effective efforts of some other countries.

The last report of the vital statistics bureau of the census office was for 1913. In 1913 the consumption rate was 127.7, as compared with 129.9 for 1912. The report says: "There was therefore a slight decrease in 1913 as compared with 1912, and reference to the tables will show that the decrease in recent years, like that for tuberculosis [all forms], has been interrupted and that, as compared with the annual average for the period, 1901-1905, amounted to 25.1 per cent and the decrease from the average death rate for the years 1906 to 1910 was 12 per cent."

In other words, the death rate from consumption in the registration area in 1913 was only three-fourths as high as it was thirteen years before and less than nine-tenths what it was five years before. In the cities and states where there has been most effort to control the disease the improvement has been much more marked than these figures show. On the other hand, in those parts of the country where nothing is being done consumption is getting worse.

When we analyze the new tuberculosis directory, issued by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, we find the reason for the improvement disclosed by the statistics. The first tuberculosis directory was issued in 1904, the second in 1908, and the third in 1911. In the 1904 directory there were listed 115 tuberculosis hospitals and sanitaria, and 85 other agencies for combating the disease—a total of 200. The 1916 directory lists 3,100 agencies. In this directory information is given about 557 sanatoria, hospitals, and day camps for the treatment of tuberculosis, 158 boarding houses for consumptives in health resorts, 90 hospitals for the insane making special provision for their tuberculosis patients, 35 penal institutions making special provision for their tuberculosis patients, 455 dispensaries, clinics, and classes for the special treatment of tuberculosis; 310 open air schools and classes for children, and 1,324 associations and committees for the study and prevention of tuberculosis—a total of 2,929, as compared with 200 twelve years ago.

In 1904, when the first edition was published, there were no open air schools in the country. The directory made no mention of open air schools. In 1908 there were a few such schools and the directory mentioned two or and the directory mentioned two or three in its sanitarium section. The 1911 edition mentioned the few then scattered around the country. This edition gives information about 300 such schools. In a footnote this statement is made: "As stated in the introduction to the open air school section, the list of these institutions is manifestly incomplete. The Elizabeth McCormick memorial fund, the leading authority in the United States on the subject of open air schools, estimates 800 as a conservative total."

At the present time thirty-five states have tuberculosis sanitaria either running or in process of construction. In some states there is more than one state sanitarium. In Pennsylvania there are three. In New York state there are eighty-six hospitals and sanitaria. Nearly half of these are either in process of construction or have been only recently opened.

In spite of the fact that there is a state hospital no state has so many county sanatoria. The disposition to erect county sanatoria or sanatoria for a group of counties is growing very rapidly. In addition to the list of eighty-six sanatoria and hospitals in New York state there are dispensaries, open air schools, associations, and also hospitals for the care of tuberculosis insane and others for the care of tuberculosis prisoners.

In Wisconsin, in addition to the state sanatorium, there is a state forest reserve tuberculosis camp, ten county sanatoria, and several institutions maintained either by philanthropic organizations or by individuals.

The movement against consumption has the aspect of solidity and permanence. It will grow and evolve. Aside from the light which it throws on the progress of the tuberculosis movement, this directory is a valuable work. In it is given the location, capacity, charges per bed, whether for the general public or for the citizens of a state, community, labor union, or other organization, character of cases taken, length of time in existence, and name of superintendent of every hospital and sanatorium in the United States and Canada. It gives the name and address of every dispensary, the dispensary hours, and the name of the physician in charge. There is a list of 158 boarding houses in resorts for consumptives. This list gives names and addresses, capacity, names of proprietors.

In order to get on their list a boarding house must have come up to the following minimum requirements:

1. Provision for outdoor sleeping, either on sleeping porches or otherwise.

2. Sputum cups, or similar devices, must be used by patients and proper disposal of sputum containers and sputum made.

3. The building or buildings must be clean; they must also have running water and suitable means of sewage disposal; they must be adequately protected against fire.

4. Each room must be thoroughly cleansed and disinfected at regular intervals, and before being used by another patient. The bedding must also be disinfected and aired before being used by a new patient.

5. Food must be of good quality and diet must include fresh milk and eggs.

6. Provision must be made for regular monthly visits of inspection by a physician. All patients must be under the care of a physician.

7. Provision must be made for nursing supervision of all patients and for nursing care of patients who are bedfast.

Asheville, N. C., was found to be the only place where such minimum requirements as these were made effective by law.

There is a list showing the name and address of every tuberculosis society and the name of some one officer. There is a list showing the name, location, capacity, teacher of 300 open air schools. And, finally, there is a brief digest of all state laws and municipal ordinances now in force having as their purpose the control and prevention of consumption.

EYELID TWITCHING.

Mrs. C. I. writes: "1. Will you please tell what to do for an upper eyelid that twitches most annoyingly and disturbingly four or five times a day?

"2. Will fumigating a room with sulphur destroy possible and probable germs left in a room by a tuberculosis patient who was in the room five or six hours and coughed frequently into the air without covering mouth in any way while coughing? (The patient used a handkerchief for sputum.)

"3. Is there any probable danger to a constant occupant of this room who is strong in pulmonary organs except for a nasal catarrh and a recent, though well recovered, sore throat?

"4. To be effective, how much sulphur (powder) should be burned in a room 13x13 feet?"

REPLY.

1. The twitching is a sign of tire. Probably you need glasses or your glasses do not fit, or you strain your eyes crocheting, or the fatigue may be general and not due to eye strain.

2. No. Give the room a good sunning and airing. There is little danger that the room is infected.

3. No.

4. If the ceiling is ten feet high about two pounds of sulphur should be used. This will kill all the insects and some bacteria.

DIABETES INSIPIDUS.

E. L. C. writes: "Will you kindly explain more about diabetes insipidus? How do you recognize that trouble if there is no sugar in the urine? Can that form of diabetes be cured? Is it a gland in back of head? Must one be as careful of the diet as with other forms?"

REPLY.

In diabetes insipidus the amount of urine passed is very large (twenty to sixty pints), its specific gravity is low (1001 to 1005), and it is free from sugar and albumin. On account of the large amount of urine the patient drinks freely of water. The thirst may be a very objectionable symptom. Some cases of diabetes insipidus result from disease of the pituitary body, a small gland in the back of the head. Other causes are shock, fright, intemperance, heredity. It may occur during convalescence from grip.

It is a very mild disease and does not tend to end life. Most of the cases get well. If the cause can be discovered and attended to cure generally follows quickly. Dieting is not necessary. The disease is very different from genuine diabetes, or sugar diabetes, as some term it.

ONE NOSTRIL AFFECTED.

REPLY.

A little over two inches back from the front of the nose the two nostrils come together to form one tube. This one air tube continues through the back part of the nose, the back part of the mouth, the voice box, the larynx, and trachea, from the roof of the mouth and nose through the neck and for several inches into the chest—more than a foot. About opposite the third rib this tube forks, the right bronchus going to the right lung, the left to the left lung. Therefore, the air which passes through the nostrils is thoroughly mixed. Stoppage in the left nostril would not affect the left lung more than it would the right. If you have a "spot" in your left lung you probably have tuberculosis. See a physician or the dispensary nurse.

ONLY ONE SYMPTOM.

B. O. S. writes: Your articles on "tapeworm" have interested me. I should like to know whether a person can tell positively whether or not he has a tapeworm and how. I am 6 feet tall, weigh about 140 pounds, 33 years old. Have always been thin. Have good appetite and eat well, and am usually in fair health. My digestion is inclined to be balky and I have to be careful of my diet. Would I be apt to have a worm."

REPLY.

The only sign of tapeworm that is of much value is the presence of the segments in the bowel movements. Tapeworm does little harm and causes few symptoms, and those not characteristic. It is not probable that you have a tapeworm.

QUESTIONS FOR HUGHES.

Toulon, Ill., Sept. 25.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I wonder how many Republicans there are who, like myself, have been waiting for Hughes to declare himself on the real issues of the day.

His speeches so far have belonged to the campaign of 1888 rather than 1916. He has thundered against the iniquity of free trade; boldly announced that Americans should be protected in their rights on land and sea, and expressed his belief in "adequate" preparedness.

Does his adequate preparedness mean an army of 50,000, a quarter million, or universal service? Would he organize a stable government in Mexico under the protection of an American army of occupation, or withdraw our forces to the border? Will he place England's detention of our mails in the same category with Germany's destruction of such mail and with it the lives of noncombatants and American citizens?

The German-American alliance has officially announced its responsibility for the nomination of Hughes and declared they have 3,000,000 votes for him. Every German newspaper in the United States and in Germany demands his election. Apparently they have reason to believe he will be distinctly favorable to Germany.

The public has a right to know the views of a public man on public questions. Many voters demand more of a candidate than the party label, and believe they owe a greater duty to their country than to their party.

Does Hughes desire to stand before the public on Nov. 7 as the candidate of Germany or of America? INQUIRER.

KANSAS CHALLENGES INVESTIGATION.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[Editor of the Tribune.]—At the convention of governors in Boston his fellow officials asked Gov. Capper of Kansas to address them on prohibition. He spoke in Tremont temple and reported the many gains that had come to his state from prohibition. He also urged the governors to send committees to investigate the actual conditions and results. In a recent speech Gov. Capper has repeated the challenge and invites any community to "send a committee of representative men and women or employ experts on municipal efficiency." Why should not the Chicago Association of Commerce appoint a commission of representative people of different opinions to go to Kansas and investigate the actual facts and make a report? According to the claims of the liquor people their business in Chicago represents an annual expenditure of $150,000,000. The business is large enough to warrant an investigation as to what would happen in Chicago if it was prohibited.

DUNCAN C. MILNER.

THROATS OF CANDIDATES.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Charles E. Hughes is blessed with a good pair of lungs and a full round voice, but he has a bad habit of closing his sentences on the rising inflection, thus subjecting the larynx and the muscles of his throat to undue strain. When, by experience, he acquires the art of finishing on the downward inflection it will not be necessary for him to use "steam and tinc. benzoin comp.," as was his habit when governor.

Col. Bryan has no better throat than Beecher, Edwin Booth, or John McCullough had, but he knows how to use it.

William H. Taft lost his voice, temporarily, following his open air speech at the Syracuse state fair in September, 1912, due to the fact that nearly one-half of his words were delivered on the rising inflection.

Col. Roosevelt can, without doubt, give more points on voice and throat protection than any speaker before the public today, because only he could use the throat given him for that purpose, but he knows from long practice just when to rise and fall, and he very perfectly supplements the rising inflection by convincing gestures at the finishing of his sentences. G. H. B.

WITHOUT SANCTION OF LAW.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—There is no law in Illinois compelling a child to have a medical or physical examination before entering the public schools.

There is no law in Illinois compelling a child to be vaccinated before entering the public schools.

There is no law in Illinois giving authority to any board of health to enter a home for any reason or take a child sick with a contagious disease, to a hospital. The child can be quarantined in the home to the full protection of others.

The board of health has no legal right forcibly to enter a home and take a child away from its mother, whose love and affection enable her to care for the child better than any one else.

Parents of Chicago, wake up and realize the danger you are in of having the sanctity of the home destroyed. Wake up and stand up for your rights and see that no laws are passed that will put you in a political-medical bondage which may take years to overthrow.

A PARENT.

GOLDBECK AND GERMANY.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I am going to thank THE TRIBUNE for Goldbeck's article, "A German Republic," not because it is pro-German, but because Goldbeck understands the German people better than anybody else. He speaks the truth.

H. W.

T. T.

By Edward Goldbeck

THE last time I was wandering leisurely through the Art institute I fell among a swarm of ladies who were gathered around a venerable looking man. The patriarch talked about the technique of different masters, and vain as I am, I said to myself that I would be able to tell them much more important things, not professional trifles, but the things which they really needed. I remembered that a few weeks ago a musician had said to me: "You might write a wonderful article about music if you could manage to forget all you know about it." He meant, if I understood him right, that the technical knowledge even of the best informed layman does not amount to very much, but that he may say something valuable, when he naively, fearlessly, and unhampered by pseudo-scientific theories and scruples, expresses what he feels in listening to music. Then I thought of Bismarck's paradoxical remark to Mr. Hobrecht, high official whom he had chosen as minister of finance. When Hobrecht tried to excuse himself on the fact that he knew nothing about these matters, Bismarck said: "So much the better. Then you will be unprejudiced." It is a rather dangerous theory, but it justifies my talking about pictures, since I shall have no difficulty in proving that I do not know anything about them.

VERY many people go to the Art institute because they think that it is decent to have been there. They go so that they may be able to talk about art in case somebody should be inconsiderate enough to mention the matter in their presence. It happens seldom enough, but one never can tell. Nowadays you are apt to meet art maniacs even in the safest places, and in such an emergency it is nice to know that one has seen "it," whatever it may be. Some people go there because daddy has made very much money recently, and it seems time now to infuse the younger members of the family with a dose of idealism. Some people go because they have heard that to be refined you must have a smattering of art. Some people go because they are yearning for a higher life.

The motives are irrelevant. The main thing is that they should go. Even if their visit is only a result of social considerations, it is meritorious and may do them good. Those who do not go are the barbarians, and they know not what they are missing.

But most of the mentioned visitors are at a loss what they shall do after they have entered the holy precincts of the unfamiliar building, and to those I am going to talk. I shall tell them one thing only, and if they believe it, it were worth while for me to write this article and for them to read it.

Hearken to me! Thus spake Zarathustra: You don't go to a gallery or a museum to instruct yourself, to uplift yourself, to fulfill a social duty, to climb one step higher on the intellectual scale; you go there to enjoy yourself. I wish I could write these three words in imperishable letters. Generally very skeptical about the influence of writings, and particularly so about my own work, I claim that these three words may be immensely useful to many an unsophisticated reader. They may give him an absolutely new idea about art. The very word sounds forbidding to lots of people, because they associate it with everything that is highbrow. Why? Are there written on the frontispiece of the Art institute Dante's words: "All hope abandon, ye who enter here"? The words which I see there run like this: "Come in, all you who are miserable and burdened, and I shall comfort you!"

SO do not go in there with the idea that you are facing a corvée, a disagreeable duty; do not think of your mind and soul; check all puritanism with your overcoat, and tell yourself that you want some fun. Remember that art appeals to the senses and that you will have a feast for the eyes. The sense of the eyes is terribly neglected; in a thousand people there is hardly one who can "see." The eye has to be trained, but do not think of any training now, and for heaven's sake do not buy a catalogue! If you go at it in this pedantical way, you will never be a lover of art, and that is what we all ought to be: "dilettanti," which means "lovers." In the catalogue there are hundreds of names and they will only frighten you.

No, simply saunter around, look at the pictures here and there, and wait until something happens. Maybe nothing is going to happen, but that does not matter. Sit down when you are tired. Don't try to like something you don't like. Be sincere with yourself. (Very few of us are or try to be.) After half an hour stroll out of the building and say: "Well, I'll give it another chance some time!" But do not despair. You have not got the trick, that is all. Perhaps the light was not good in the exhibition rooms, perhaps there was no light in yourself. There are days when we are dull and obtuse. I have seen the same picture in different moods and the impressions I received were entirely different.

BUT maybe that while strolling around all of a sudden you will feel an electric shock. There is a picture which seems "queer" to you. At first sight you do not know more than that. You may even think that you do not like it. It is attractive and repulsive at the same time. But it has got you and now you have only to wait a little.

The German philosopher Schopenhauer said that before a picture one ought to behave as in the presence of royalty. We must be silent until his majesty speaks to us. So for a while look at the queer picture and await its addressing you. Do not try to "understand" it with your intellect. It is not very important whether it tells a story or not. Ask yourself if for some still undiscovered reason it appeals to you, and if you can say yes without cheating yourself, then in this epoch making moment you have become a "dilettante," an "amateur," and probably you will advance to the rank of Mæcenas as soon as you have piled up the first million. Ask yourself if there is something in the picture which you like particularly, a certain color, certain lines, and if there are any details which you dislike. So you will develop an individual judgment.

At this very moment you may hit upon a friend who is a scholar or a painter. In the overflowing ecstasy of your first successful excursion into the realm of art you may tell him what you think of this picture and he may blast your joy in informing you politely, but firmly that you are a know-nothing, that your taste is abominable, and that the picture which you thought a wonder is a daub. Then, please, don't get excited or discouraged and, above all, don't believe him. Your taste is better than his, I tell you, because it is your taste. If a pessimist tries to impress on you his theory that life is a very poor thing, you will probably answer: "Maybe, but it is the only life I have got!" It is the same with taste. Be glad you have a taste, poor as it may be! There is lots of time to develop and improve it, and the day may not be far off when you will inform a timid newcomer that he has no idea of art and that the object of his admiration is a horror to the initiated. Tell your friend that the picture is beautiful and dare him to prove the contrary. If he starts for the demonstration, interrupt him and say:

"I beg your pardon, but at first it seems necessary to lay the foundation for an intelligent and fruitful discussion. Tell me, please, what beauty is!"

The Highbrow (coughing, but hiding his trouble under an air of importance): "Beauty is a certain harmony of color and line."

"I see. That is very illuminating. But what is harmony."

After five minutes of this sort of heavy-footed talk, which, as you know, Socrates introduced us to long, long ago, when there was no rush and no struggle for life, the Highbrow will admit that he cannot define Beauty (nobody can), that he can only feel it, and that you two feel it differently. But it will be interesting to you to hear what he admires or finds fault with in the picture. Sometimes one single word opens a window from which you will enjoy a wonderful vista over unknown regions.

I SHALL mention two pictures in the Art institute which gave me the electric shock. One is Rembrandt's portrait of his father, the other one a Sargent. The Sargent is wonderfully done; it is the last word in delicacy and raffinement. The Rembrandt looks not "made" but created. One cannot imagine it differently. This, I think, is the test of the highest achievement. It probably is a wonderful technical stunt to paint the metal on the velvet, but this is an afterthought. For many, many minutes the spectator will not think of any possible difficulties which the painter may have overcome; he will only know: This it as it must be. In Sargent you feel intentions, intellectual selection; before the Rembrandt you forget the human medium.

You, friend newcomer, will perhaps at first like loud things. That does not matter; it will wear off. Culture is sense of shades. Every time you visit the Art institute you will become more quiet. Great art gives calmness, and that is one of its moral effects. (I do not like to talk about moral effects. The other day a gentleman said to me that he was sometimes missing moral consciousness in American life, and I answered that I was missing æsthetic consciousness, adding rather petulantly that this seemed much harder to bear to me.) Don't you go to see pictures when your tailor threatens to sue you; there is no healing power in them for such a special case. But I am convinced that the intercourse with Beauty makes us stronger, detaches us from many pettinesses, and gives us one of the most precious treasures of the soul: acquiescence.

Soon you will recognize your favorites, because the great ones have their style and the minor ones have their mannerisms. But do not imagine that there is only one way that leads to paradise. Another effect of occasional visits to the Art institute is that you become broader minded; you see in how many different manners you may approach Beauty, and so you allow other people to choose their own road. Raphael's imagination was of the linear kind, Titian's coloristic, Velasquez depended on space, Rembrandt saw his subjects in light and shadow. The amateur is so wonderfully situated that he may adore them all. On the other hand, he may be unjust, if he like to, and nobody can blame him. I, for one, hate Rubens' women, and I dislike the red topped liquory noses which the adorable Botticelli gives to his angels. So, dear neophyte, speak out what is in your heart. It does not matter whether it is clever or not, so long as it is sincere. But do not talk about schools and craftsmanship. Don't say, "It reminds me of Segantini," when it reminds you of nothing, and don't use any technical terms, because this is not the right way of enjoying art. Be yourself and leave technicalities to those who have given their lives to the craft. If you dislike a great painter simply say: "I do not understand him." Perhaps you will after a few years, for our understanding depends on our age and our experiences. When I was young I preferred Chopin to Beethoven; now Chopin has too much perfume to me, violet, maybe, but scientifically distilled for the use of a mondaine.

WHAT is the standard of greatness? There is none. Most people say that Posterity is a good judge. I cannot see why it should be. What is Posterity made of? It consists of human beings who probably will not be much more enlightened than our own generation. Intellectual progress is very slow and it is a very dubious question if there is any progress of taste at all. Is Pinero greater than Sophocles, Rodin greater than Michelangelo? Posterity itself changes constantly in its opinions. The taste of the twentieth century is very different from that of the eighteenth. So, if you don't like Corot or Israëls or another painter of world-wide reputation, there is nobody who has authority enough to call you down.

Goethe has said that the moral aim of education is reverence (Ehrfurcht), but on the other hand lack of respect is sometimes refreshing and renewing. So, for instance, Shakespeare had become a bore on the other side, because managers and actors treated him with reverential awe. The cleverest men had interpreted him and commented on him until the actors played him tremblingly. They were stiff and awkward with fear. Then the Italians took him up and as they are not quite so brimful of scholarship as the Germans and consider every non-Latin a barbarian, they played him just like any other repertoire play and that was just the right way to bring him back to life.

Artists do a great deal of theorizing, but Goethe was right when he said: "Bilde, Künstler, rede nicht!" (Form, artist, don't talk!) Theorizing may be very fertile if it is restricted to technical questions, but the moment people begin with the words: "Art must . . . " then take to your heels! Art must . . . nothing at all. There has been the theory that a portrait must be true, there has been the theory that the painter ought to paint his model as nature "had intended it," then there was the theory that the painter like a mind-reader should discover the real essence of the human being who was sitting for him. In spite of these and other theories every painter is painting . . . himself, while painting others. Art scorns pedantry and the unbounded riches of individual expression make us wish that life might never end to enjoy them again and again.

But you must begin some time! Why not today? as the ads have it. A short time ago I read in the "line" the following sentences: "Our friend T. T. was accosted by a lady on the Boul. Mich.: 'Can you tell me,' said she, 'where the Art institute is?' Without replying T. T. fled toward Wabash avenue." Please, don't imitate T. T.!

WARS' ORIGINS

By H. H. Powers

Through the courtesy of the Macmillan company, publisher, "The Tribune" is able to present herewith an article which forms part of a chapter in H. H. Powers' highly interesting and enlightening book, "The Things Men Fight For." Mr. Powers was at one time professor of economics in Stanford university. He has lived for varied intervals in every country now at war and while there has studied the political and economic character of each.

THE present war is not due wholly to personal ambitions or to defective political institutions. Underneath these transient influences there are stubborn facts of a far more permanent and compelling nature which predispose men to a certain line of action. The ambitions of princes, the intrigues of diplomats, the hates and enthusiasms of people, all these are precipitating causes of war and must be held to their share of accountability. But closer observation usually discloses the fact that these forces of sentiment themselves correspond pretty closely to facts of environment.

If that environment involves permanent dangers or needs, these soon become the object of a persistent purpose, the center of a cult which enlists in its service all the energy and devotion of the race. This devotion to a hereditary faith may become automatic and blind. That is true of the cults of war as of peace.

The oft repeated criticism that a soldier does not know what he is fighting about proves neither his indifference nor the futility of his sacrifice. How many of us can give any other reason for nine-tenths of the things we do, than that we follow the example or the behest of our people? This ritualizing of life, by which concert action becomes automatic and unthinking, is the essence of all social procedure.

What then determines this ritual which is handed down from generation to generation, which is chanted by babes and veterans? Whence this legacy of unswerving purpose, of persistent jealousy and hate? Only one answer has any significance. The mind of the race shapes itself to its environment. Every feature of the landscape, as it were, generates its appropriate sentiment. Each bulwark gives confidence, each opportunity rouses ambition, each danger engenders suspicion and distrust.

And as these potentialities are realized in experience, their corresponding sentiments are modified and reinforced. Continued success along line of natural opportunity will give momentum to ambition, until expansion becomes a habit of thought, not to say a gospel, while repeated checks at the point of national need or disasters from the danger quarter will leave their legacy of sullenness and hate.

Never was this truth so exemplified as in the case of the present war. It is in a sense a peculiarly normal or typical war. Any number of minor incidents might have been different, but its main features were inevitable. Every nation involved has a case. Not one could have done differently without violating all traditional standards of prudence and patriotism. Not one would have acted differently from any other if it had been in that other's place. Nor could one of them have acted without the danger, almost the certainty, of disaster.

To illustrate: Japan in Germany's place, would not have perpetrated the Belgian atrocities (the Boxer campaign proved that), but she would have invaded Belgium. So would England or France or the United States. Conversely, Germany in Japan's place would have ousted her rival from Tsingtao. If Britain had been in the place of Germany she would never have submitted to permanent repression and exclusion from all possibility of colonial expansion, with the certainty of being outgrown and outclassed, and equally Germany in Britain's place would not have entertained for a moment the idea of parting with her colonies or jeopardizing the security of their possession.

These decisions are absolute, these interests vital, as human nature now stands. Never was a war so long foreseen, so deliberate, so free from misunderstanding. There was plenty of inveterate hate, but no sudden tempest of passion which swept men off their feet and befogged their senses. All participants, of course, have played to the galleries and pettifogged their case, as men are wont to do in war and peace, seeking to marshal the sentiments of men to their advantage or to the embarrassment of their opponents, but only the willing are deceived.

Who was responsible for the war? Serbia, says Austria, for if she had ceased her agitation we should have dwelt in peace; Austria, says Russia, for had she not demanded the impossible Serbia would have yielded all; Russia, says Germany, for had she not interfered in a quarrel that was none of her affair Serbia would have yielded; Germany, says Britain, for a word from her would have restrained Austria; Britain, says Germany, for Russia would not have interfered unless assured of British support. And all are true.

There is not one of these, from the least unto the greatest, that could not have stopped the war by retraining from the fatal step. And there is not one of them that could have refrained without sacrificing its vital interests. Serbia, by ceasing its agitation, would have abandoned her hope of uniting her people and reaching the sea. Austria, by lessening her demands, would have risked the integrity of her empire. Russia, by holding aloof would have lost to a rival the key of her empire. Germany, by restraining Austria, would have closed up the only escape from her prison, and would have accepted for herself and her civilization the status of another Holland. Britain, if she had held aloof, would have insured Germany's victory, would have lost her command of the sea, and would have ceased to be an empire. Peace can always be purchased, but sometimes the price is one which men are not willing to pay.

Ought men to pay the price? For outsiders, dimly conscious or wholly oblivious of the interests at stake, it is easy to urge compromise, concession, conciliation. Let us successively become patriots of the different countries involved, seeing the problem of the national life, so far as we may, as they see it. What would we as patriots—honest, reasonable patriots—counsel them to do?

We are Servians for the moment, simple, rustic, and plodding. We have suffered from Turkish oppression and shaken ourselves free. We have raised our grain and our cattle for the markets of Europe, and have seen them held up at the border while our neighbor's flocks drove by. We have reached out our hands to our kinsmen who held the ports which we needed and we have seen these kinsmen overwhelmed by an alien power and stationed as an unwilling barrier between ourselves and the sea.

Reluctantly, we have turned away from our fettered kinsmen to seek elsewhere a route for our commerce, at the same time avenging old oppression and ending modern abuse. And, lo! our old enemy of the north appears again and drives us back into the woods. Again we have appealed to our kinsmen, this time more passionately than before, to release us from our prison, and they begin to listen and to turn against their oppressor and ours. And now comes the summons from the arch enemy, surrender or be annihilated. What will we do?

Austria speaks. Let us pause and summon all our self-control, for we have undertaken a difficult transmutation. We are to become Austrians now, born to the part, and knowing no other. The blind law of loyalty, which is the inheritance of all men, predisposes us to see Austria's dangers rather than Austria's sins. There are jars in the household—none without know it so well as we—but, thanks to the law of the household, they are only jars and not fratricidal feuds. We shudder to think what would happen if that restraining bond were removed. And now that danger threatens.

A neighbor, with ways that are dark, is inciting the least loyal among us to open revolt and hostility. We court the neighbor's friendship, but in vain. We debar him from neighbor privileges, but to no purpose. Sullen and resentful, he establishes himself in our doorway, and we eject him as a matter of the simplest prudence. But he has won adherents in our midst, and our destined leader falls under the assassin's hand. What shall we do? We know whence the trouble comes, know that there is more trouble to come from that source, know that ruin will be the penalty for indulgence. What shall we do?

Again a long breath and a difficult transition. We are to become Russians now, loyal children of the "little father." Our land is broad and backward, and we are rude and poor. Perhaps we are at fault, but we cannot quite see why. The fact is that it is not easy to get about in our land, and we have no sure exit to the lands of others. The ease of communication and the interplay of influence which characterize the peninsulas of western Europe, we have never known, and that is why we are where we are. Slowly the best thought of our people has fixed upon this as the one great need—outlet to the world. At the best we must always be cramped. If we had all the outlets that nature has provided, we should still be the most isolated, the most imprisoned of nations.

And now Austria, backed by Germany, whose hostility is almost a foregone conclusion, approaches Constantinople with plausible pretext but with unmistakable intent. Serbia once occupied, our chance is gone. There will be no arguing with such a gatekeeper. If we go in and out this door, it will be on Germany's terms. Shall we accept this inevitable retardation of our progress, this handicap on our commerce and our intercourse with other peoples? Shall we tolerate the annexation of Serbia?

As Germans we shall view the situation with passionate prejudice, but with minds accustomed in an unusual degree to take a look far into the future. For the present, all is well. We are strong and no nation will dare attack us. We are prosperous, our industry and our commerce having gained rapidly on all rivals. We are united. If there are jars, they are born of the confidence of unity, the impossibility of sedition. What more do we want?

We want a future, and if we sit still and diligently farm our little estate we shall not have it. We have thought far enough ahead to realize that in the great arena of civilization the number of contestants is diminishing and their size is increasing. We are not small enough to give up without trying, but we are too small to stand the slightest chance of being in at the finals. We have tried to become larger and have failed. The owners will not part with their holdings. We are doomed.

Our situation is peculiarly trying. We have learned to think about this danger of the future as others have not. So they, seeing only our present well being, chide us for our discontent. We are dimly conscious, too, that we have not the gift of winning sympathy or of persuasively presenting our case. It is a cheerless task, this pleading of a cause whose need is obscured by present affluence and before a tribunal incapable of sympathy. Yet no one has a clearer case or a more desperate need.

These reflections have long ago led us to the only feasible plan of escape. We must move south and east, annexing, absorbing, subduing as need may be, till we have passed the Bosporus and reached the Persian gulf, and won an empire that touches the four seas. We shall have all Europe against us, the needy because they want what we are after, and the possessing because they fear to lose what they possess, but every day we wait increases the odds against us. We cannot outgrow them. We can possibly outfight them—if we do not delay.

And now Russia reaches out for Serbia, which is one of our stepping stones. Indeed, we have provoked the challenge, knowing that it will come tomorrow if not today. It is an awful responsibility, but awful is the alternative. Present ease and comfort and after that insignificance in a world whose destinies we were meant to shape. What is that but the choice of Esau, the sale of our brithright for a mess of pottage?

Does all this seem far fetched? Not so to a German. Expansion or extinction, so he reads his horoscope, and he reads it right.

The case of France scarce calls for discussion. By common consent her rôle was inevitable. The sympathy of the world has been hers, even the sympathy of her enemies. Had she been allowed to choose she could scarce have hesitated, but she was spared the necessity of choice. Germany could take no chances. As a probable antagonist, France must be the first in the field and so the first to be attacked. As Frenchmen we should have made the Frenchman's choice.

Belgium has an option, the option of ignominious surrender or of resistance and ruin. We all see the option and honor the choice she made. The thing we do not see is that other countries were confronted by the same option an made the same choice. Is it any more noble to fight for an existence that is doomed today than to fight for an existence that is doomed in a hundred years? It is merely easier to see one's way and feel one's duty.

Suppose Britain had remained neutral. Germany would have invaded Belgium and overrun France. Both would have been forced into an alliance with Germany, which, however unwilling, would have given Germany control of the French navy and the French and Belgian ports. She would have established herself in Morocco and matched Gibraltar. She would have established a naval base in French China and neutralized Hongkong. Above all, she would have won in the present war and would have become unmistakably dominant on the continent.

There might never have been a war with Britain; indeed, there probably would have been none, for the reason that war for Britain would have been hopeless. Britain would have been isolated. She could never hope to meet Germany on land, and as Germany, by controlling the continent, could control its navies, Britain could never hope to meet her on the sea. If Britain retained her colonies, it would be because Germany did not care to take them. Judging by many pronouncements, Britain would not have retained them.

And so the close linked circle closes.

Necessity is riveted in every link. To challenge this necessity is to challenge the right of nations to grow or to compete for the requisites of their being and growth. It is hardly possible to concede their right to be without conceding their right to strive for necessary, even favorable, conditions of being. And this point conceded, we are faced with the disturbing fact that nature has not fashioned the world into natural areas for nations to occupy, each with its needed resources and its suitable approaches and defenses, like well planned houses in a street, but has so arranged things that no possible division can give to each the simplest requirements of independence and protection.

What is more fundamental than that each should have its own doorway? Yet there are nothing like enough doorways to go round. What more reasonable than that each should have protection for its premises? Yet there are neighbor families that are separated by nothing but a chalk line on the floor. No, could any man or body of men arrange a division of Europe among existing nations which would be free from these provocations to strife. Verily, the stars in their courses fight against nationalism as a static fact among men.

A DANGEROUS TOPIC

By Robert Herrick

DURING the recent crisis in our relations with Germany, when President Wilson was vainly trying to hold Germany "strictly accountable" for the murder of American citizens, it was commonly said among persons who ought to know, some of them in responsible positions in Washington, that if a vote on the question were taken the majority of Americans would prefer to go to war with Great Britain to fighting Germany. I think it was a wrong guess. I hope so!

But the action of congress on the submarine outrages certainly gave color to the assertion. It is simply incredible to me that a considerable body of Americans would prefer a war with England to a war with Germany. I am well aware of the coolness of many Americans toward Great Britain: she is without doubt the least popular of the allied nations in the United States. But I cannot believe that this lukewarness of sentiment about England is sufficient so to warp our moral judgment that as a nation we would class her offenses against us with those of Germany. Whether we like England personally or not, whether we have entire faith in her professions of generosity in this war or not, at least we must realize that her aggressions in regard to us have been civil rather than criminal, while Germany's have been wholly criminal.

Otherwise we should have to assume that Americans regard damage to trade, interference with mails, censored news, etc., as equal to or worse than the killing of American citizens—and that is inconceivable. The president put the distinction between the two classes of offenses very clearly in his speech of acceptance: the two categories of wrongdoing are in no way comparable, and reparation for the two must be sought by entirely different means.

READING the president's excellent remarks on this topic has brought me to consider once more the sources of that widespread prejudice against the British which undoubtedly exists in this country. Why do Americans, those of Anglo-Saxon blood as well as others, entertain suspicion and dislike of a great nation whose kinship of blood, similarity of institutions, and closeness of business relations, as well as her geographical position and the general drift of her civilization, ought to bring her into a more friendly intimacy with us than that of any other two nations on the globe?

As children we are taught in our school histories a lot of jingo rot that finds expression in the crude statement, "We licked 'em once, and we can lick 'em again!" But only the most ignorant and unthinking are susceptible to such prejudice. A livelier source of irritation, of course, is found in Great Britain's conduct in regard to neutral commerce during the present war. But the seizure of our goods and mails would not cause such resentment as it has were there not other deeper grounds already existent for dislike.

The British manner of doing things is often detestable, maddening; it is arrogant, cocksure, and blunt. The Englishman is not in his general social relations a genial or sympathetic human being, and his government reflects his tactlessness. The Englishman is thick skinned, sure that he is right, unimaginative about the lives of others. The English government seems to be headstrong and arrogant. It is a difficult combination, not exactly lovable. In the present case Great Britain has assumed too easily that as a nation we must realize we have common cause with the allies and accept those inconveniences to our trade which must arise if they are to prosecute their war successfully against Germany.

Many of us do sympathize with the allies, consider that in a very real sense they are fighting our battles for us, and consequently think it somewhat trivial and captious of our government to pester the allies with protests because our trade relations with Germany are interfered with by the British blockade. But as a nation the United States has elected to remain neutral, and England has not managed our national susceptibilities, due to our neutrality. She has taken things too much for granted, knowing how good a business we have made out of our neutrality by selling the allies what they have to have at first class prices, feeling also that she is doing a good job for us in putting Germany in her place. All this irritation is regrettable, and largely traceable to the devious diplomacy of the Democratic administration concerning the war. It has all followed from our first false steps.

DEEPER, perhaps, than all these reasons for American prejudice against Great Britain is a suspicion in the hearts of many Americans of the integrity of British aims, not merely in this war but in her past. Her activity in the Paris economic conference—if it were not solely for bluff—would not reassure us. Instead of that chivalrous devotion to the rights of small nations and the cause of European peace, it might appear to suspicious eyes that England is preparing to feather her own nest commercially after the war and to eliminate in one way or another her most dangerous rival for world trade. Many of the utterances of British statesmen give color to this suspicion. And England's record in the past is against any easy belief in her disinterestedness.

What rôle will England play at the peace conference, assuming that the allies will be able to make their own terms? Will it be the greedy or the magnanimous rôle? I, for one, do not feel sure. I suspect that England will be found with her pockets full of good things after the great treaty of peace has been signed, although her statesmen will still be emitting idealistic sentiments. It is not for nothing that Great Britain has won the reputation of the world's arch hypocrite. (Why not have dropped before this the cant about Belgium, and said frankly that England went into the war because it was undesirable to have Germany in possession of her front gate?)

Nevertheless, after giving due consideration to all these grounds of suspicion among Americans of England, of English statesmanship and English policy, nothing seems clearer than that the United States should seek as soon as possible to make some sort of alliance with her powerful next door neighbor. Assuming (as most far sighted American thinkers do now assume) that ultimately the people of the United States must awaken to the folly and futility of our traditional policy of isolation, that they will perceive, perhaps under the urgency of some great crisis, the necessity of taking their part in world politics, of aligning themselves with one or another of the great peoples in influencing the destiny of the world, the logical inevitability of choosing Great Britain as that world power with which to ally ourselves is axiomatic.

Such an alliance, to begin with its simple advantages, would obviate the folly of an immense expansion in naval power. So long as we are not on terms of close alliance with Great Britain we might as well have no navy as a second class one. With England we could do very well with what we already have.

But the real reasons for seeking an alliance with Great Britain are far deeper. The saving of the world from another cataclysm like the present war can only be accomplished by the union of great powers whose common convictions and interests urge them to work for peace. No other of the great powers have such strong incentives toward preserving the equilibrium of peace as have we and Great Britain. No other nation seems to value peace as highly as do the two great English speaking peoples. None other have so little to gain from the use of aggressive force, so much to lose! England and the United States, in close alliance for the maintenance of world peace, would be well nigh impregnable in their might. And the union of the English speaking peoples would give an overwhelming impetus to their common ideals of a peaceful, business life, of development of free institutions and self-government. For the English, with all their disabilities of temperament, are nearer to us in ideals than any other people.

A MORE potent reason even than the above for seeking an alliance with Great Britain is the influence which we should be able to exert on English policy and on the world at large after the war. The economic policies to be adopted after the war, especially in regard to Germany, are of prime importance to us, and afford an illustration of what our influence might be upon England. Americans would not tolerate a bloodless war of trade reprisals against the central powers, both for the sake of preserving peace and for our own selfish interest. Recognizing the value to them of a close alliance with the most powerful and the richest nation outside of European influences, Great Britain might well hesitate to inaugurate such a fatal trade war as would render that alliance forever impossible.

And there are other moot questions, such as the sore point of the freedom of the seas, in which our influence could easily be momentous. There are things which England herself presumably would like to be saved from doing which we should be in a position to insist should not be done. Finally, there must be tendencies among the motley array of her present allies which Great Britain will fear. Alone, she might not be able to withstand their insistence for a ruthless repartition of the world, but with us her great prestige would be enormously increased.

Thinking men are saying things like these in private conversations—not Anglomaniacs by any means, not parasitic boot lickers of English aristocracy, but men, like myself, who have no great warmth of feeling for certain British traits. They are not said in congress, because perhaps the most cowardly atmosphere in the world is the atmosphere of the American congress: witness its performance over the eight hour demands of the bullying railroad brotherhoods! They are not being said, yet, by our presidential candidates, although President Wilson, with characteristic vagueness, has thrown out the suggestion that some sort of alliance between us and European nations for the maintenance of world peace might not be unthinkable. Candidate Hughes has scrupulously eschewed any reference to international statesmanship in his platitudinous discourses. It is, of course, considered suicidal by the politician to advocate deliberately an alliance between the United States and Great Britain. But the Republican campaign undeniably lacks ginger: courage would give it ginger. Let the Republican managers hand the topic over to the colonel! He would not be afraid of it, and if it created too great an explosion for the politicians the candidate could repudiate it.

AS I write the news comes that the senate has voted a truculent sort of retaliatory clause to a national defense bill designed to shake the American fist in England's face. Probably England will estimate this performance at its true value, as a campaign measure for pacifying the German vote by giving the president the power to "do something to England." All the same, it is not calculated to promote good feeling and understanding between this defenseless nation and our best customer and involuntary protector. It is another bit of ammunition for the Republicans to use in their campaign if they have the nerve to use it and accept squarely all the consequences.

HEAVY SELLING CAUSES SETBACK IN WHEAT MART

No Fireworks in September Futures—Longs Liquidate—Argentine News Bullish.

Longs in September wheat did the liquidating instead of the bulls. Early the September wheat advanced sharply and there was anxiety on the part of the shorts, but the demand was supplied on the rally, and near the close holders tried to unload and found little demand, the market breaking badly. The slump in September increased the selling of the deferred months, which closed ⅛@¼c lower after an early advance, while the September was 2½c off.

The cash trade was moderate, with sales here of 40,000 bu. Omaha reported 200,000 bu taken by eastern exporters at the highest prices so far paid. Cash prices generally were maintained relative to the futures. Receipts in the northwest for the week were 4,327 cars, against 11,579 cars a year ago. Winnipeg arrivals aggregated 3,767 cars, against 11,860 cars a year ago. Clearances were 477,000 bu. Winnipeg cash prices were lower, No. 1 northern selling 3c over the October.

Argentine Cables Bullish.

Most of the Argentine news was bullish. There were rumors of rains in Santa Fé, which caused some selling, but latest cables received said there had been no rain except in parts of the southern provinces, while the crop prospects were called unfavorable, the situation being regarded as critical in some sections. Rosario was 1½c higher. The strength at the latter market did not indicate any change in weather conditions.

Liverpool spot wheat was unchanged. The decline in American markets was offset abroad by smaller stocks. Indian shipments were 1,792,000 bu, and Australia shipped 676,000 bu. Receipts here were 92 cars and primary receipts were 1,603,000 bu, compared to 2,765,000 bu a year ago.

Weak Close in Corn.

Corn prices were steady to a little higher early, but closed unchanged to ⅛@⅜c lower. Shorts in September corn were supplied with all they wanted by Armour at 89⅞c. There were no speculative fireworks in the trade whatever. Weather conditions over the belt were favorable.

Cables were unchanged to ½d up, with Plate offers reported firm. Receipts here were 248 cars, with primary receipts 673,000 bu, compared to 819,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were only 1,000 bu. Country sales to arrive were small. Commission houses were fair buyers early. On the advance there was free selling of December and May. Trade was largely of a local character.

September Oats Higher.

September oats closed ⅛c up. Other months finished ¼c lower. The trade was without special feature, except for a little covering by shorts in the September and even that demand was not especially urgent. Receipts were 193 cars. Primary arrivals were 1,132,000 bu, compared to 1,016,000 a year ago. Clearances were 8,000 bu. Commission houses were fair sellers on the advances. Early the market was a little firmer in sympathy with wheat.

The trade in products was of moderate proportions. Shorts bid up the September products in order to close their trades. The other months were fairly steady with packers giving October stuff some support, while there was indifferent support in the January deliveries. Receipts were 14,000, with 31,000 for Monday and 135,000 for the coming week. Hogs were 15@23c lower at the yards. Western receipts were 422,800, compared to 350,000 a year ago.

Rye Market Steady.

Rye was steady with sales of No. 2 at $1.24½; poor car No. 3 at $1.17, and No. 4, $1.17. Receipts were 5 cars.

Barley ruled steady. Malting was quoted 88c@$1.15 and sold 90c@$1.15; feed and mixing quotable, 75@88c, and sold 87c; screenings were quoted 55@78c, with sales at 60@70c; skimmings quoted 55@66c. Receipts, 86 cars.

Timothy seed held steady. October closed $5.15 bid and March, $5.60 bid. Cash lots sold $2.50@5.25. Clover seed was unchanged with cash lots quoted $8.00@14.00.

Duluth flax closed 1½@2½c lower. Cash on track, $2.28¾@2.29¼; October, $2.27½; December, $2.27, and May, $2.30½. Receipts, 10 cars. Minneapolis was 1⅜c lower with cash on track $2.26¾@2.30¼; receipts were 29 cars. Winnipeg closed ⅛@⅝c higher. October, $2.11½, and December, $2.10½. Receipts were 6 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE

Export business in wheat was quiet here. Sales were 40,000 bu here, with 25,000 bu for export. Omaha prices were firm relatively and there were sales there of 200,000 bu. In the northwest the cash markets were firm relatively, with a good demand for milling grades of wheat. Winnipeg spot wheat was weak, the demand being slow, with buyers evidently trying to depress prices. No. 1 northern was down to 3c over the October and offerings were quite liberal. Cash corn was steady to 1c up and oats ½c off. Shipping sales were 60,000 bu corn and 120,000 bu oats, with 20,000 bu corn and 60,000 bu oats to exporters. One house sold 17,000 bu No. 2 yellow corn at 94c c. i. f. Buffalo.

Scattered holders of September wheat who expected to profit by an eleventh hour bulge in the price were disappointed and in the last few minutes efforts of these holders to sell caused a bad break in the September. At one time the September was off from the top at $1.50½, but the close was $1.52, or 2c under December. In corn Armour supplied the September corn at 89⅞c and there was no attempt to run any squeeze. In oats the September closed a little higher on scattered buying, but trade was not active especially. September pork had a little rally on belated short covering. There has been a considerable shortage in September pork for some time past.

The London linseed market was firm, reflecting Argentine reports. Buenos Aires was reported firm and Rosario strong for flaxseed. Locust damage was reported from Argentina, where the drought continues. Spot seed was said to be scarce abroad.

Indian wheat shipments for the week were 1,792,000 bu, while Australia shipped only 676,000 bu. The expected increase in shipments from the southern hemisphere so far has failed to materialize.

The Oklahoma state report for October, as wired by C. A. King & Co., makes the final yield of wheat in that state 27,500,000 bu; corn, 55,800,000 bu, and oats, 16,800,000 bu. Amount of wheat left in farmers' hands is 27 per cent, corn 82 per cent, and oats 44 per cent.

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 92 cars; corn, 248 cars; oats, 193 cars; rye, 5 cars; barley, 86 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 31,000 head and for all next week 135,000 head.

Omaha sold 50,000 bu wheat for export Friday at 13c over December track New York. Eastern exporters were said to be bidding strong, while only a few small lots were offered.

Arthur Cutten, who has been credited with trading heavily in September wheat the last few days, said yesterday he had not made a trade in September wheat in a month.

Northwest receipts of wheat for the week were 4,327 cars, compared to 11,579 cars a year ago. Winnipeg had 3,760 cars, against 11,860 cars a year ago.

Weather conditions in Australia are said to be more favorable, with crop prospects improving. Some early seeding has commenced in India.

Heath T. Byford made application for membership on the board of trade and Edward A. Crawford posted a membership for transfer.

The rate of interest for the month of October has been fixed at 5 per cent per annum by the finance committee.

Minneapolis wheat stocks showed an increase of 100,000 bu for one day.

Further reductions of 10@15c were made in hog prices at Chicago yesterday, and some sales were at a loss of fully 25c from Friday's best figures. The trade was in a semi-demoralized condition, with packers freely asserting they intended to force values below the $10 mark. Receipts were posted at 13,000 head, the best of which sold at $10.50, while the bulk made $9.65@10.30.

Final prices were the lowest made since early in August and showed net losses of 60c to $1 since the close last week, the lightweight hogs being off 75c@$1, while heavy and packing grades showed a decline of 60@80c. The average price of all receipts here this week was placed at $10.40, against an average of $10.85 last week.

CATTLE.

With lighter total receipts there was a shortage of prime steers at Chicago this week and prices of animals selling up from $9.00 finished at a net gain of 10c to 25c for the week. Cheap lightweight steers came into competition with rangers and sold on a weak basis, closing 15c to 25c lower. Cows and heifers suffered the same way and to the same extent. Western cattle, however, were of more desirable quality than previously received consignments and sold to better advantage, closing strong. Best native steers sold at $11.25, while rangers reached $9.65 and range yearlings sold up to $9.50. The latter was a record for western youngsters. Fat cattle met with a good demand and there was a satisfactory outward movement of feeding and stock cattle.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 293,500, against 297,700 the preceding week, 225,900 a year ago, and 207,400 two years ago. Total for 1916 to date, 6,122,000, against 5,327,000 the same period in 1915.

SHEEP.

Sharp downward revisions were made in prices of fat sheep and lambs this week, while feeding grades held on a steady basis. Fat ewes declined 50c, wethers and yearlings lost 25@50c, and fat lambs dropped 50@75c. Receipts were of about the same volume as for the preceding week, but the demand was shortened and packers complained of congested conditions in the dressed mutton trade. Lambs topped the week at $10.85, but closed with $10.00 about the best quotable price. Sheep sold up to $8.50 for wethers and $7.50 for ewes. The latter closed at $7.00 for the best.

MORE FREIGHT RATE BOOSTS IN IRON AND STEEL HALTED.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Freight tariffs proposing increased rates on iron and steel for export from Chicago, Pittsburgh, and other eastern cities to Pacific coast points were suspended by the interstate commerce commission today until Jan. 29 next. The increases would average 10 cents per 100 pounds from Chicago and 3 cents from Pittsburgh. Jan. 29 also is the date to which the eastern export rate increases on iron and steel recently were suspended by the commission.

The commission's action delays pending investigation, the effectiveness of the proposed increases, which would affect the great bulk of the iron and steel business going from the east for export to Japanese, Russian, and other ports, largely for war purposes.

Demand Gates at Crossing.

Recommendations that gates be installed and a policeman assigned to the Sunnyside avenue crossing of the Milwaukee road were made by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Edward Stevens, 6 years old, of 4482 North Lamon avenue, who was killed Friday noon while returning to school.

Annuities Overlooked in America.

The efforts of Americans engaged in productive occupations are directed almost solely to the increasing of their incomes. Some spend their entire earnings, some save a small part and invest it in a more or less perfunctory way, usually following the advice of men who have investments to sell. Very few give any serious thought as to how they will live when their earning power ceases. The result is that most wage earners finally become dependent on relatives, and if they have no relatives able to help them they must turn to public charity in some form. Statistics have been compiled showing that more than nine-tenths of the American men who live to old age thus become dependent.

Such an unpleasant ending is wholly unnecessary in most cases. It is due to the fact that the man gave his whole attention to trying to earn more money and little to the objects of earning it.

One of the surest ways in which a person earning only moderate wages or salary can assure his old age is by buying an annuity. In France, the land of thrift, it is the rule rather than the exception for unmarried wage workers of both sexes to put part of their small savings into an annuity, or, as it is called there, a "lost capital" investment.

All the large insurance companies in the United States sell annuities, but, as the profit is generally small, no efforts are made to push them and little is known by most people about their advantages. Massachusetts recently instituted a system by which savings banks can sell annuities, and it is likely that this will lead to a more general use of them in that state at least.

Pacific Power and Light.

R. C. H.—The Pacific Power and Light company has outstanding $2,500,000 first preferred stock and $1,500,000 second preferred, both 7 per cent cumulative; $6,100,000 common stock and $7,240,000 first and refunding bonds which are now secured by first mortgage. The company's gross and net earnings increased steadily through the severe business depression of 1914. Gross in 1915 was $1,429,967 and net $733,045. This is evidently more than twice the bond interest. Total interest charges were $381,5[illegible], or slightly more than half the net earnings. Preferred dividends were paid and a balance left equal to a little more than 1 per cent on the common. The bonds are entitled to rank as a conservative investment.

Brief Answers.

F. L. N.—Fluctuations of a few points in market quotations of J. I. Case Thrashing Machine company preferred are of little significance. Though the stock is listed few sales are made. Last week 110 shares were sold, the week before 20 and for the two weeks preceding there was no sale.

K. M. C.—The International Cipher Writing Machine company says its assets are potential rather than tangible, and refuses definite information about them at this time.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—The market for coffee futures was quiet today, with prices showing a tendency to ease off under small offerings from trade sources of liquidation for over the week-end. Opening bids were 3 points higher to 5 points lower, but after selling at 8.84c early, December eased off to 8.80c, while May declined from 8.97c to 8.95c, with the market closing net unchanged to 2 points lower. Sales, 10,250 bags. October, 8.90c; December, 8.78c; January, 8.81c; February, 8.84c; March, 8.87c; April, 8.91c; May, 8.95c; June, 8.99c; July, 9.03c; August, 9.07c. Spot coffee quiet; Rio 7s, 9⅛c; Santos 4s, 11⅝c; no fresh offers were reported in the cost and freight market, but it was said that yesterday's cost and freight business aggregated between 75,000 and 100,000 bags, and some thought there was a little selling off of futures against these purchases this morning. The official cable reported an advance of 100 reis in Santos spots and 50 reis in futures, with the Rio market unchanged. Port receipts 52,000 bags; Jundiahy, 33,000 bags. Seasonable weather was reported in Brazil.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—SUGAR—The market for sugar futures was firmer today, in sympathy with the firmness of the spot market late Friday. The fact that refiners had entered the market for raws in a more liberal way led to scattered covering in futures, and, as offerings were light, prices advanced easily, closing 2@6 points net higher. Sales were 2,850 tons; October sold from 4.90@5.00c, closing 9.45c; December 4.50@4.60c, closing 4.59c; March 4.02@4.05c, closing 4.04c; May closed 4.11c, and July 4.17c. Raw and refined sugar, holiday.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—SUGAR—Following prices were quoted by wholesale dealers per 100 lbs: Cut loaf, H. & E., $8.43; powdered standard, $7.51; standard cane granulated, $7.28; beet granulated, $7.13; extra C, $6.90; canary, $6.63.

NEWS OF THE FINANCIAL WORLD

The American Car and Foundry company's common stock is reported to be bought for important financial interests close to the equipment departments of the large railroads. The absorption of the stock is explained to be based on the prospect of large domestic car orders. American Car and Foundry is regarded in Wall street as the strongest of the equipment concerns. Under normal conditions the shares would be considered at current quotations as representing a conservative valuation. There are intimations that the company has received large contracts from domestic and foreign consumers for cars. The position of the company is declared to be the best in its history. Earnings are estimated at about 25 per cent on the common stock, as against 2.67 per cent last year.

The increase of about 12 per cent in prices of cans announced by the American Can company places those articles 50 per cent above the quotations prevailing on Jan. 1 of this year. The figures for American Can company product are now at the highest level in eight years.

According to Wall street public buying yesterday was not heavy. The decline in prices was generally credited to the fear that Germany would renew its submarine warfare and bring about complications with this country.

New York banks are reported to be scrutinizing industrial collateral. Steel stocks particularly are under consideration. It is thought the banks are likely to check the runaway tendency exhibited by some of the steel issues.

Net revenues of the Chicago Great Western railroad for July and August of the present fiscal year showed an increase of $285,293, or 46.29 per cent, and net income after all charges increased $292,476, or 246.83 per cent.

The National City bank of Chicago says in its October circular that there is a feeling of general optimism about the future, but that business men are inclined to be conservative in the matter of new ventures.

From Akron, O., comes the announcement that 50 per cent of the purchase price of the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company is to be paid by eastern capitalists.

The Southern Pacific system has announced that freight east bound or north bound through Galveston or New Orleans via the Morgan line will not be received after midnight, Sept. 30.

The annual report of the Westinghouse Air Brake company will be issued next Thursday and will show the largest earnings in the history of the company.

TRADERS HAMMER PRICES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Traders endeavored, with indifferent success, to arrest the steady advance of prices during today's two hour session, concentrating their efforts upon United States Steel, allies' industrials, and some of the coppers and rails. These various issues were forced down 2 to almost 5 points in the first hour, Steel receding 3⅜ to 116¼, with a more severe break in Republic Steel, while Union Pacific lost 2 points, with 1@2½ for leading metals.

There was substantial support at the lower levels, together with an inquiry of broad dimensions for the coal shares, Norfolk and Western making a new record at 137⅝, Lehigh Valley rising to 85¼, its top quotation of recent years, and Illinois Central and Baltimore and Ohio moving forward appreciably.

Early losses were recovered in large part, Steel, however, manifesting less recuperative power than other leaders. The tone at the close was slightly irregular.

Bank Accounts Decrease.

The weekly bank statement threw some light upon recent market activities, the actual cash account disclosing a contraction of about $24,000,000, while reserves decreased by almost $25,000,000.

Trade advices lost none of their recent glowing character, one of the leading mercantile authorities reporting commodity prices at new high levels, with a wider distribution of general merchandise.

Today's bond market was firm on a fair turnover. There were heavy dealings in international issues during the week. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE.

ANNA WADDELL TO GET DIVORCE FROM AD AGENT

Neighbor of Mrs. Estelle Beckwith Says She Saw Mr. Waddell Often.

Mrs. Estelle Beckwith of 3001 Logan boulevard was named in the divorce proceedings brought by Mrs. Anna Waddell against Collison F. Waddell, president of an advertising agency bearing his name. Judge David indicated he would grant a decree to Mrs. Waddell, who lives at 4042 Kenmore avenue.

Mrs. Edward Pyne, who lives in the apartment above Mrs. Beckwith, testified that she saw Waddell drive up to the Beckwith apartment many times in his automobile.

"They went out together often," said Mrs. Pyne.

Mrs. Waddell testified that her husband pushed her off the running board of their automobile on one occasion.

Mr. Waddell, it was asserted, has an income of $20,000 a year.

An alimony settlement was agreed upon and submitted to the court. Under it Mrs. Waddell will receive $1,000 and title to the Kenmore avenue house upon the entry of the decree. She will also receive a note for $1,000, which is to be paid in installments and $10 a week for eighteen weeks.

R. I. SUBURBAN RATES RAISED

Passenger Agent Announces Commuters Must Pay 20 Per Cent Increase.

SMALL PROFIT REASON.

Suburban rates in the Rock Island railroad territory around Chicago went over to the ranks of the common enemy yesterday as easily, plausibly, and just as surely as bread, coal, rent, and taxes. The shock of a 20 per cent increase in monthly, so-many ride and flat rates on one way or single fare tickets, effective Nov. 1, was administered to commuters by distribution of statements issued by L. M. Allen, passenger traffic manager.

Here's the Explanation.

Starting off, "To Suburban Patrons," the explanation continues:

"For many years fares in the Chicago suburban district of the Rock Island lines have been on a lower basis generally than suburban fares throughout the United States. Carefully compiled statistics show that this traffic has yielded a return of less than 1 per cent on the capital invested. It requires no argument to prove that this is an inadequate return.

"It is self-evident that a carrier must secure sufficient return from the sale of transportation to cover costs and a margin of profit large enough to attract new capital for extensions and improvements, in order to render service commensurate with the needs of the public.

Must Increase Revenue.

"Since existing rates were established millions of dollars have been expended in improvements and betterments directly affecting suburban territory. These investments, together with the largely increased cost of everything entering into passenger train operation, have created fixed charges which must be met by increased revenue."

SOX BEAT CLEVELAND TWICE; BUT BOSTON ALSO WINS

YALE SWAMPS TECH ELEVEN IN 25-0 CLASH

Elis Start Season with an Easy Triumph Over Carnegie Team.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Yale had no trouble in defeating the Carnegie Tech team today, 25 points to 0. On the third play Yale scored its first touchdown when the veteran Harry Legore skimmed around for a sixty yard run, eluding three visiting tacklers. Before the period closed Yale had taken the ball from the center of the field all the way to the visitors' goal for a second touchdown, all the gains being made on short, straight line plunges. Quarterback Travis Smith wedged a hole through center for the score.

During the second period Carnegie displayed its only aggressive football of the game, end runs by Kessner and a plunge through guard by Finlay netting thirty yards and taking the ball to the Yale twenty-five yard line, threatening the Eli goal for the only time during the game. A fumble upset Carnegie's chances.

Legore Stops Carnegie.

Kicking against the wind Legore could only lift the ball to the Yale forty yard line, but Carnegie could gain but a single first down and was forced to punt. Legores' return kick was blocked, but he fell on the ball at the Yale three yard line, averting a touchdown, as the period closed scoreless.

Opening the second half Jacques ran back Wright's kickoff for sixty yards and the Yale attack smashed a path to the Carnegie's twenty-five yard line, where Bingham tore through guard for the touchdown. Late in this period Yale rushed the ball to the Carnegie's ten yard line, but Yale, in opening the fourth period, could not take the oval across the line, failing to complete a forward pass on fourth down.

La Roche Sprints 70 Yards.

Wright punted to the Yale twenty yard line, but La Roche, substitute quarter back, rushed the ball back seventy yards by a phenomenal broken field run, and two minutes later secored Yale's final touchdown.

Fumbling was abundant, each team losing the ball three times by misplays.

BATES SWAMPED BY HARVARD, 26-0

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Harvard easily vanquished Bates in the stadium this afternoon by the score of 26 to 0. The Crimson made four touchdowns and lost two others, one of which came as a result of a fumble by Casey on Bates' four yard line.

Capt. Dadmun's boys started scoring early. Thatcher made the first touchdown five minutes after play started, Flower with a fifteen yard run and Bond on several fine rushes bringing the ball from midfield to Bates' five yard line, from where Thatcher scored.

Blocked Kick Helps.

Several minutes later Moseley Taylor blocked a kick on Bates' five yard line and recovered the ball. Thatcher scored on the next play and M. Taylor kicked the goal, having failed on his previous attempt.

A thirty-five yard run by Murray, third string quarter back, gave Harvard another touchdown in the third period. It took just four plays to bring the ball from Bates' thirty yard mark.

Chicagoan Scores Touchdown.

Horween scored the last touchdown in the final period after a rush by Hitchcock and himself had carried the ball from midfield. He also kicked the goal. Casey, Murray, and Thatcher starred for Harvard, while Capt. De Weaver played a sterling rush game for the losers.

CUBS NAIL DOWN FIFTH PLACE BY BEATING CARDS

BY I. E. SANBORN.

By trouncing St. Louis 8 to 4 in the penultimate game of the local National league season yesterday the Cubs riveted themselves into fifth place after a combat that lasted until darkness was imminent.

The Cardinals jumped into a lead of four runs in the opening inning, but could not hold it, because the Tinx came back with a rally that netted six tallies in the fifth. All the scoring was confined to three rounds.

After the little matter of the ownership of fifth notch in the standing was settled interest centered in the work of Charley Deal, the new candidate for third base, who was given a test by Manager Tinker. The Cards started bombarding that position in the first inning and got several fast ones through the left field, but Deal negotiated everything within reach and contributed a two bagger with the bases full and one out in the propitious fifth, scoring all three of the Cubs on the runway.

Packard's Curves Hammered.

Gene Packard and Lee Meadows started on the slab, but Packard was withdrawn early. The Cards hammered him for three hits in the first round, and those, with the aid of a pass and a boot by Yerkes, were good for four runs. After two solid singles had been made off Gene with nobody out in the second, Claude Hendrix was sent to his rescue. Hendrix not only stopped the visitors to nothing the rest of the way, but contributed two hits, one of which was a home run drive into the left bleacher with Yerkes on the circuit, in the seventh.

Meadows got by until the fifth, when the Cubs landed on him for fair. Flack singled and scored on Mann's double. Saier bounded himself out. Hornsby gave Kelly a life on a wild throw which let Mann score. Wilson singled and Yerkes walked, filling the bases. Deal went the route to three balls and two strikes, then pulled a two bagger inside of third which cleared the bags, adding three runs to the total. Watson took the slab job and retired Wortman, then Hendrix singled, scoring Deal.

Hendrix's Blow Scores Two.

The only other run making was in the seventh, when Yerkes walked and waited around until Hendrix slammed a home run into the seats after two were out.

STOP FOOTBALL GAME TO HUNT GOLD TEETH

BELOIT, Wis., Sept. 30.—Play was stopped and searchers swarmed onto the gridiron when Goetzman, Beloit Amateur Athletic club player, had a gold bridge worth $42 knocked out in the season's opening game against Beloit college. The missing mouthwork finally was found. The college team won, 20 to 0. The college Freshmen trounced Beloit High school, 14 to 0.

NOTRE DAME GETS 48 TO 0 TOTAL

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The Notre Dame band was still playing its opening number, "Go Get 'Em," when Capt. Coffall of the Hoosiers sprinted for a touchdown against Case three numbers after the kickoff in the first game of the season. The final count was 48 to 0.

Two minutes after the first goal Dutch Bergman ran sixty yards and again placed the ball beneath the cross bar. Case had tried to gain unsuccessfully and had kicked. Coffall then ran through half of the visiting team and scored. The Notre Dame captain, who had insisted on playing, although sick, was then taken out.

Chet Grant, playing in his first game with the Hoosiers, starred at quarter, running for a touchdown from his own five yard line and duplicating the feat a moment later. Howard played a good game for Case. Lineup:

GIANTS CAPTURE 26 IN ROW, THEN LOSE TO BRAVES

New York, Sept. 30.—After Rube Benton had shut out Boston in the first game of a double header, 4 to 0, for New York's twenty-sixth straight victory, Boston broke the great winning streak of the Giants in the second game, 8 to 3. The McGraws shattered old major league records of twenty straight early in the week but just missed tying the world's record for consecutive victories in league contests, made by the Corsicana, Texas league, team in 1903, when it won twenty-seven straight.

A pair of home runs stopped New York in the seventh inning of the second game. Sallee had been pitching splendid ball and, with the score 2 to 0, Konetchy opened the inning with a scratch single. J. Smith then drove a homer into the left field bleachers, and Magee duplicated the hit a moment later. Tesreau, Anderson, and G. Smith all took turns on the slab against the rampant Braves after that.

In pitching New York to its twenty-sixth victory, Benton twirled almost perfect ball. He allowed only one hit, and only twenty-eight men faced him.

REDS BEAT CALS TWICE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 30.—Cincinnati won both games of a double header, 5 to 4, and 5 to 3. The first game was poorly played by both teams, errors figuring largely in the run getting. In the ninth the visitors won on Rousch's pass, his steal of second, and Chase's safe hit. In the second game Bigbee's three errors entered largely into the scoring by Cincinnati. Scores:

PHILS WIN FIRST AND TAKE LEAD, THEN DROP BACK

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Brooklyn came back this afternoon by hitting Alexander hard and won from Philadelphia, 6 to 1, thereby regaining first place after losing it by dropping the morning game to Philadelphia, 7 to 2. Alexander lost because Brooklyn hit him when hits were needed, while the visitors were unable to hit Marquard effectively after the first inning, when Paskert singled, took second on a balk, third on Bancroft's sacrifice, and scored on Stock's out.

Alexander retired when Dugey batted for him in the eighth and fanned. Brooklyn promptly made four hits and two runs off Kantlehner, the southpaw Philadelphia obtained from Pittsburgh recently.

Dave Bancroft twisted his ankle so badly when he stepped on first after his sacrifice in the first inning that he had to quit. He was helped off the field and will not play again this season, which will be a severe handicap to Philadelphia in the six games with Boston. Stock moved from third to short and did sensational work, while Byrne played well at third.

Both teams gave a remarkable exhibition of circus fielding in the afternoon, with Brooklyn showing greater steadiness. A large crowd saw the game. Scores:

YANKEES BOW TO CARRIGANS IN TENTH, 1-0

Boston, Mass., Sept. 30.—With Dutch Leonard's left handed shoots working to perfection, Boston shut out New York, 1 to 0, in a ten inning game. For nine innings Cullop, the opposing pitcher, held the Red Sox scoreless, allowing only four hits. On the first ball pitched in the tenth Scott singled sharply to left. Carrigan, intending to sacrifice, was safe on a bunt which upset the infield so that first base was uncovered. Batting in the pinch for Leonard, Thomas bunted successfully along the third base line. The run was scored by McNally, who ran for Scott, when Hooper lifted a fly well into right field for a sacrifice fly.

Tight Pitching and Fielding.

The game was one not only of effective pitching but of tight fielding, which turned back several threatened scores. Scott tripled in the fifth with one out, but was thrown out at the plate subsequently on a sharp infield play. In the seventh Gardner and Scott singled after two were out, but were left when Carrigan flied out.

New York's greatest bid for a score developed in the ninth, when Baumann, a pinch hitter, and Peck each singled after one was out. Maisel, batting for Pipp, sent a long drive into Hooper's hands, and Home Run Baker grounded to Hoblitzel for the third out.

Double Play by Walker.

Hooper and Scott did some great fielding, and Walker contributed an unusual double play unassisted. Racing in for Alexander's low line drive, the center fielder continued to second base, touching the bag before Hendrix could return.

MACKS SHARES WITH GRIFFS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 30.—After losing the first game to Washington, 8 to 6, today, Philadelphia came back in the second game and won, 10 to 9. Exciting ninth inning finishes featured each game. Washington won the first by scoring four times in the ninth, knocking Seibold off the slab, while Philadelphia duplicated this feat in the ninth inning of the final game by hammering four runs over and driving Ayers and Thomas from the rubber. Rice, who made six hits in the two games, featured for the Senators, while Thrasher, the Atlanta Southern league player, led the Mackmen with five hits—three doubles, a triple, and a single. Scores:

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30.—Detroit defeated St. Louis, 10 to 7, in a loosely played, hard hitting contest. The visitors hammered four pitchers for fourteen hits. Five of these off Koob in the third, with a sacrifice fly and an infield out, netted Detroit five runs and a lead which it held in spite of St. Louis' rally in the eighth, which netted three runs. Cobb starred with a triple, a double, and two singles in five times up. Score:

HEAVY PRINCETON TEAM DOWNS HOLY CROSS, 21-0.

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 30.—Holy Cross held Princeton to a 21 to 0 score today. Princeton scored her three touchdowns in the first two periods on straight football.

Moore and Driggs both went over the line in the opening quarter and Driggs scored the last touchdown early in the second period. Moore kicked all the goals. Driggs' long punts and line plunging were instrumental in all the scores. The Holy Cross line did not offer much opposition to the heavy Tigers early in the game, but came back strong in the second half. Lineup:

FELSCH POLES HOME RUN WITH THREE ON BASE

Long Drive in the Twelfth Brings Second Victory for Rowlands, 7-3.

BY SAM WELLER.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Chicago's White Sox had to win both ends of a double header today to keep from dropping entirely out of the American league pennant race, and they did it by scores of 7 to 2 and 7 to 3, the second game requiring twelve innings.

Hap Felsch kept the Rowlands within a faint hope of the flag by smashing out a home run with the bases full of teammates in the twelfth round, thereby earning another $100 from the White Sox rooters of Dubuque.

Injuns Tie It Up in Ninth.

The Chicagoans had the second battle won up to the last half of the ninth inning, when Cleveland tied it up at 3 apiece by scoring one run. Neither team could unravel the knot until the twelfth. In the first half of that round errors by Turner and Smith put Weaver and Eddie Collins on the path. Jackson laid down a bunt and beat it to first, filling the sacks. Then came Felsch and his wallop that put the count out of Cleveland's reach.

Tex Russell and Lefty Williams southpawed the Sox to their double victory. Russell's job was a cinch. Not a hit was marked against him until the sixth inning, and the Sox had four runs by that time. Cleveland inserted three of its four errors in just the proper spots to help the Rowlands. Three runs in the eighth made Russell's victory an absolute certainty. A triple steal, perpetrated by Eddie Collins, Jackson, and Felsch, was the stellar feature of that combat.

Williams Gets Good Start.

Williams had a far harder task than his stablemate, but he seemed sure of copping in the early stages of the fray. After the Sox had massed three runs off Boehling in five rounds, Cleveland started a spurt which netted two in the sixth. Still Williams looked safe, until a double steal with two gone in the ninth netted the tying run for the Indians. Williams stayed for the tenth frame, then gave way to Eddie Cicotte, who finished breezed up.

Frequent switches, largely for strategic purposes, brought four Cleveland hurlers into the box score. Boehling lasted long enough to let the Sox get the three tallies which sent the game into overtime. The first counter was pushed across in the fourth. With one down Jackson doubled to left and hurried right home when Felsch duplicated the swat. Happy was left on third when Chapman's great stop retired Terry for the third out.

Sox Score Pair in Fifth.

Two runs in the fifth apparently clinched the decision for the Rowlands. Lynn started with a safety into center. Williams fanned, but Shano Collins came through with a double. Weaver bounced to Wambsganss, and Lynn scored when the throw home went wide. That let John Collins to third, and he scored on a double steal with Weaver.

Trouble broke out for Williams in the sixth. Kavanagh went up for Boehling and fanned. Graney doubled to right and hiked to third, while Chapman was being tossed out. Speaker doubled to center, driving in Graney, and Tris followed with another marker when Roth pushed a single to left.

Rowlands Get Big Scare.

Roth caused more worry by accepting a pass to start the ninth. Wambsganss sacrificed, then Gandil beat a hit to Weaver and Roth took third. Turner fouled out. Before Barbare, batting for Coumbe, could acquire three strikes for the third out, Roth and Gandil pulled a double steal, on which the former stamped down the tying run.

E. Collins' triple in front of a fumble by Wambsganss started the scoring in the first round of the openeg. Ness singled to open the second, moved up when Bagby fumbled Terry's sacrifice, and scored on a couple of infield outs. The triple steal came in the third after Eddie Collins, Jackson, and Felsch had filled the bases by singles. Two were out when the wholesale theft was perpetrated, and the scoring ended there.

Keep Marking Up Tallies.

Kavanagh's two base wild heave on Felsch, a sacrifice, and an infield demise accounted for the fourth Chicago tally in the sixth. Cleveland's lone spurt came in the second half of that round. Deberry doubled and O'Neil, batting for Bagby, followed suit, scoring the first hitter. Allison ran for O'Neil and counted on a single and an out. The three runs in the eighth, which put the game on ice for the Sox, were the product of four hits, one a double by Shano Collins and Kavanagh's second error.

EXTRA! MOLLA LOSES TWICE

Boston, Mass., Sept. 30.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, national women's lawn tennis champion, was a double loser in the annual tournament of the Longwood Cricket club today. After being defeated by Miss Evelyn S. Sears of Boston in the challenge match of singles, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, Miss Bjurstedt paired with Harry C. Johnson of this city in mixed doubles, lost to Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston and R. Norris Williams II., the national champion, 8-6, 2-6, 6-4. Miss Eleanora Sears played a brilliant game in mixed doubles.

New York, Sept. 30—[Special.]—Mr. Johnny Aitken, who, according to the official program of the race, "is not a comedian, but whose words in repartee have the blow of Jess Willard," distinguished himself in his more active field of endeavor this afternoon by winning the Astor cup race of 250 miles, driving a Peugeot car, at the Sheepshead bay speedway, thereby earning the applause of approximately 50,000 persons.

In addition to these things, Aitken broke the world's record. His average for the entire distance was 104.08 miles an hour, much better than the 102.6, the mark established by Gil Anderson in the winning Stutz at last year's Astor cup race. Aitken's time was 2:23:04.02.

Only One Minor Accident.

While the attendance was surprisingly large in the face of numerous other sporting events hereabouts, the crowd seemed to find little opportunity to cheer, sigh, or groan. Except for one or two brief brushes between some of the drivers, nothing was shown to stir the enthusiasm of the attentive spectators. Save for one trifling accident, during which Grover Buckstell and his Mercer capsized on the east turn, distant from both the grand and field stands, there was nothing resembling an accident.

Before the race got under way the field stand, admission to which was $1 instead of the $2 charged last year was practically filled, and by the time the drivers had covered their twenty-fifth mile the grand stand had the biggest part of the crowd. There were tons and tons of automobiles, of all makes and varieties.

De Palma Fails to Start.

The race started with thirty-one instead of thirty-two cars, the number permitted to run. Of the thirty-six entrants, five failed to qualify. Considerable disappointment attended the inability of Ralph De Palma to get by with his Peugeot, for De Palma is one of the most popular automobile pilots in the speed game.

The contest seemed decided after the fiftieth mile if decision by the spectators was withheld as long as that, for Aitken, after having slipped in and out of the leading position in the opening stage of the whirl, got to the head of the flying column at the thirty-eighth mile and remained there until the finish.

Notes

St. Louis once more today.

Can't knock the Cubs out of fifth place, no matter what happens today.

Cy Williams was hit on the hand by a pitched ball in the fourth inning and gave way to Kelly at once, so as to have the injury fixed up by Prof. Brady.

Wilson annexed a scratch hit in the second. He lined a fly to left center. Smith fell as he started for it, then got up, overran the fly, and almost caught it by jumping in the air.

Mann made three hits, including a two bagger. Wilson made two singles. Yerkes escaped with only two times at bat and an average of .500 on one single, as he made one sacrifice and drew two passes.

Billy Sullivan, former catcher of the White Sox, watched part of the game, but it lasted too long for him to see the finish, as he had to pack up for a trip to Oregon, where he will spend the fall harvesting his apple crop. Sully declared the crop of baseball recruits was lower than the average this year, after spending part of the season hunting ivory for Detroit.

FLYNN DRAWS WITH M'CUE.

Eau Claire, Wis., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Mattie McCue of Racine and Maurice Flynn of Chicago fought ten fast rounds to a draw before the largest crowd that ever saw a boxing match here. McCue shaded Flynn in the early rounds, but Flynn came back strong towards the finish.

FIGHTING PLANS OF FLAG RIVALS DIFFER WIDELY

Moran and Robinson Play Fair, While Stallings' Attacks Include Umps.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Two widely different kinds of aggressiveness have been employed by the managers of the three teams which have fought out the National league pennant race in the closing month of the battle. Robinson of Brooklyn and Moran of Philadelphia stand for one kind, although employing somewhat different methods, and Stallings of Boston for the other.

The pilots of the Phillies and Robins believe in fighting their opponents by every method that keeps within the bounds of fair play on the diamond and letting the umpires alone. The fiery leader of the Braves has instilled into his followers the necessity of fighting everybody—opponents, umpires, and even themselves sometimes.

Stallings Pans Own Players.

There is said to be no madhouse in America to compare with the Braves' bench during a baseball game, with Stallings in charge and his team getting the short end of a close score. Some of the names the Georgian has coined for his players who have committed gaucheries that proved costly under the strain of a tight battle have clung to them for life, but it is not usually safe to address said players by such pet names unless one is fleet of foot and has a clear getaway.

Robinson and Moran use gentler methods with their players. Yet, strange to say, the Boston manager inspires nearly as much loyalty in his men as do his rivals in Brooklyn and Philadelphia. It is less permanent, however, than the respect which the leaders of the Phillies and Robins win from their subordinates, for some of the men who have been dropped from the Braves' outfit have discovered that absence did not make their hearts grow fonder for their former leader.

Tutored by Hard Masters.

It is rather odd that both Moran and Robinson, although advocates of the moral suasion system in handling their players, both served under managers who were famous for their driving, drastic methods. The former played for years under Frank Chance, who never considered for an instant the feelings of his players if they did something to impair his team's chances to win a ball game. The latter was lieutenant for years to John McGraw, whose method of handling the Giants was even more drastic than that employed by Chance. At least it used to be, but McGraw has modified his style somewhat in recent years, which may account for some of the difference in the position of the team at the end of the last two or three seasons.

The foregoing applies to the methods of the Brooklyn and Philadelphia pilots on the benches or off the fields. In action they play different styles. Moran sends a team on the field at the start of a game and makes few changes in it. He has enough good pitchers to do that with and works them in turn, unless there is good reason for not doing so. He is not a follower of the theory that a real pitcher needs to have his opponents picked for him but sends his regular hurlers against all comers and does not use two of them in one game anywhere nearly as often as Robinson does. When necessary to change pitchers Moran more frequently sends in one of his second string slabmen. He has not been equipped with as many hurlers of nearly equal ability as Robinson has, which naturally accounts for the difference.

Puts Faith in Strong Defense.

Moran has developed the defensive end of the game to a fine point. He always has been a close student of all opponents and while a catcher knew more about the weaknesses of the men on other National league teams than any of his Chicago teammates. That study has aided greatly in his success as a manager. It has enabled him to produce a defense which makes it difficult for his opponents to score runs, even on the contracted Broad street grounds where the Phillies play half their games each season. Offensively Moran uses the safe and sure method to a great extent and relies on winning games with a few runs, rather than going after a lot of them by more risky methods.

Robinson has been able to produce a strong defense by a large staff of pitchers of fairly equal merit. He has been prodigal of his slabmen, making a change without fear of the result any time he thought the insertion of a pinch hitter could produce a chance to make a run. In consequence the Brooklyn hurlers have worked oftener than those of the Phillies on the whole, but no more innings, taking them "by and large."

Helps Base Running, Also.

This has enabled Robinson to take more chances in the way of base running, because he could inject a substitute into the game anywhere to take the place of a slabman without asking said slabman to risk injury on the bases. In that way the Brooklyn manager has been free to yank Pfeffer, Cheney, Smith, or Dell at any spot in a game without risk of weakening his slab work, while Moran never would think of taking out Alexander, for instance, unless absolutely necessary.

Moran and Robinson stay in the uniformed rank of managers, while Stallings handles his men altogether from the bench in "plain clothes." This gives the Brooklyn and Philadelphia leaders the right to deal with the umpires directly, while Stallings has to make his kicks either at second hand or at long distance. Nevertheless, the Bostonian can make more woe for the arbiters in one game than the other two in a whole week.

Moran and Robinson prefer to do all the talking to umpires themselves. The former invariably uses good, suave language, even when hot under the collar. The latter will not ruffle the feelings of an umpire on a mere matter of judgment, but will conduct a heated argument over anything that looks like a mistake in interpretation of the rules. If their players get in bad, they will stick up for them, but they try to keep them from risking expulsion from the game.

Braves' Chief "Rides" Players.

Stallings believes in the other theory that the best way to handle umpires is by the intimidation route, and carried his system so far this last season that he influenced the press of Beantown to "ride" the arbiters on all possible occasions, and the result was a petition signed by hundreds of Boston rooters beseeching President Tener of the National league for better treatment for the Braves. That petition never would have reached official headquarters but for the inexperience of President Haughton of the Braves, who learned from that incident not to listen to his firebrand manager without a salt cellar handy.

The fighting spirit of which Stallings is an instructor worked a miracle in 1914 when it carried his team from the tail end into a league championship and then won a world's pennant from Connie Mack's supposedly invincible machine. But it has not been successful in the major leagues before or since.

PEREZ COUNCIL BEATS CARROLL IN TITLE SERIES

Gains Lead in Knights of Columbus League by Victory, 8 to 5.

Perez council went into the lead in the finals for the championship of the Knights of Columbus by beating Carroll council, 8 to 5, at American Giants park yesterday. This is the third straight victory for Perez since the final series started, it having won a game from each of the other contenders. The winners hit the ball during the early innings, scoring all their runs in the first four rounds and driving Pitcher Murray to cover. Bill Ryan, who relieved him, held the Perez in check during the latter part of the game.

YACHTS WIND UP SAILING SEASON IN STIFF BREEZE

Larikin, Truant, Sainte Claire, and Cherry Fight Wind and Win in Different Classes.

BY JOHN G. DE LONG.

Twenty-one boats competed in yesterday's autumn regatta, an event which practically wound up the local sailing season. The affair was staged at the Lincoln Park Yacht club, where several score of yachtsmen from the promoting organization and the Jackson Park and Chicago Yacht clubs witnessed some fine sport.

The twenty-five mile wind, which blew from southeast, forced most of the skippers to reef down. The race was over the L. P. Y. C. triangle around the Lake View and Harrison cribs and back to the starting point off Belmont avenue.

Most of the winners carried the colors of the Lincoln Park club. Owl won in the small yawl class; Diamond finished first in the twenty-five foot sloop class, and Invader carried off the honors among the raceabouts. Truant was the winner among the large yawls; Ste. Claire won in the thirty-foot A division; Cherry won in the twenty-one foot cabin class, and Larikin copped in the thirty-five foot class.

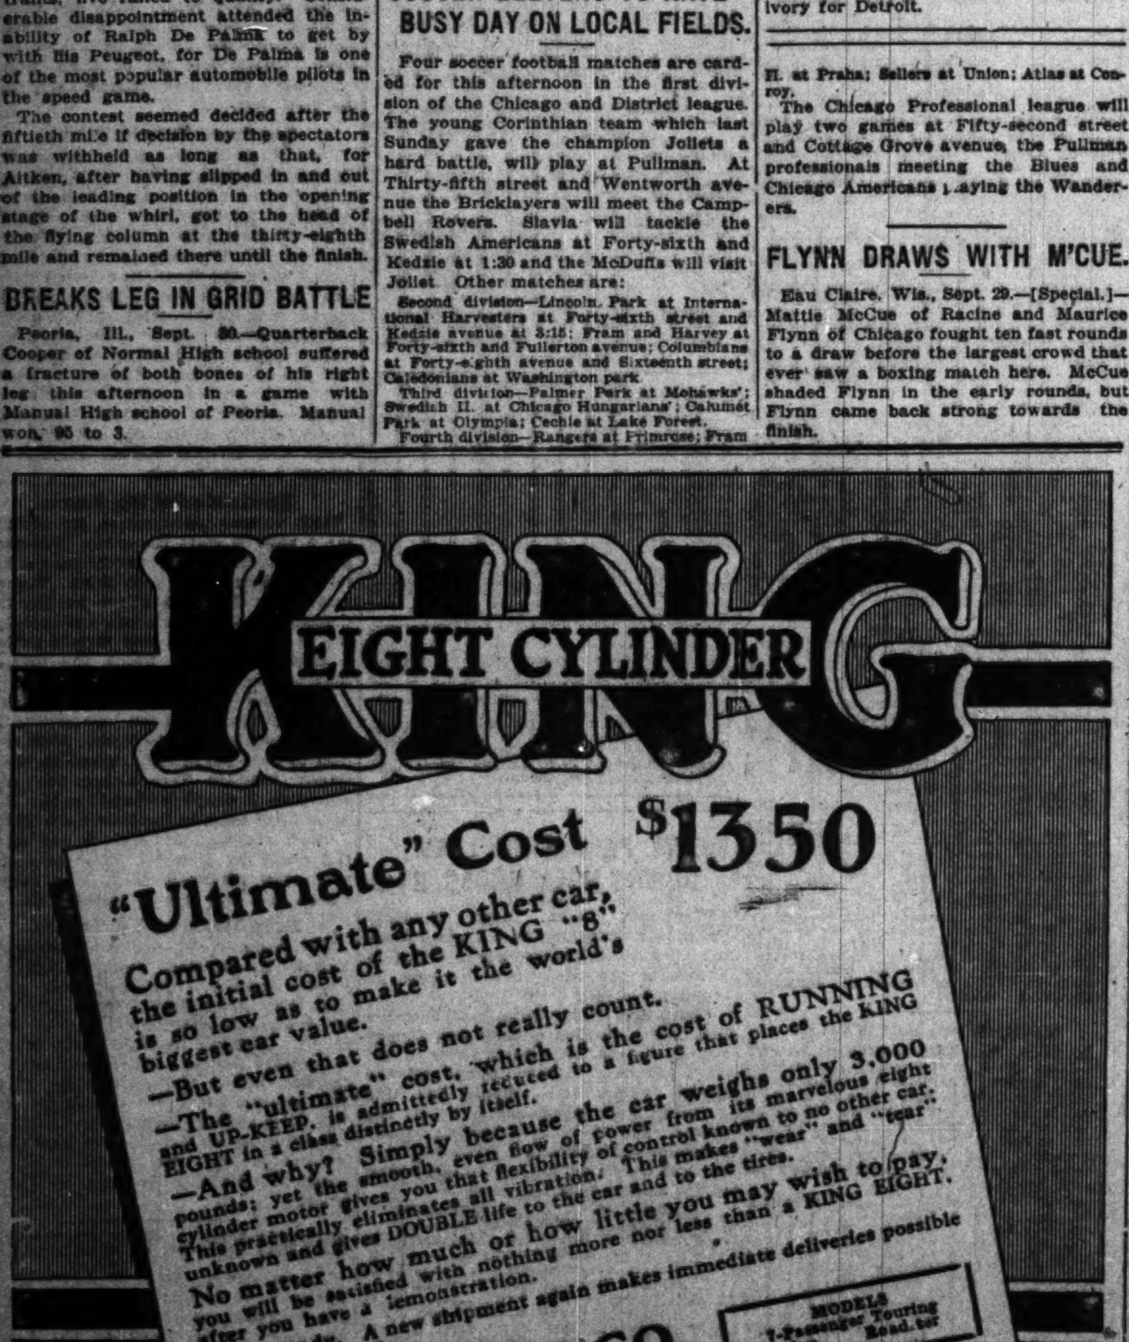
Banshee and XXIX hooked up in the R class, but owing to a protest lodged by the owner of the latter named craft, no decision had been made up to last night by those in charge of the regatta.

K. C. CLUB REPORTED SOLD; OWNER AND BUYER DENY IT.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 30.—A report, said to be authoritative, that the Kansas City American association baseball club had been sold to O. L. Van Laningham of Kansas City for $160,000 was published by a local newspaper today. Denial of the sale, however, was made by attorneys representing both George Tebeau, who owned the club, and Mr. Van Laningham. The report was that Tebeau and Van Laningham were in the east, the latter making the trip for the purpose of arranging for a new manager and new players for next year.

President Tebeau Denies Sale.

George Tebeau, president and owner of the Kansas City American Association club, last night denied the rumored sale of his baseball property to an eastern capitalist. Tebeau said he had received several offers in the last few weeks, but none of them had equaled his valuation of the club. He admitted his willingness to dispose of the property at his price, but declared no one so far had met it.



KING EIGHT CYLINDER

"Ultimate" Cost $1350

Compared with any other car, the initial cost of the KING "8" is so low as to make it the world's biggest car value.

—But even that does not really count.

—The "ultimate" cost, which is the cost of RUNNING and UP-KEEP, is admittedly reduced to a figure that places the KING EIGHT in a class distinctly by itself.

—And why? Simply because the car weighs only 3,000 pounds; yet the smooth, even flow of power from its marvelous eight cylinder motor gives you that flexibility of control known to no other car. This practically eliminates all vibration. This makes "wear" and "tear" unknown and gives DOUBLE life to the car and to the tires.

No matter how much or how little you may wish to pay, you will be satisfied with nothing more nor less than a KING EIGHT after you have a demonstration.

We are ready. A new shipment again makes immediate deliveries possible for at least a week.

Locks the Plates Apart

Vesta Indestructible Isolator

This apparently simple device adds extra life to every Vesta Storage Battery. Ask your local Vesta Service Station man to explain the very important part it plays in the Vesta.

VESTA Storage Battery

The plates of a storage battery must be kept apart. Otherwise current will not flow.

This is the first great law of storage battery building—the weakest point in most batteries—the strongest in the Vesta.

In ordinary batteries thin wooden mats are used for this purpose. Battery acid attacks these. Finally they drop apart—the plates touch—the battery suffers from a sudden incurable paralytic shock, usually at the time you need it most.

The men who build Vesta Batteries do not rely on any such makeshift to separate the plates of their battery. The plates of the Vesta batteries are locked apart with the famous, patented Vesta Indestructible Isolators.

Because of these Isolators Vesta Batteries last twice as long as other makes.

A. BRAND LANDS 'TWA DAYS' CUP FOR THIRD YEAR

Low Gross of 340 Tops Field for Lake Geneva Player—Prize to Weeghman.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

It begins to look as if Armin Brand of Lake Geneva intends to make the winning of the Twa Days event at Glen View an annual occurrence. Yesterday he again led the field in the low gross score for the two days' play, his total of 340 being four strokes better than that of J. H. S. Lee of Glen View. It was the third success scored by the Lake Geneva player, who shortly will move to New York to enter business.

It looked as if Brand had won the Auchtermuchty trophy, the main flight prize, when he came home with an 87 in the afternoon and Roger Sherman, the other finalist, reported with 89. When cards were compared it was found the Skokie player had won, 1 up, a four on the last home giving him the win.

Brand Ties with Fall.

Although beaten in this event, Brand tied with J. H. Fall Jr. of Glen View for low choice gross score, each having 73. They will play off next week.

Charles Weeghman of Exmoor, who won the Tam O'Shanter prize on Friday, again broke into the prize winning column by taking the Tillydrone trophy, but as Charles Hermann won the Auld Licht final it was an even break for the two Exmoor cronies.

J. Alec Waller of Onwentsia showed some of his old time Riverside form by winning the Roderick Dhu trophy with a card of 84—11—73, the best gross and net score made in the morning. Brand's cards yesterday were:

Out ......5 6 5 6 4 4 5 3 5 5—44
In ....5 4 5 6 4 5 5 4 5—43—87
Afternoon—

NAME GOLF CUP FOR CHICK EVANS

In appreciation of the achievements of "Chick" Evans in winning both the open and amateur golf championships of the United States in one year, the Chicago District Golf association has presented for perpetual competition, the Charles Evans Jr. trophy.

All twenty-eight clubs in the association have assisted in buying the silver trophy, which is thirty-six inches in height including the pedestal, making it one of the largest cups of its kind ever presented.

This tribute to the greatest feat in the annals of American golf is to be played for annually by teams of four representing all clubs in the Chicago district. The team having the lowest aggregate will have custody of the cup for one year.

In announcing the gift of the trophy President D. F. Kelly stated that the initial competition would be held simultaneously with the clubs relations tournament, which this year will be staged at Edgewater, Oct. 5.

The day of golfing will be followed by a banquet at which the Hon. John Barton Payne will formally present the Evans trophy and pay tribute to the dual title holder. Evans has the distinction of being the only American golfer honored by a perpetual trophy competition, which in time will develop into a classic.

The clubs contributing to the trophy are: Beverly, Calumet, Chicago, Edgewater, Evanston, Exmoor, Flossmoor, Glen Oak, Glen View, Hinsdale, Idlewild, Indian Hill, Lake Shore, La Grange, Midlothian, Oak Park, Old Elm, Onwentsia, Park Ridge, Ravisloe, Ridge, Riverside, Skokie, South Shore, Westmoreland, Westward Ho, Wheaton, and Windsor.

If you are not fully posted on battery knowledge, drop in and see us.

In the word "battery" the average motorist has come to see more than a black box with wires attached to it.

He has learned that some effort is necessary on his own part to keep that box sending out energy to his starter and lights.

He has also learned that Willard Batteries last longer and are more reliable because they are backed by a service which teaches the owner how to get results.

GOLFERS FIND JOKER IN NEW U. S. G. A. PLAN

Union Proposed Would Hit Power of Sectional Bodies.

In a proposition emanating from President Frank Woodward of the United States Golf association, local golfers see an attempt to rob the Western Golf association and other sectional organizations of some of their power.

In a circular letter President Woodward points out that the game has grown rapidly, this being shown by the increase in local and district golf associations. Originally the United States Golf association was the acknowledged parent body, and organizations formed about that time and for some time thereafter included as part of the qualification for membership the provision that constituent clubs must also belong to the United States Golf association. Of late years this has not always been the case, notably so in regard to the Western Golf association.

The U. S. G. A. president now proposes to have sectional and other organizations join the U. S. G. A. and be given votes in proportion to their size. According to Crafts W. Higgins this would give the Western association three votes for a membership of 250 clubs, so that these clubs could be easily outvoted by five single clubs.

"Western golfers," said Mr. Higgins, "want a central controlling body, but for many years they have opposed two classes of membership, believing that all clubs should have a vote." He asserts the plan proposed would permit the other associations to be bossed entirely by the U. S. G. A.

ARETA V. TAKES COLUMBUS PACE FROM FAVORITE

Queen Hal Fails Backers in Feature Race—Another Win for Mabel Trask.

Columbus, O., Sept. 30.—Nineteen heats were required to complete the Columbus Grand circuit racing this afternoon, five and one-half hours being devoted to the big program which was featured by Areta V's victory over Queen Hal in the 2:11 pace. The latter was favorite. The first two heats went to Areta V, which lost the third by a neck to Queen Hal in 2:05¼. Areta V came with a rush in the last quarter of the fourth heat and won jogging out in front in 2:05¾.

Mabel Trask Wins Easily.

Mabel Trask won the Buckeye $5,000 trotting stake without effort. Each of the starters against her finished every heat in the same order. Beth Clark, the first choice, had no difficulty in winning the 2:09 pace in straight heats.

Allie Watts, first choice for the 2:08 trot, of which five heats were decided Wednesday, made a break after passing the half in today's first mile and was shut out. Miss Perfection won the heat, but the race went to Bonnington, winner of the seventh heat.

We Can Save a Few Men $175 On the HUDSON SUPER-SIX

Note These Important Facts
Prices Will Advance Soon

We have just been notified as follows about coming Super-Sixes:

There will be no change in models. The only changes, if any, will be minor refinements. But this year's production is nearly sold out—both of open models and enclosed. The new production—starting December 1—will be built from materials contracted this year, at enormous advance in cost. And, to maintain present standards, those cars must cost $175 more.

We Have Cars Yet to Come

We have some cars yet due us at the present price. Some open, some enclosed. They will be sold at present prices while our allotment lasts. After that, every car shipped to us will cost the higher price.

You can save that difference—$175—by buying your Super-Six now. And you'll get the same model as buyers get who buy after December 1.

Consider that fact well.

The Fair Hudson Policy

This is another striking evidence of the fair Hudson policy.

The Super-Six is a monopoly. This marvelous motor—adding 80 per cent to engine efficiency—is a Hudson patent.

Its supremacy is unchallenged. It has won every world's record which can possibly prove any quality you seek in a motor.

It has made the Hudson the largest-selling fine car in the world. Yet this year's demand was hardly half supplied.

Still this car has been sold at a minimum profit—at a price far below cars of lesser performance. The only advance for next year is the added cost of materials. And that advance will not apply until these materials are used.

Next Year Will Be a Super-Six Year

The Super-Six this year came in as a stranger. It was, like all strangers, received with some question.

The next season will start December 1 with 25,000 Super-Sixes running. And with 25,000 enthusiastic owners.

It will start with performance records, which prove that this invention has doubled a motor's endurance.

It holds all stock-car records up to 100 miles. It holds the 24-hour record of 1819 miles. It won the Pike's Peak hill-climb against 20 famous rivals. It holds the ocean-to-ocean record—San Francisco to New York—made in 14 hours 59 minutes' less time than the next best record.

Next year the Super-Six, with all these records behind it, will hold the peak place by itself.

Save by Deciding Now

If you want such a car—even next year—you will save $175 by deciding now. Never again, in all probability, can you buy a Super-Six at these prices.

Come and select the style you want before we sell all our allotment.

HYDE PARK BEATS SENN; NOW WHO'S "SNOBBISH"?

LIGHTWEIGHTS TIE, 0-0

BY KEENE GARDINER.

Hyde Park and Senn High school elevens met at De Paul field yesterday each to hang upon the other the title of "Snobs," which has been bandied about so much recently in board of education discussions. If gridiron prowess refutes the charge, Hyde Park is cleared for its heavyweight squad downed the north siders, 16 to 0, while the lightweights battled to a scoreless tie.

The rival rooters took advantage of the occasion to indulge in "snobbish" pranks and songs burlesqueing the accusations against the two institutions which they attend. Senn partisans prepared for the fray by attaching alarm clocks to their wrists in supposed derision of their "wrist watch" opponents, while the young women sported "ankle watches." Throat bands, strings of beads, semi-hoopskirts, and vanity cases played their part in the fancy dress party, while numerous monocles were affected.

Song Writers Take Part.

Cheer leaders also had rehearsed the rival rooting contingents in "yell songs," in which the charges of snobbery figured. That hurled from the Hyde Park section across the gridiron to the Senn followers followed this strain:

We are snobs, we are snobs,
Wrist watches and ankle fobs,
And other things,
So says his nobs.
But we can lick the auto kids
With their diamond rings
And fancy lids.

The "auto kids" evidently referred to the students of Senn High who were arraigned because some of them went to school in automobiles.

The heavyweight game was somewhat one sided during the first quarter. Thereafter Senn tightened and held Hyde Park to the fourteen points scored in the first quarter, with an additional safety in the third.

Ludwig Makes Long Runs.

Left Halfback Ludwig of Hyde Park made a spectacular fifty yard run on the kickoff and a few minutes later went over for a touchdown. Quarterback McGrath kicked goal. On the next kickoff Ludwig made a thirty yard end run. A few line plunges brought Hyde Park near the goal and Full Back Beecher was pushed over for another touchdown.

A safety on a blocked punt gave Hyde Park two more points in the third quarter. Hyde Park was strong on the offensive, but showed some weakness on defense. Lineup:

PROVISO TAKES LEAGUE OPENER

Playing a whirlwind game in the final half, Proviso High school minors overcame a 28 to 14 margin in Thornton Township Midgets' favor, and opened the Suburban league schedule by capturing the game, 34 to 28. The game was played at Thornton. The losers made a plucky fight, but were unable to withstand the crashing attack of Proviso in the final half, and never had a chance to take the ball out of danger, as Proviso made downs steadily by plunge after plunge, and never let the ball out of its possession.

Proviso's three touchdowns in the last quarter were made on bucks and off-tackle drives by Peters, Knopf, and Drake. Oakes was another star for the victors, while Strassen and Gross braced the Thornton offense.

Thornton's scores were all made on plays of the open variety, Gross scoring two touchdowns from his place at left end. The losers were unable to pull their defense together enough to withstand the hammering game adopted by Proviso. Lineup:

PLAYERS STAGE FIRST BATTLE ON OAK PARK GRID

BY PREP.

Oak Park and Crane injected a thrill a minute into their scrappy double header on the suburban field yesterday. The home heavyweights carried off a bitterly fought combat, 21 to 0, mainly on individual work of the speedy Oak Park backs, who dashed through the field for three long runs. The midget teams battled to a scoreless tie, although each threatened to score at times. A fist fight between Lewis, Crane's Negro halfback, and Left End Wilcoxen of Oak Park, almost led to general fisticuffs in the opening quarter of the major contest, after each of the battling players charged the other with unfair play.

It took five minutes to quell the row. Players of both teams surrounded the principals to lend their pugilistic support in case the disagreement waxed hotter, but play was finally resumed with both squads in fighting mood. Ill feeling cropped out again when the teams resumed the field after pep sessions with their coaches between halves. Coach Meyers of Crane questioned a decision and ran out to buttonhole Referee Haggerty, whom he charged with unfairness, again stopping the game.

Long Runs Net Scores.

Oak Park played with smoother team work. The game had been under way only a short time when Quarterback Cole sprinted fifty yards toward the Tech goal, Kendall going over for the first score on the next play. In the last quarter Cole staged a still more showy dash through the field, this time for sixty-five yards to a touchdown.

Wilcoxen a little before the game ended ran eighty yards to down the ball behind the Crane line, making each of the winners' scores the result of individual prowess by the fleet suburban backs. Shepard kicked all three goals. Alexander, at defensive fullback for Crane, broke up play after play and almost unaided held the score down. Lineup:

Quarterback Uteritz, back in the game after his injury in the Oak Park lightweights' opener against Proviso a week before, was hampered by a steel brace on his twisted ankle, but despite this proved the suburbanites' best ground gainer. J. Flanagan starred for Crane, but when either team seemed within scoring distance a tightened defense cost the chance. Lineup:

SCHURZ TRIMS MARSHALL, 15-0, IN "COMEBACK"

In a revival of football, after two years without representation on the gridiron, Schurz lightweights, drilled by Louis Berger, made good with a 15 to 0 victory over Marshall on the Carl Schurz field. The win so heartened Schurz that it will enter the league for the first time. The winners were unable to get going the first period, but Hall started the scoring with a field goal in the second quarter. In the second half Schurz took the ball and began a steady march down the field, Reinitz planting the oval between the posts after line bucks had advanced it to scoring distance. Grosch ran half the length of the field for the final touchdown in the third period, when Marshall, thinking the referee had blown his whistle to halt play, neglected to follow up the runner. Evanston High, 12; Phillips, 6.

Coming from behind after Right Half Back Hempidge of Wendell Phillips had intercepted a forward pass for a sixty-five yard run through a broken field to a touchdown, Evanston High school heavies won a 12 to 6 victory on the suburban field yesterday. All the scoring was done in the third period after a listless first half. Previous to Hempidge's feat the game seemed like a tie, with Evanston holding a slight advantage but unable to deliver the punch.

With the score against them after Hempidge's run the Evanstonians took a brace and started their big drive, which ended only after Phillips and Holt had been forced across the line for touchdowns. Lineup:

Austin, 9; Morgan Park, 0.

Although outweighed, Austin heavyweights played a faster game and defeated Morgan Park High on the latter's grounds, 9 to 0. The game was even until half way through the second quarter, when Austin speeded up, Fryer going over for the touchdown after he, Scott, and Sweeney proved too elusive for the home team tacklers. Elworthy added three more points by a perfect drop kick from thirty yards next period.

The final session saw both elevens fighting hard, but Morgan Park was unable to score. Jeor was prominent in almost every play for the losers. Bendelow played a steady defensive game for Austin. Lineup:

For PLAYERS of WHIST

by A. R. Metcalfe

BUILDING up no trump bids in auction requires some skill, and when learned the play is a handicap. When north bids one suit and south another, then north bids no trump, all the reefs are charted for east and west, and north needs overwhelming strength to win.

Entirely too much stress is being laid upon giving information to the partner. A player should bid because he wants to play the combined hands. Witness the following deal:

The hands:

S.—9, 4, 3.
H.—K, 9.
C.—Q, 6, 3.
D.—Q, 9, 8, 5, 3.

S.—7, 6, 2.
H.—10, 7, 3.
C.—A, K, 4.
D.—A, K, J, 10.

C.—J, 8, 5.
D.—6, 4.

S.—K, 10.
H.—Q, J, 5, 4, 2.
C.—10, 9, 7, 2.
D.—7, 2.

Score: 0-0. West dealt. The bidding:

	First round.	Second round.
West	.......1 diamond	1 no trump
North	.......pass	pass
East	.......1 spade	pass
South	.......pass	pass

North had the opening lead.

West secured eight tricks.

North had to choose between hearts and clubs for his opening lead. There was a poor combination from which to lead in either suit, but north reasoned that west was less liable to have a strong suit of hearts, and started correctly with the king of that suit.

Had west bid one no-trump originally, as he should, north would have opened with a diamond and west could easily have made ten tricks.

If the builder-up player could secure a perfect deal, in which he and his partner bid each of the four suits and then went to no-trump, the game would be about as exciting as croquet.

INDIANA TEAM BEATS DE PAUW BY 20 TO 0; PASSES TURN TRICK

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Hitting their stride at the beginning of the second half, Indiana defeated De Pauw, 20 to 0, this afternoon, in the opening contest of the season.

In the first two quarters the Crimson eleven worked slow and did not seem to get together. Coach Stiehm then sent in Hess at quarter, and he called for a series of forward passes, nearly all of which were successfully executed, resulting in two touchdowns in a short time. The De Pauw crew was completely baffled by the forward pass plays. In the third period the same kind of plays were used for nother marker.

De Pauw had a good line and the open game was all that enabled Stiehm's men to pull out a victory. The head coach said tonight his men will have to show a wonderful improvement in the next two weeks in order even to hold Chicago to a low score. Two Maroon scouts occupied places in the bleachers. PURPLE TRIMS FRESHMEN.

Northwestern's varsity football squad had its first actual scrimmage of the season yesterday when it defeated the freshmen, 16 to 0. The game was one-sided from the outset, the freshies being hopelessly outclassed. Cigrand and Ellingwood, star full back and half back, respectively, of the varsity team, each scored a touchdown. Capt. Paddy Driscoll kicked two goals.

In the Wake of the News

THE DIARY OF A SIREN.

SEPT. 26.

DICK and I have just about finished our furniture buying and the apartment is going to look lovely when we get it all settled. We found a place on the west side where they have just as good furniture as downtown, only at about half the prices, on account of their rent not being so high. Dick has arranged to pay for it by the month at $8.00 per month and in that way we can have everything settled up in about 2 years. We have decided to not buy a player piano until we see a good one advertised in the papers second hand at a bargain. But I already have a perfectly wonderful piano lamp with an immense red shade and I am crazy to get the piano as soon as possible.

Our furniture consists of a living room suit of mission. There are two big chairs with upholstery of green leather and of course the leather is not real leather, but you would swear it was to look at it. Then there is a living room table with a green leather skin top and a settee to match the other pieces and a book stand for the table that will hold ten books.

For the dining room we have a table and six chairs and a china cabinet, also in mission style, and we can use the dining room chairs in the living room if some of our friends drop in for a game of cards or something.

For the bedroom we picked out circassion walnut another imitation that is absolutely perfect and the pieces are a bed, a dresser and a dressing table.

I am wild over how our dining room is going to look as there is a perfectly beautiful dome, yellow, with red tulips, over where the table is going to set.

I have also boughten most of my linen and window drapes. The latter are red of course to match my piano lamp.

I have boughten two perfectly dear table cloths, one in a rose and chrysanthemum patter and the other in daisies. I am going to be busy evenings from now on embroidering them with my initials, or rather the initials that will be mine when I become Mrs. Sargent. How strange that will seem.

I have also three sheets and four pillow cases which will look twice as nice when I have had time to embroider them with my monogram and put nice wide lace on them. On my towels I am going to sew lace also and cross stitch monogram.

At the lunch hour tomorrow I am going to look at dishes. I saw some perfectly sweet ones in a rose pattern yesterday but did not have time to ask their price.

What with my work at Mr. Weeghman's office every day and the buying I still have left to do of dishes and odds and ends and etc. and getting my clothes made I won't have time hardly to breathe in the next six weeks, but I am so happy that I don't mind the rushing around at all. Dick is perfectly dear to me and I thank providence every night for giving him to me.

ROCKFORD PREPS BUMP LANE TECH BY 33 TO 0

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Rockford High defeated Lane Tech of Chicago, 33 to 0, today by a dashing attack in the last half. The brilliant broken field running of Redin, who scored three touchdowns, featured. The first score came in the second quarter, when Olander blocked a punt and recovered the ball for a touchdown. Lane outweighed Rockford, but the local preps had as little difficulty as in beating the similarly husky Crane Tech eleven of Chicago last week. Lineup:

THREE BOXERS TO JUMP NOTCH; HOPE TO SCRAP

Lewis, Tom Gibbons, and Gilmore to Meet Heavier Opponents.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

No less than three members of the boxing fraternity are going to jump out of the classes in which they have been mingling. The reason for this action is that none of them can get enough work, which also means that they cannot get enough kale for scrapping in the division in which they have made reputations. Perhaps the most noted of the glove wielders who is anxious to meet the boys in a notch higher is Ted Lewis, the Briton, who in the last year has been hitting a mighty hot pace in the welterweight ranks.

Lewis only recently returned from South America, where he went to meet a few chaps picked for him by the promoters in Buenos Aires. Accounts of the successes scored by the Briton in South America gave the fighting folks a chill in this country, for the reports of the fabulous wealth which could be picked up by glove swappers of the United States didn't even begin to materialize, and the boxers and their managers were not overburdened with coin when they returned.

Lewis Fails to Get Bouts.

James Johnston of Gotham, who, aside from managing Lewis and being matchmaker for the Madison Square Athletic club, gained quite a reputation recently because he can drive a motor car but can't stop one, since his return from South America has been trying desperately to find welterweights anxious to hook up with Lewis.

Johnston hasn't had any success to speak of, and now he comes out with a new challenge, which shows how far ahead of the other welters he believes the Briton is. Johnston incidentally stated that next month is the time set for Lewis to show the public that he carries the goods, not alone as a welterweight, but as a middleweight. Here's what Johnston says about Lewis:

"Lewis will meet anybody in the world and concede ten pounds to any one of them. I think that Ted is the most marvelous boxer and fighter in the world, and to show it I'm going to send him against middleweights right now, although Ted will be forced to concede a lot of poundage. Now what I want to do is to give the public a real demonstration of Lewis' class, and to do it I am not going out to pick soft ones.

After Jack Dillon Scrap.

"If Jack Dillon, the light heavyweight, will make 158 pounds at 3 o'clock Lewis will fight him over any distance. Dillon claims that he can make that poundage, at least he says he can make it for Mike Gibbons, so why not for Lewis? At the same time I want to say that if the St. Paul Phantom wants another session with Lewis he can have it on the same weight terms."

While Johnston may be sincere in his efforts to match Lewis with Dillon, it looks as if there was about one chance in a million of the two ever getting together. Dillon hasn't hit that 158 pound figure for a long time and to do it now would entail the toughest kind of a training spell. Perhaps he could make it, but it is mighty doubtful, and even if he did he wouldn't be strong enough to scrap the way that Jack Dillon knows how to scrap.

Another of the boys who is going to jump a notch in order to get action is Tom Gibbons of St. Paul, brother of Mike. Tom, like Mike, has been boxing as a middleweight, but hasn't been able to make enough coin to put the meat and potatoes on the dining room table, or pay off the mortgage on the farm.

Mike Managing Tom.

Mike Gibbons has taken up the task of managing Brother Tom, and Mike thinks that his brother is some classy boy with the mitts. It so happens that the fellow Mike wants to send Tom against is the same chap that Ted Lewis wants to pick on—namely: Jack Dillon. Here's what Gibbons wants the boxing public to know:

"I've realized for some time that the middleweights have been sidestepping Tom, and the only reason I can deduce is that they want none of his game. So after coming to this conclusion I have decided to send him out after the light heavyweights. Particularly I want a crack at Jack Dillon or Battling Levinsky, and I don't care how many pounds we have to give away if they will agree to enter the ring with Thomas.

"Now, here's another thing. If either of them will make a match I am willing to place a side bet for any amount that Tom scores a victory. There's another thing, too, that I want to mention, and that is that the talk of me meeting my brother in the ring is out of the question. The fact that we are brothers ought to be sufficient answer to that."

Gilmore Wants a Change.

The third member of the boxing family who wants to try conclusions with the boys in a division higher up than he has been accustomed to scrapping is Freddie Gilmore of Chicago. Gilmore only recently returned to this country from Australia, where he took on poundage so rapidly that he found it a hardship to train down for welterweight bouts. Now he weighs in the neighborhood of 160 pounds and with training will enter the ring for contest around 158 pounds.

Gilmore hasn't had a ring engagement since he returned, but at the present time is in California, where he is getting physically fit to start training for a campaign which he intends to open in New York next month as a middleweight. Gilmore has assurance from Billy Gibson and other New York promoters that they will give him plenty of ring work this season if he shows that he has the class as a middleweight.

At the Golden Gate

Reproduction of a painting by Val C. Princep

Every week The Sunday Tribune will reproduce in four colors on this page one of the world's most famously beautiful paintings. There will be a brief biography of the painter and a story of the painting. Herewith is reproduced another in the series.

"At the Golden Gate." From the painting by Val C. Prinsep, R. A., in the art gallery of the city of Manchester. Size, 53x47 inches. Presented to the gallery by W. A. Turner, Esq., 1883. Exhibited at the Royal academy 1882, and at the Guildhall, London, 1895.

By LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

A GLEAMING gate of gold has closed, excluding from the sanctum of some oriental lord the one time favored of his court. Perhaps she has been supplanted by some fresher love who will not brook her presence in the palace. Or again, she may be some sultana, who in madness erred, and brought upon herself a fatal banishment.

In her bearing there is a regalness of air. Either she has ruled by virtue of a birthborn right or by the power of her magnetism and charm. Her hair is done in occidental fashion and the wealth of her rich drapery droops about her in the smaller folds of the rare soft eastern stuffs. She will not go away. She clings to the glittering, intricately designed portal. Despair is coming over her. All of her life is back of that door. To give it up is to tear the heart out of her and to twist in gnarled bits the fibers of her being. Even in her bitter grief she is restrained. The British reticence of the artist holds her passions well in leash. No matter what her anguish, that anguish must be controlled.

There is another interpretation of the painting. It is that the painting illustrates the parable in the Bible of the wise and foolish virgins. This isolated figure outside the gate is one who has arrived with her lamp untrimmed. Those with trimmed lamps have passed through. But access is denied her.

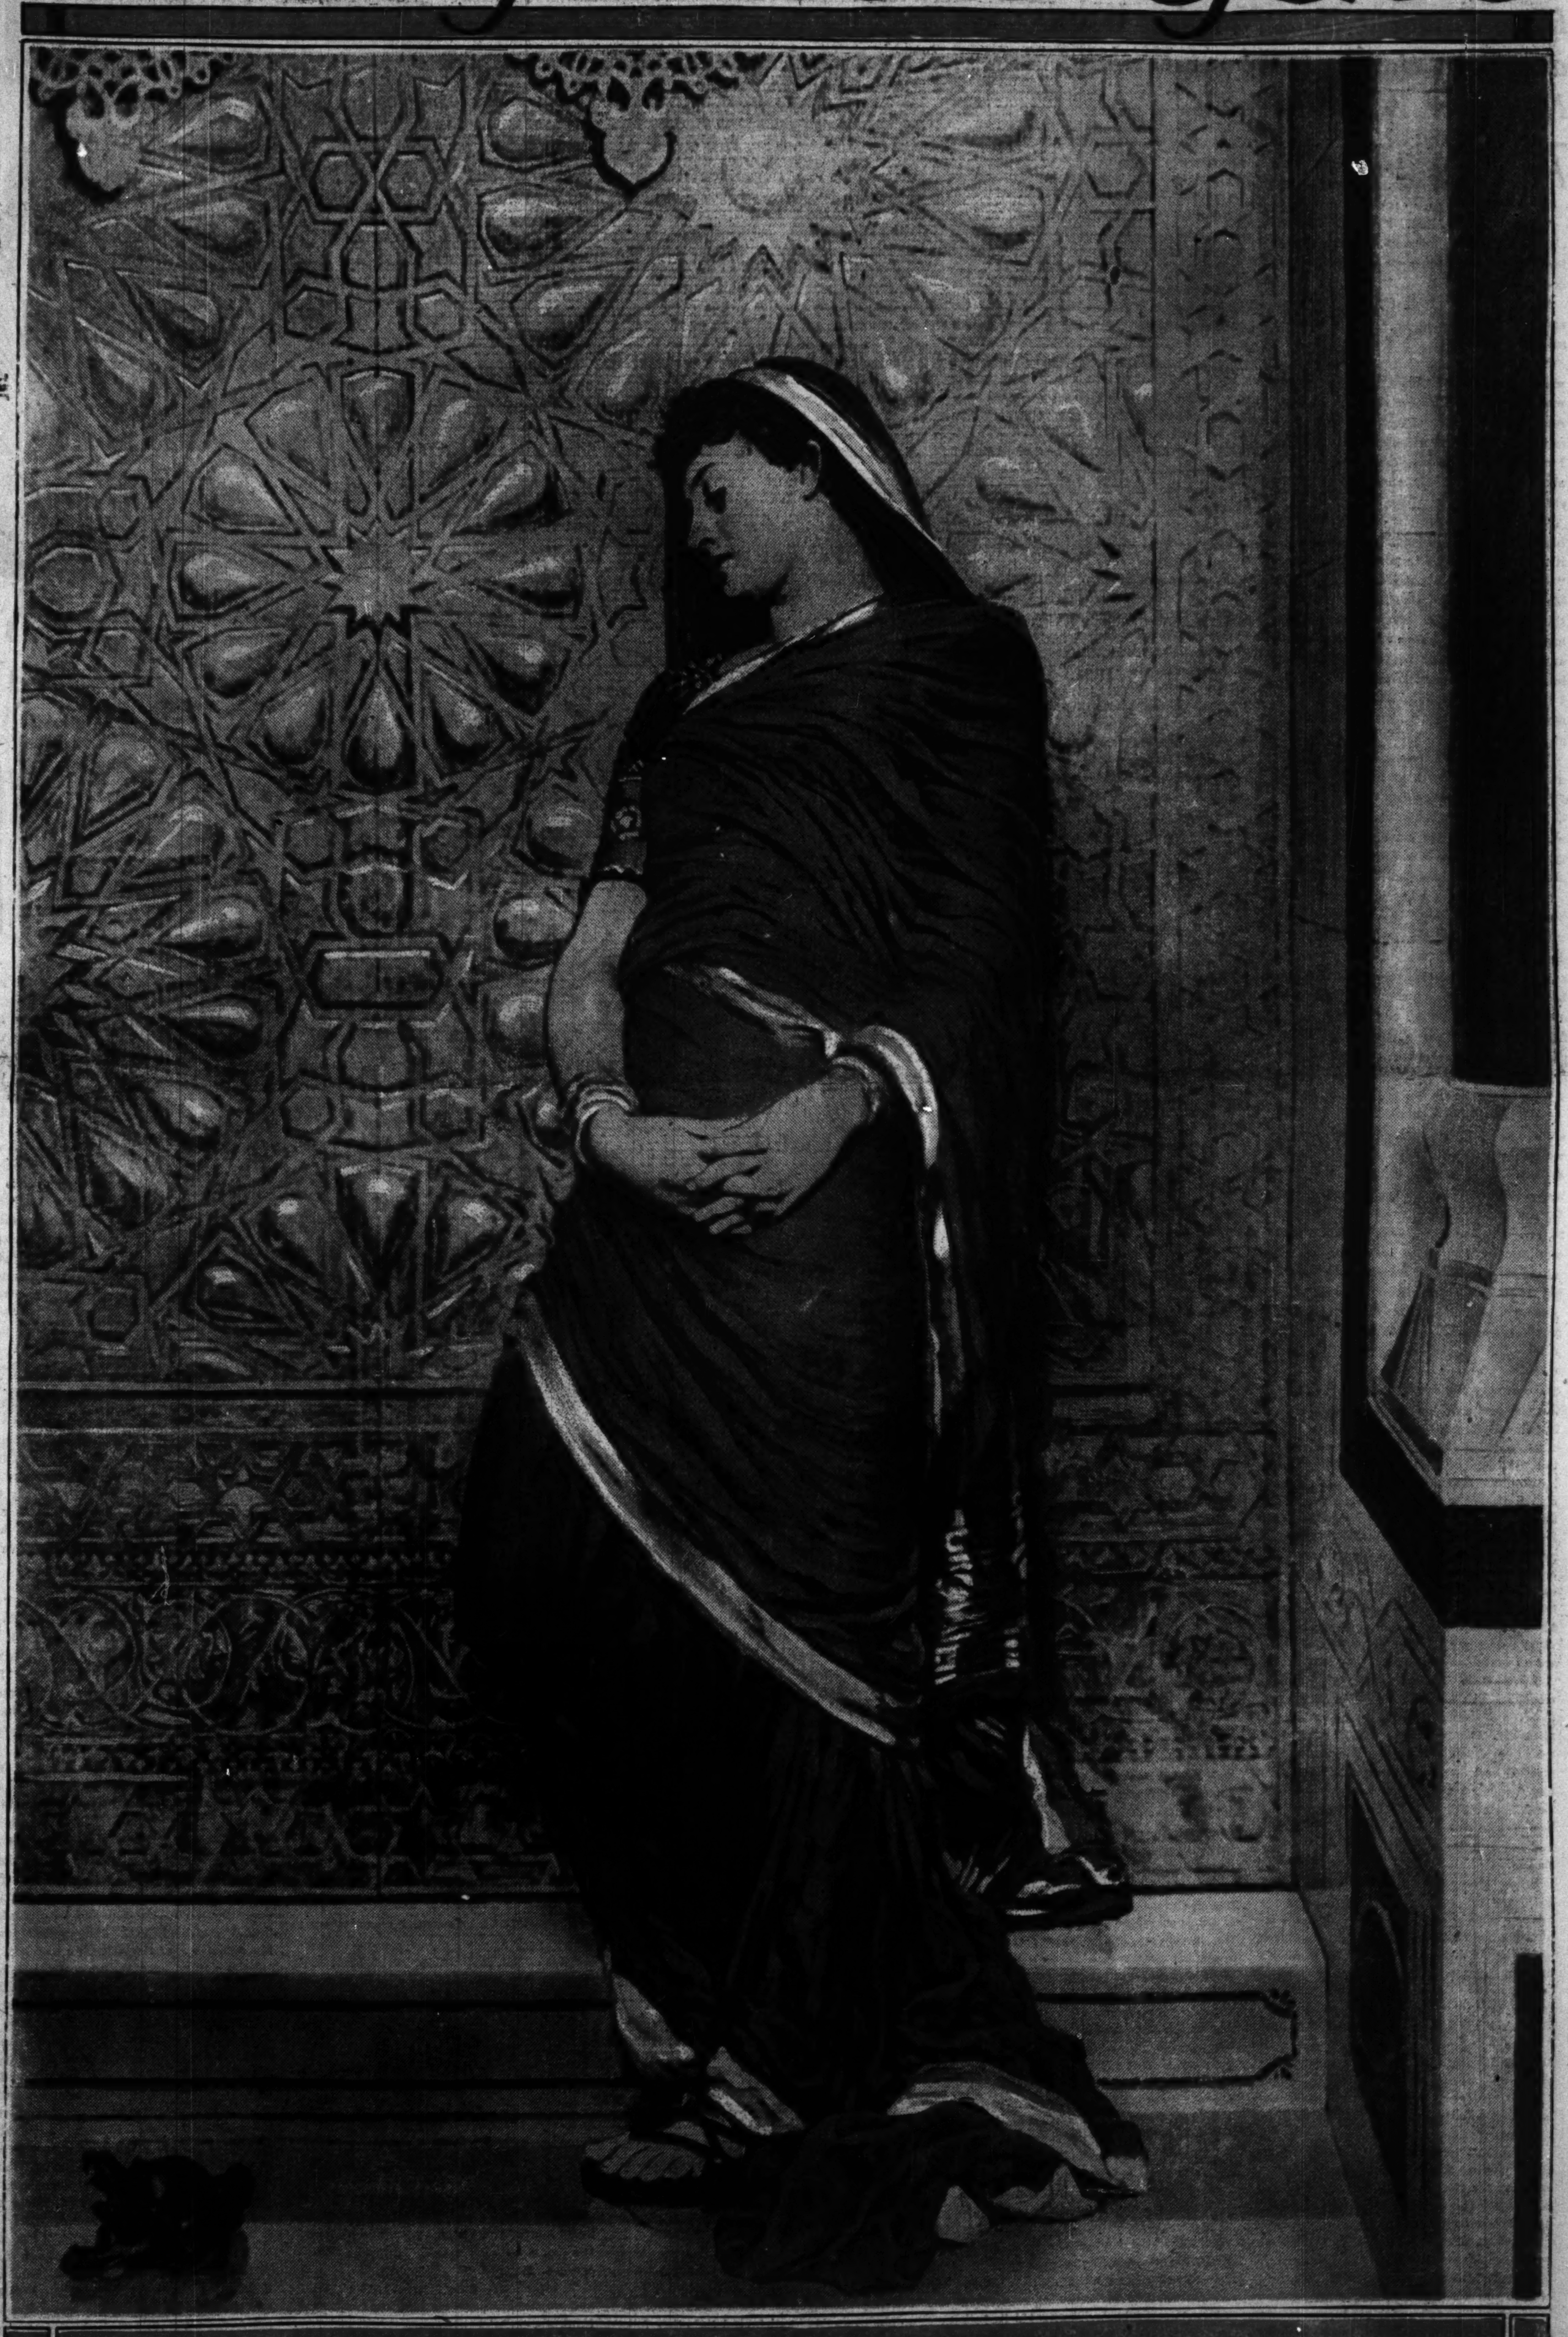
Critics who knew Prinsep personally incline to the first conception of the painting. He was born in India and many of his subjects deal with various phases of life in that country. He always loved the east and during the long years of his successful career proved himself an able executant of pictures of India's people and land.

Prinsep is one of the many examples of typically English painters born away from British soil. Whistler is an American. Herkomer is from Bavaria. Tissot is a native of Nantes. After having studied at Versailles and at Rome, Prinsep returned to England and came under the influence of Rossetti. He exhibited his first picture in 1860, and from that time on became an almost yearly contributor to the Royal academy.

"How Bianca Capillo Sought to Poison Cardinal de Medici" was his first real success. "My Lady Betty," "Jane Shore," "A Venetian Lover," and "Linen Gatherers" rank high in the long category of his pictures.

He received a fine commission from the Indian government at the time Queen Victoria was made empress of India. The government wished to make a splendid present to the queen. The canvas which he executed and which took him over a year to complete was a series of portrait studies and so highly was it valued in London that it was given a whole side of a wall in the Royal academy.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.



A BROMIDE IN BOHEMIA

by Berton Braley

"You're Like a Bunch of Little Kids Who Have Found a New Naughty Word and Who Bandy It About Without Any Notion of What It Means."

AIMEE lit her cigaret and blew a whiff of smoke lazily in the general direction of Belle, who sat cross legged on the couch, darning stockings.

"Belle," asked Aimee, "why do you persist in doing such a bromidic and old fashioned stunt as darning stockings? Nobody does it nowadays."

"If nobody does it that makes me different, my dear, and to be different is to be sulphitic, isn't it?"

"I never thought of that," admitted Aimee, whose name "back home" was Amy, but who had changed her orthography since she reached New York. "Perhaps you're right—anyhow that remark was clever enough. But I was really only paving the way to ask you about your friend who's coming up to the studio party tonight. What's he like?"

"I don't see what my darning stockings has to do with my friend, though I suppose it's perfectly obvious to you," replied Belle, "but I'll tell you about him. He's a nice, big, wholesome man who believes in everything, particularly in women, and who is making good in New York mighty fast. He's an architect. But it happens that he has been too busy to go out much socially, and I thought it would be pleasant to have him meet the clever crowd which usually gathers at the festivities."

"Well, these wholesome, honest, worthy men bore me to death as a rule," declared Aimee, yawning languidly, "but I'll try to be human to your adorable bromide if he won't lecture me for smoking cigarets. It may be even refreshing to chatter with ingenuous youth and sublime faith again."

"I suppose he is what you would call a bromide," said Belle; "he isn't particularly artistic—except in his own line—and he doesn't talk in epigrams, like Harkness, nor say daring and doubtful things like Bardeen, but he's an able and competent man in his own business, my dear, and though he has faith in humanity and all that, I don't think you'll find him exceedingly ingenuous. I should say that he was very far from being a babe in the woods."

Belle and Aimee came from the same town, a busy, modern, boastful, and booming middle western city of the 30,000 class, which was so occupied in growing larger and building up its material progress that it had no time for culture or purely intellectual diversion. Aimee, who had done some brilliant feature work on the local paper, came to New York on the strength of that success and landed on the Sunday staff of a metropolitan daily.

Avid of excitement, keen of "atmosphere," and obsessed with the illusion of bohemia, Aimee had almost immediately fallen in with the life of a set that seemed to typify that carefree, conventionless world of which she had dreamed; her acquaintances included a few nervous and cynical newspaper men who did "gay life" features, an artist or two who had achieved temperament as one buys an overcoat, and a half dozen newspaper and magazine women of about Aimee's age and experience who cultivated immense carelessness of manner, considered themselves beyond all illusion, smoked cigarets, drank cocktails, and constructed slightly salacious epigrams with a sangfroid in which, though they would not have admitted it, there was not a little bravado. Aimee, having met few other people in New York, believed that these were the true metropolitans.

When Belle followed Aimee to Gotham, where she was to conduct a children's department on a woman's magazine, she was quite naturally drawn into the same crowd with which her friend associated. She was a trifle startled and distressed at first by the ways and words of these folk, but she accepted them as typical of city life and soon found herself considered as one of them. But she had her own shrewd opinions of them nevertheless.

When Aimee had finished her cigaret and Belle her darning, they decided to go to the nearest table d'hôte for dinner. They completed a pale meal in six ostensible courses and started for the studio where the evening's gathering was to be.

It was five long and weary flights and Aimee herself would like to have found a little more air for her lungs and a little less "atmosphere" when she reached the door at the top landing, but this was a bohemian studio and air was never admitted. Incense there was—heavy, cloying, sweet—and the smoke of a half dozen cigarets, for most of the "gang" had arrived.

"Honesty!"—Harkness, who made advertising pictures for a living and painted mad sploshes for the sake of his soul, was discoursing—"Honesty is a survival of the stone age. It is merely an agreed limit on thievery. Civilization says you may steal so much from your neighbor and no more—if you stay within that limit you're an honest man; if you exceed it you're a crook. Honesty is merely a legal pose. The same with goodness. It's an agreed standard of conduct. Nobody is really good or bad. The bad people are the people who won't stick to that arbitrary standard. Consequently it's the bad people who are the progressives. Without badness you have no progress—it's the good people who hamper the world. Vive the moral anarchist!"

"Purity," gravely declared Bardeen, with no especial application to the discussion, "is the boast of the woman who lacks courage to sin."

"Gimme a cigaret, somebody," laughed Aimee, shoving Harkness aside from his place on the couch and squeezing in between him and a red haired girl with particularly scarlet rouge on her lips. The red haired girl passed her one. Aimee lighted the Turkish horror that smelled like a burning rag scented with musk and inhaled it deeply, expelling the blue smoke with a sigh of satisfaction—a trick which she had noticed as characteristic of hardened smokers.

"Come in," shouted Corrigan, to a knock on the door. There entered a big, ruddy, broad shouldered chap who seemed almost to fill the doorway as he came. With his bigness was an impression of power, of energy, of achievement—this was a builder, a creator, a dealer with realities—and a man. Vaguely the other men felt as if they were being shouldered aside. And the women—all of them liked him.

Bardeen stumbled in the midst of an epigram—it sounded flat and insincere even in his own ears.

"John Mangan," Belle welcomed him enthusiastically, "come here and sit by me." She patted the chair beside her. "Mr. Mangan, this is everybody; everybody, this is Mr. Mangan."

The big fellow smiled all around, took the proffered seat, opened his cigar case, and passed it about. Nobody accepted one of his black cigars, but he lighted one himself and settled back in his chair.

"This place," he said, "was full of airy chatter when I entered. Don't let me disturb it—talk on."

"Airy chatter is good," agreed Aimee. "Mr. Harkness was giving us his heart thoughts on honesty, which he does not approve, and Mr. Bardeen was tossing epigrams into the air regardless of where they fell."

"I'm afraid I'd be at sea in all this welter of brilliancy," observed Mangan, "so I'll sit at the feet of wisdom and listen. I'm only a bromide in bohemia; I'll smoke and inhale culture."

Whereat, after a moment, the babble was resumed. Gayly these cocksure critics of life thrust at illusion and jeered at ideals. Mercilessly they attacked the humdrum and the healthy, and glorified the outré and the unhealthy. Girls who otherwise would have been going to dancing parties and delighting in frocks valiantly discussed sex psychology and lowered lance against marriage as an institution. Art was given its place on the pinnacle of progress, where it should be forever untrammeled by decency, good taste, or morality.

Paste jewels of thought flashed as iridescently as the genuine; Shaw and Schopenhauer and Sudermann were flung about with and without quotation marks, and every convention and custom and tradition lay pierced and panting on the field of battle. The mêlée was formless as a street fight, when heads are broken for sheer joy of the conflict, until Aimee launched a broadside at the bromides.

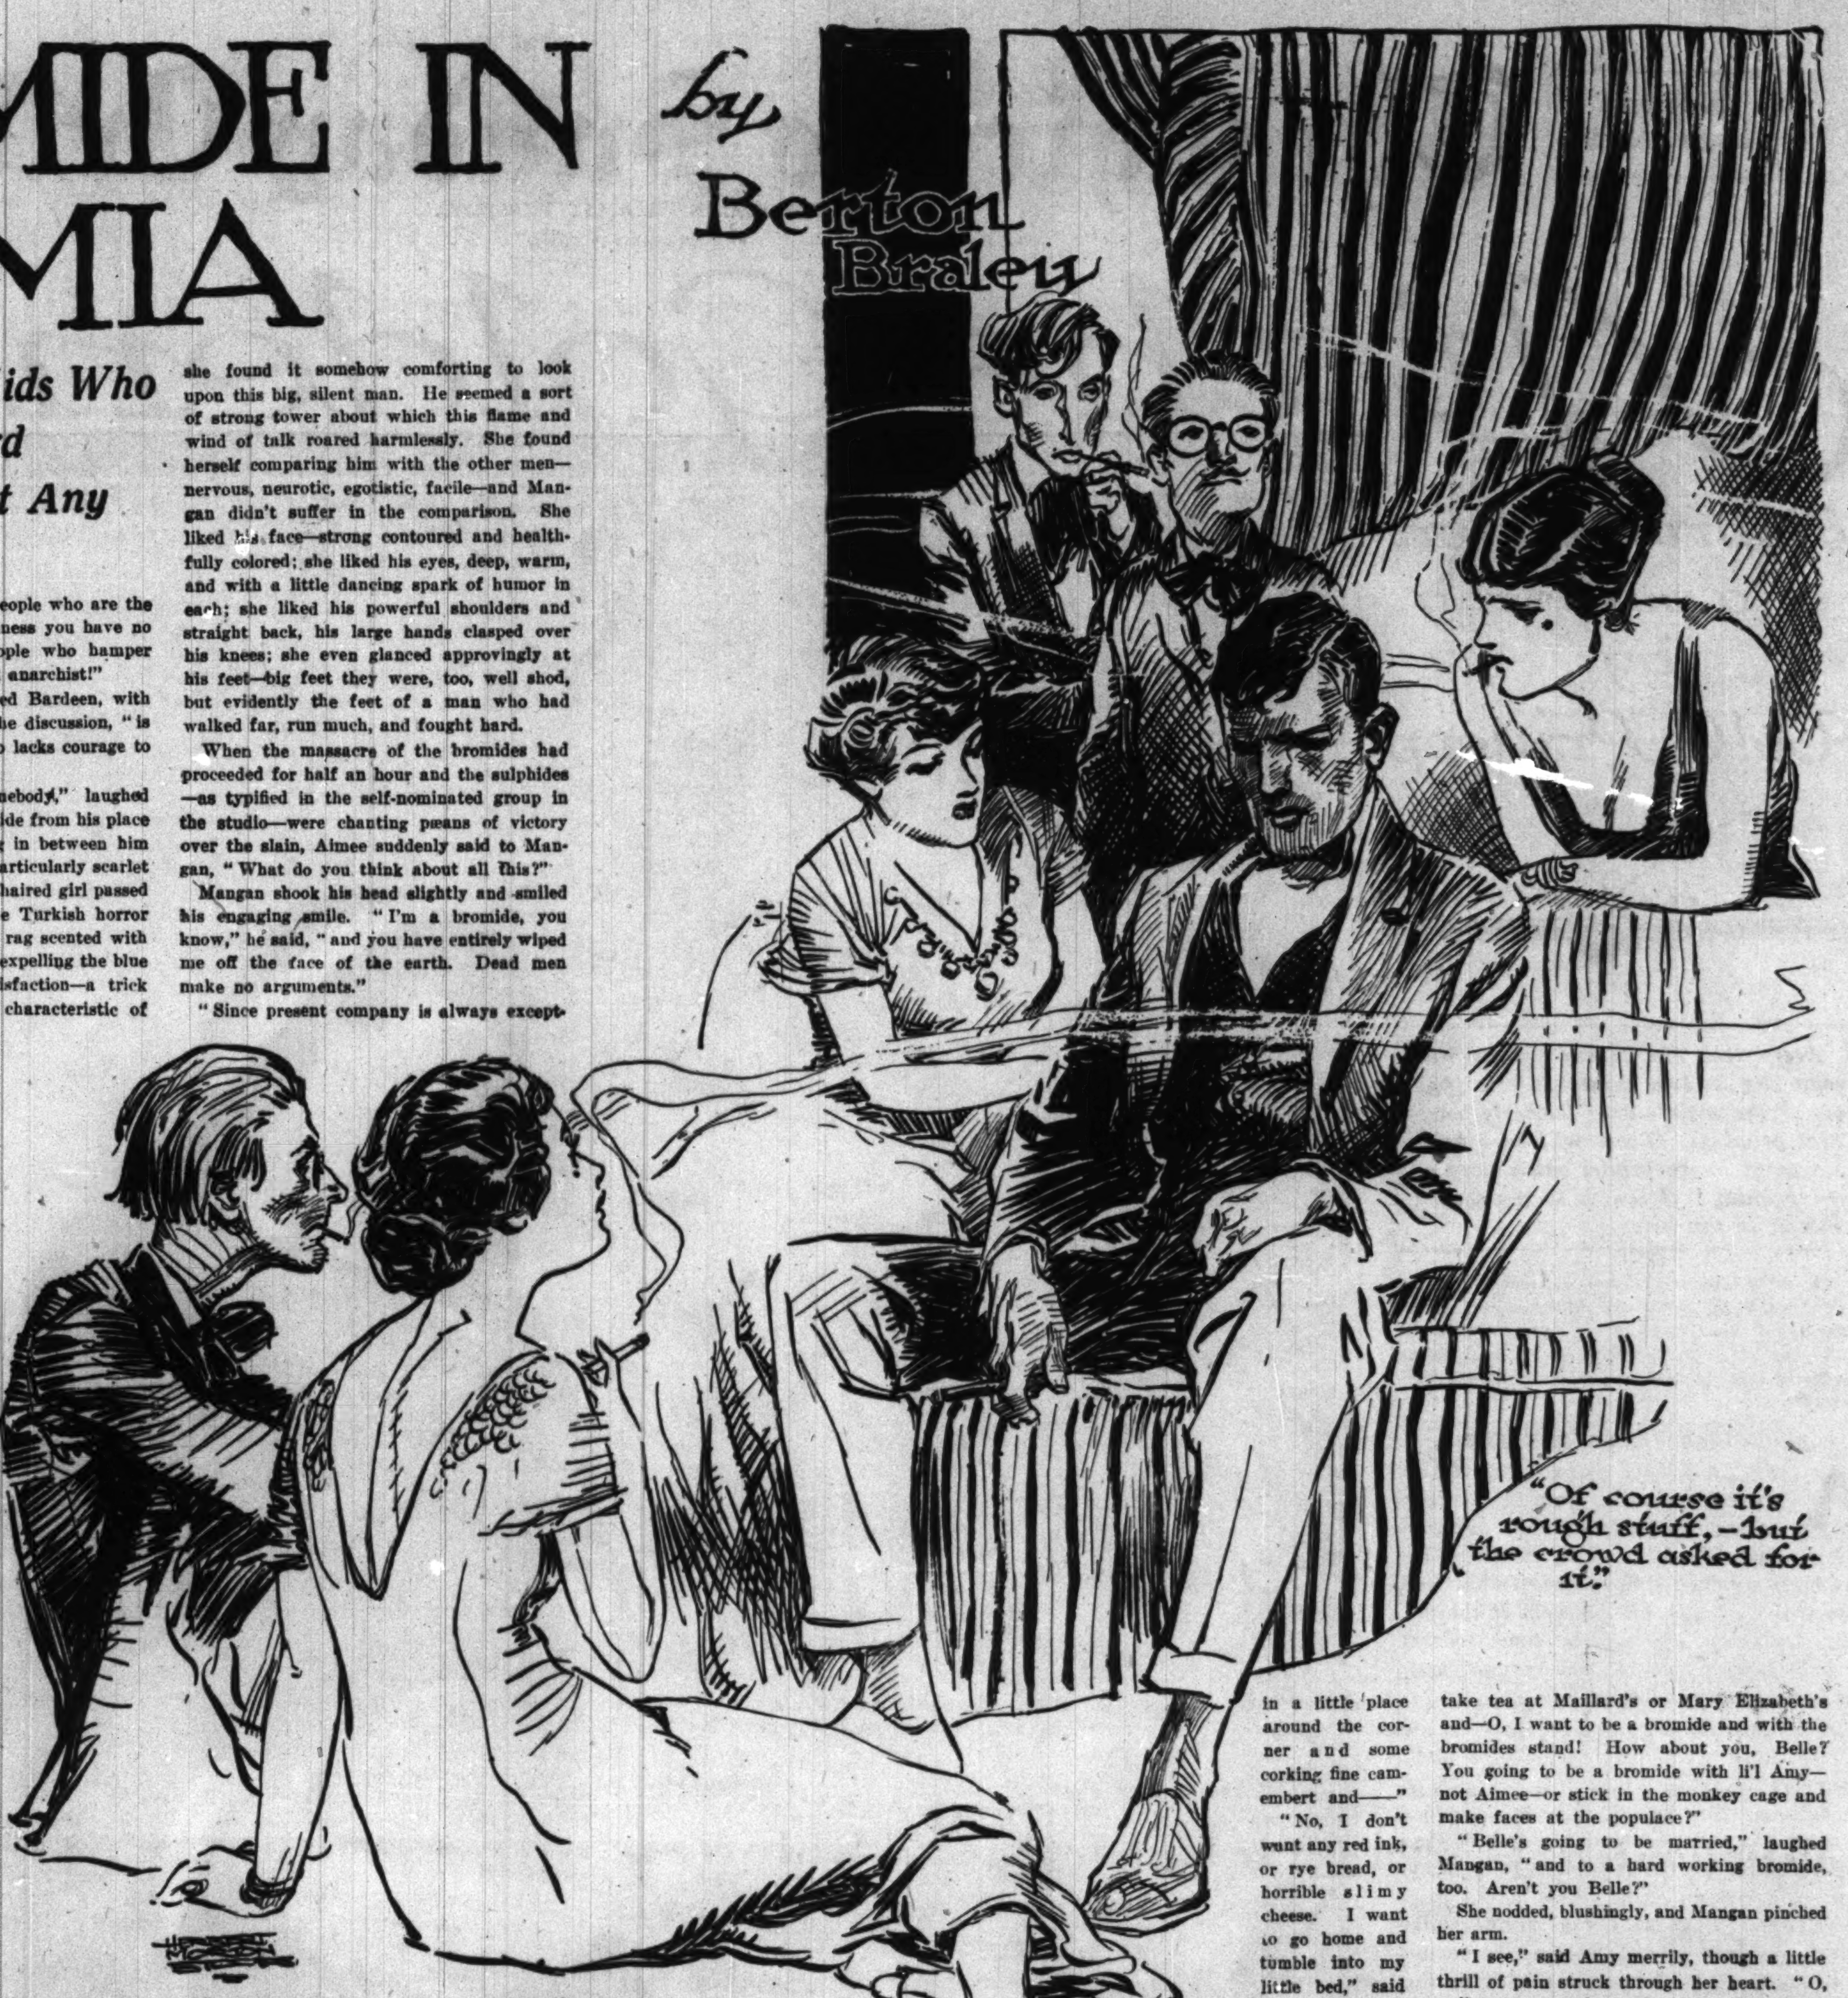
Then, flinging aside all other mental activities, the artists who saw life through a haze of art school blither and a frosted skylight, the newspaper cynics who worked on the seamy side of the tapestry until they believed there was no other side, the philosophers who had eaten in all of the east side restaurants and once met Emma Goldman, and the young women who had studied the universe by attending vital dramas from the French and listening to ratty haired lecturers on soul expression and the absolute liberation of the individual—in full throated chorus charged upon the bromides and tore them to shreds and tatters.

The average reader and the ordinary man, the dull mob and the unthinking philistine were pilloried and then slaughtered to make a bohemian holiday, and the scorn heaped upon those who had to do with things rather than ideas, the "crass worker in steel and stone and sausages," was such as to shrivel and consume them wholly.

Mangan smoked silently through the tumult while Aimee, who had instigated it, took no part, but, almost unregarded from her place between Harkness and the painted girl, watched the visitor. And as the clamor raged she found it somehow comforting to look upon this big, silent man. He seemed a sort of strong tower about which this flame and wind of talk roared harmlessly. She found herself comparing him with the other men—nervous, neurotic, egotistic, facile—and Mangan didn't suffer in the comparison. She liked his face—strong contoured and healthfully colored; she liked his eyes, deep, warm, and with a little dancing spark of humor in each; she liked his powerful shoulders and straight back, his large hands clasped over his knees; she even glanced approvingly at his feet—big feet they were, too, well shod, but evidently the feet of a man who had walked far, run much, and fought hard.

When the massacre of the bromides had proceeded for half an hour and the sulphides—as typified in the self-nominated group in the studio—were chanting pæans of victory over the slain, Aimee suddenly said to Mangan, "What do you think about all this?"

Mangan shook his head slightly and smiled his engaging smile. "I'm a bromide, you know," he said, "and you have entirely wiped me off the face of the earth. Dead men make no arguments."



"Of course it's rough stuff,—but the crowd asked for it."

"Since present company is always excepted," urged the painted girl, "you—even if you are a bromide—would not have been a victim of the slaughter. Your work is different from ours, your point of view probably different—tell us what it is."

"And you needn't even except present company," promised Aimee; "tell us quite frankly what you think about bohemia and bromides and sulphides—and about us."

"I think you're a very interesting people," replied Mangan, guardedly.

"Let's have it straight from the shoulder," Harkness demanded. "What do you really think?"

"That's a dangerous request," Mangan warned them, "because usually when people ask you to be frank they really want you to say nice things to them. And perhaps I wouldn't say nice things to you if I actually took you at your word."

"Try it, anyhow," advised Bardeen.

"Your blood be on your own head then," said Mangan. "Frankly, I have no patience with your attitude. So far as I can gather from this conversation I have heard, anybody who does commonplace things in a commonplace way, any one who goes ahead and does his good work the best he can without being witty about it, is a bromide. And the sulphide is the clever chap who stands by and criticizes the job. By a process of elimination I also deduce that you think—if you actually think what you say you do—that any one who believes in people in general, in truth and honesty and clean living and hard work and ordinary morality, is a bromide. I believe in all these things, therefore I am a bromide—and I wouldn't be a sulphide for the world.

"It seems to me that you've got entirely the wrong idea of the world, because you aren't really living in it. You don't know anything about it. You coop yourselves in smoky studios like this, and you associate almost entirely with people who are doing the same sort of interesting but not particularly vital work that you are doing, and then talk yourselves into a conspicuousness of serene superiority to the great hustling, toiling, sweating world outside—which goes right on bromidically hewing wood and drawing water and building skyscrapers and making the desert blossom. But you aren't superior to it—you're not even equal to it. More than that you—and by you I mean all people of your kind—aren't especially important in the world.

"I don't mean to belittle your work. Art is long and art is noble—sometimes—and has its very real place in existence, but it isn't the only thing in the world. And if all the sulphides and the artists and the other folks who do work of that sort were wiped out tomorrow there would be much darkness and sorrow in the universe, but the main part of its work would go on just the same. While if the bromides were slaughtered all at once, or were even to quit work, you sulphides would starve in a hurry.

"So that's what I think of sulphides in general. I'm not quite sure, however, that you folks are real sulphides. I think you actually do believe in most of the things I do—but that you're like a bunch of little kids who have found a new naughty word and who bandy it about without any notion of what it means. And I'm reasonably certain that if you mean to get out and truly learn something about the world—the great bromidic world about you—you'd forget a lot of this bunk you've been pulling. And if the women would play around a little more with bromidic, home loving, real women, instead of messing around in 'artistic atmosphere' and kidding yourself into the belief that you're breathing in new and broader views, when you're merely getting second hand Shaw and cigaret smoke—it would probably change your views a bit, too."

"Kind of rough stuff, that," commented Corrigan as Mangan ceased.

"Of course it's rough stuff," said Mangan, "but the crowd asked for it. You may recall that I didn't want to say anything. And if you'll think back to what you said about 'my kind of people' a little while ago—maybe you won't blame me for coming back hard."

"Not a bit, not a bit," said Harkness, jauntily, "we got what we asked for. But in Mr. Mangan we have again the conventional mind which does not understand—which declares all beyond its own experience not only impossible but evil, which——"

Aimee threw her half smoked cigaret on the floor and rose to her feet.

"Ugh!" she cried, "this air is stifling. Open a window, some one, for heaven's sake—and chuck that beastly incense out doors!"

Mangan threw up the window and the cool, pure night air drove in. Aimee inhaled it with a deep sobbing breath and leaned out to survey the city which stretched its myriad lights for infinite vistas below the hill where the studio building stood. Then she turned again to Mangan.

"Please," she said, "will you take Belle and me back to the flat? I'm tired and I think she is."

"But aren't you going to stay for supper?" asked Corrigan. "I've got a bully little lunch—some nice cheap wine I've just found in a little place around the corner and some corking fine camembert and——"

"No, I don't want any red ink, or rye bread, or horrible slimy cheese. I want to go home and tumble into my little bed," said Aimee irritably.

As they stepped into the street Aimee stretched out her arms to the city as though gathering it to her breast. "O, you great, beautiful place, full of wonderful, busy, genuine people doing things!" she exclaimed. "You marvelous hard working bromide! To think I've been wasting so much of my time with poseurs and folks playing at life when you were right around the corner to bring me real people for friends and to give me real material."

"Isn't this sudden?" asked Belle.

"Not so awfully" confessed Aimee, "I've been ha'eing me doots about this studio life for quite some time, and the minute this regular man blew in there tonight"—Mangan stopped in his tracks and bowed low—"I began to foreswear my false gods. You meant something beside talk, Mr. Man," she informed him, with a sparkling glance, "and I was so tired of talk."

"Then you must have tired of me," Mangan suggested, "because I certainly did spill a lot of conversation after I got started there."

"That's different," she asserted, "it was like a keen, clean north wind after a lot of perfumed zephyrs from slowly waving fans. It was real stuff. And it just chimed with the subconscious thoughts I'd been thinking. So—good-by, bohemia!" she waved toward the studio building which they had left.

"I'm not so sure you've really left bohemia," said Belle, quietly, "because I don't think you've ever been there. That studio isn't bohemia. Incense and red ink and cigarets and wild talk don't make bohemia. Seems to me bohemia is a place where people live cheerfully and happily by sanely doing as they please, where they make the best of what they have and work to have more; a place without pose or pretense and full of tolerance, not a place where a bunch of knockers gather to make faces at the world and to go to an awful lot of trouble to live the way the rest of the world thinks they ought not to."

"Well, anyhow," Aimee said, "I'm going to be a regular conventional person for a while. I've been worrying for weeks what it was I wanted and why I was so restless and dissatisfied, and now I know it wasn't art or the ultimate I desired. I just wanted to be a regular girl and have fellows take me to dances and treat me like a piece of Dresden china, and I want to go shopping and take tea at Maillard's or Mary Elizabeth's and—O, I want to be a bromide and with the bromides stand! How about you, Belle? You going to be a bromide with li'l Amy—not Aimee—or stick in the monkey cage and make faces at the populace?"

"Belle's going to be married," laughed Mangan, "and to a hard working bromide, too. Aren't you Belle?"

She nodded, blushingly, and Mangan pinched her arm.

"I see," said Amy merrily, though a little thrill of pain struck through her heart. "O, well, you were only a sulphide by abduction—because I dragged you in. Now you'll be a bromide by marriage, and you're in luck. It would be an awful thing to have to be sulphitic at home. It's all right to scintillate at dinner, but when you have to iridesce at lunch and coruscate at breakfast, the strain is too much. Here's the house. And before we part for the evening, Mr. Mangan, I'm going to show you how thoroughly I have foresworn the sulphides."

She held out her hand, and with a little gurgle of laughter said, "Good-by, Mr. Mangan; now that you have found the way I hope you will come often."

"You bet I will," declared Mangan, with a warm pressure of her hand, "I'll come tomorrow if I may. I'll come and hang around the flat while Belle is out with a handsomer man."

"If I were still a sulphide," smiled Amy, "I'd be flattered at the chance to flirt with another girl's fiancé, but I'm a bromide girl now, and I'm shocked at the very thought."

"Why, you goose," giggled Belle; "Jack's not engaged. I'm going to marry Jim Horton, from home."

"O!" said Amy, with such genuine relief that all three of them laughed, then she added—"and they say a woman can't keep a secret!"

"Well, I was afraid you wouldn't approve," said Belle, "because you know Jim isn't brilliant or anything like that, only square and fine and good—and a first class salesman!"

"After which explanations," said Amy, "I shall be very glad to have you call tomorrow evening," and once more she gave Mangan her hand.

"Well," said Belle, when they were alone in their tiny flat.

"Well," said Amy.

"What do you think?" asked Belle.

"I think he's a whale!" said Amy, "and I'm thinking I'd like a nice leviathan in my home."

She picked up a box of fifty cigarets which lay on the table and started for the door with them.

"I'm going to give these to the hallboy," Amy declared; "I'm reforming."

"But—but you needn't," Belle protested; "Jack isn't narrow about those things. He doesn't object, so long as you like them——"

"Belle," said Amy in a mysterious whisper, "I'll tell you a deep dark secret known to no other human soul. I've tried and tried to get the habit; I've practiced at home and abroad because I thought it was the real metropolitan, bohemian, artistic thing to do—but I never really enjoyed a cigaret once and the solemn, honest truth of the matter is, I hate 'em!"

She stepped into the corridor singing, "I want to be a bromide."

SO vurr' much has been written about Billie Burke recently that it is almost impossible to say anything new regarding her without its being a repitition, but a little biograph must chase along under the "Frame," you know, so thayh yoh ar'. It was in musical comedy and while still a little girl that she made her first "hit." She was in the "Belle of Mayfair" and later in "The School Girl," where her song, "The Little Canoe," took London by storm. Later she played in "Mrs. Ponderbury's Past," and after awhile in New York she was leading woman for John Drew in "My Wife." From then on she appeared in various productions, always being recognized as one of the most popular of the feminine players. She made her picture debut in "Peggy," and now in "Gloria's Romance" is proving herself a marvelous favorite. In private life, as you know, she is Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld.

Dear Miss Tinee: How do you account for the fact that Mahlon Hamilton does not seem to be the object of much discussion in your column? He is so fascinating and adorably tall and altogether attractive. He did not appear to advantage, however, in "Molly Make Believe" with Marguerite Clarke, because he requires a setting such as a mountain or ranch scene, to which his splendid physical construction would be more adapted. Hoping to see his picture before "many moons," and thanking you in advance, I remain, FLORENCE KAY.

ALL WE DO IS COUNT THE VOTES.

Dear Miss Tinee: Why is it that sometimes you will print a picture of a movie star in the "Frame" two or three times and yet will never show up another? Does this seem entirely fair? I don't like to accuse you of favoritism, but it does seem to me that you might broaden out just a little and give them all a chance. JAMES K. ARDEN.

Vote for the Picture of Your Favorite Player.

Marshall Neilan received the highest number of votes last week. His picture, therefore, will appear in The Frame of Public Favor next Sunday. Of the other players voted upon the following six are the leaders: Alice Brady, Arthur Hoops, Stelli Razito, Carlyle Blackwell, Creighton Hale, and Marguerite Clayton.

SYNOPSIS.

Dr. Stephen Royce and Dick Freneau, an adventurer, love Gloria Stafford, daughter of the multimillionaire. Freneau proposes and is accepted. Meanwhile he pursues his affairs with Lois Freeman Stafford, wife of David Stafford, Gloria's brother. Lois learns of the intended marriage and threatens suicide rather than witness it. Freneau temporizes—declares he loves her (Lois) but must marry Gloria for financial reasons. Lois believes. David, her husband, by an anonymous letter, learns of Lois' infatuation for Freneau—whose name is synonymous with disgraceful affairs. In fact, Gideon Trask, father of Nell, one of his unfortunate victims, is on Freneau's trail swearing revenge. Meanwhile Lois promises to meet Freneau at the soldiers' monument, from where they will go to a Catskill village for a week. Freneau goes to the monument. There he is killed. Three men are seen near him. Gloria sees it all from her window. She swears to find Freneau's murderer.

NINETEENTH INSTALLMENT.

AS Lois Stafford fled down the terraces of her father-in-law's majestic estate, her own life seemed to be symbolized in her desperate ambition to destroy herself.

The cries of Gloria, who pursued her frantically, came to her like the voice of conscience. She had never heeded that voice and she would not hearken to it now. She had trodden the primrose path of dalliance and it had led her forth into the glare of exposure. She would not endure the shame.

It was Gloria who thought of these things even as she followed. Gloria felt more guilt than Lois, for Gloria had confronted Lois with the proofs of her perfidy, never fancying that Lois would answer the charge of punishing herself with the same recklessness that had marked her sin. As she saw Lois running toward death with eagerness, she understood for the first time that it was in Lois' character to do everything passionately.

Gloria ran as fast as she could, her heart beating till she was ready to fall down with the pain of it. She was about to give up when Lois, glancing back for a last look at the beautiful earth she was about to leave, stumbled and went to her knees.

She rose at once and sped on, but Gloria had been enabled to gain on her, and to overtake her at the very edge of the ravine. With loving ruthlessness Gloria flung herself on Lois and dragged her back.

Lois fought with insane ferocity, tearing Gloria's hands loose and writhing out of her clasp. But Gloria seized hold again and again. Lois carried her back to the brink and the turf at the edge gave way under their feet as they wrestled. Gloria had now her own life to fight for as well as Lois', for at any moment both women would go hurtling down the step to the railroad tracks.

They were there battling when the engine roared past. The fireman, leaning out of his window, stared up at them in amazement. They were still struggling when the last coach flashed by.

It was only then, when her weapon of suicide was gone from her reach, that Lois gave up the fight. She fell to the ground weeping.

Gloria knelt by her, begging her not to cry. At last she offered the final bribe in her power. She drew the envelope of letters from the bosom of her gown and held it out to Lois, saying:

"I forgive you, dear. I have no right to judge you. I can't take that resposibility."

Lois rather saw the prize than heard the counsel and she snatched at the letters with the instinct of a child.

Gloria felt her heart harden again. She could not keep back a feeling of contempt for the selfish pettiness of Lois. Yet she could not fail to see the prettiness of her, too.

Gloria was afraid to speak lest she waste further rebukes on a soul that could not profit by any other chastisement than sacrifice and fear. So Gloria left her and climbed the terraces. She noted with relief that no one had seen the brief drama that might have startled the whole nation. She was afraid that she had done everything she ought not to have done.

The reason that the duel between Gloria and Lois had not been observed by any one but the fleeting eyes of the fireman on the express engine was that the Stafford estate was a little world in itself.

At last she reached her room. Looking from her window, she could see the embankment where she had won a double victory over Lois and herself. Lois was tearing the bundle of letters to bits and scattering the pieces upon the railroad track, where she had nearly been torn to pieces herself.

Gloria felt that one riddle at least was solved. She felt sorry for David and his choice among women. Then she remembered the judge's accusation against David. According to that her brother was guilty of a more heinous crime than Lois. He had taken a life or, with even greater wickedness, had persuaded another man to commit murder for him. She could not rest till she had either cleared David of that suspicion or warned him that his secret was known.

David had been conferring with his business associates by telephone. Pierpont had been inspecting the prize cattle with which he jealously expected to confound his rival neighbors at the next county fair. Stas had been looking at the big picture books on the large table in the huge living room. His father, Casimir, had been working among the rose bushes with the head gardener. Judge Freeman had been involved in one more conspiracy, which he firmly hoped would be the last.

It was Casimir who first interrupted Gloria in her search for David. Casimir had hardly believed that there were as many roses in all the world as there were in the Stafford close. He could see his wife lying in a reclining chair in a sunny nook and it occurred to him that one of those roses would cheer her and serve as a bit of gallantry. So he plucked one. The gardener saw the deed, charged on him with a roar, and snatched the flower from him.

Casimir quailed before the onslaught, and Gloria, drawn to the spot by the noisy voices, found him craven with confusion. She took his part at once, and when the gardener and her father explained the atrocity he had committed Gloria also turned on him:

"In heaven's name, Casimir, what did you mean by taking the only rose my poor father has?"

"I did taked it, Mees Gloria, for to geeve my poor vife. Better I should go away now, yes?"

"You took a rose to give your wife, did you?" Gloria cried. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself.'

"Taking one rose for your poor wife. The next time you want flowers for her you take as many as you can carry."

While her father and the gardener and Casimir gaped like dolts, she snipped off a dozen of the Pierpont roses with the gardener's own shears.

She gave the gardener his shears, pushed Casimir out of the inclosure, and followed, turning to say: "Thank you, father."

Pierpont and the gardener looked at each other and both said, "Whew!"

Gloria went along to make sure that Casimir's wife received the flowers with no hint of their hazardous gathering. Then she went to the house to find David.

She was encountered by her aunt, the great Hortensia, with a bevy of other great ladies from the countryside.

"Give us tea, Gloria, for heaven's sake," said Hortensia, "and come listen to our scheme."

They dragged Gloria to the Japanese tea garden, whither the servants brought tea and all its accompaniments across the lawn. Aunt Hortensia gathered in Dr. Royce as well.

Aunt Hortensia explained that it was about time to "get up something." Each of the ladies had her pet charity which needed funds and every one talked at the same time. Gloria's mind was too full of her own problems to feel much interest. She beckoned to Casimir and sent him with tea and cakes for his wife. When he came back with the china she piled up a little mid-afternoon banquet for himself.

He took it shyly, then stared at it, and shook his head and offered it back. Gloria asked why. He hesitated, then exclaimed: "In my Poland millions of my peoples are dying because they have not of bread. And should I to eat of cake? No, I could not, please!"

Gloria respected his feelings too much to force him to eat, but she turned to the committee and, claiming the floor, asked the house to listen to a delegate from Europe. She made Casimir speak.

When he had finished every eye was wet and every heart afire for Poland. When Gloria proposed a mammoth lawn festival for Polish relief there was unanimous assent.

"We'll charge a fortune for a tea biscuit and bankrupt everybody that comes," said Gloria. "Then I'll take the money over to Poland myself to make sure that it falls into the right hands."

"And I'll go along with you," Dr. Royce spoke up, "to make sure that you don't fall into the wrong hands."

Every one applauded the impudence, but Gloria answered it with one of her blackest looks. Dr. Royce was still under the ban. He had confessed too much and duped her too well to be forgiven in haste. But her rebuke was ignored in the excitement of the convention. A mammoth lawn festival for Polish relief; there was no dissent. Committees of all sorts were concocted, and the tea party, which had become a crusade, adjourned to the next day.

Now once more Gloria felt free to seek David. She found him, hiding, he said, till the women got away. She asked him to follow her. She had perfected her scheme for testing his innocence or his guilt. Her plan was inspired, no doubt, by what she had heard and read of what the police call "the third degree."

David had not been present when the yachting expedition set forth to run down Trask, nor had he been present when Trask was brought in. Gloria felt that. David was thoroughbred enough to rule his own expressions and to pretend ignorance of Trask's existence. But Gloria felt sure that if she could bring the two men suddenly face to face one or the other would betray a guilty knowledge.

So she said to David: "Come with me. I've got a surprise for you."

David followed her up to the guest room where Trask had been installed. She led him to the door, knocked, opened the door, and bade David enter. A screen stood before the bed and she drew it aside quickly, keeping her eyes on David. She saw surprise in his face, but not of the sort she expected. His surprise was blank wonder. She turned to see how Trask took the confrontation. Trask was not there. The bed was empty.

Gloria ran to find the nurse. She met her just coming in from a motor ride. She had taken her two hours of liberty, she said, leaving Nell to care for her father. She was stunned by the news of Trask's departure. He was too weak to rise and walk. It seemed impossible that he could have been carried out without attracting the attention of a dozen servants.

Gloria felt bewitched. She ran to seek Dr. Royce. David ran after her, asking "What's it all about? What's the little surprise you had for me. It seems to have caught you first."

"Don't bother me," was all Gloria would say.

David seemed so amused by her dismay that she began to suspect him of kidnaping his confederate. But she dared not accuse him lest, if he were innocent, she would reveal to him more of Lois' guilt than she felt it her right to divulge.

She stood off David and hurried on to find Dr. Royce. She met Judge Freeman on the lawn, and told him what had happened. He expressed surprise, but when she had left him she began to feel dissatisfied with the sincerity of his amazement. But she could not pause to investigate him further. When at last she found Royce, she forgot that he was in her black books still. It had been her habit for so many years to run to him with her problems that she ran to him now, and, laying her hands on his arm, cried:

"O, Stephen, Stephen, they've stolen Trask! I've lost him again and I don't know what to do."

"Stolen Trask!" Royce exclaimed. "It's impossible."

"Of course, it's impossible," said Gloria, "but it's true, too."

Royce set out to pick up what trace there might be of him. Gloria tagged along. Royce asked every servant he met where he had been. Several of them had been on the lawn serving tea. Judge Freeman had sent others on various errands. The cook and her crew had been busy providing for Aunt Hortensia's mob. Royce called for his own chauffeur. He had been in the kitchen, he confessed, as a guest at a tea party below stairs.

Judge Freeman was not to be found. As a matter of fact he was the principal offender. After he left Gloria he had wandered about in a deep and gloomy meditation. He was convinced that Gloria, with her impulsive and unmanageable temper, was set upon unraveling every knot in the tangle. He was sure that her inexperience with the world would keep her from foreseeing the consequences and that she would compel a complete revelation. This would end only in a public scandal, an enormous and irretrievable disaster.

David would be put on trial for his life and Trask would turn state's evidence against him to save his own life. David would perhaps be sentenced to death, or, if he escaped that, he would escape it in some pretense of insanity, with all the aftermath of endless serial scandals. In any case, Lois would be disgraced before the world, and if David's wealth could bribe an acquittal, it would purchase a divorce.

Another consequence would be that the judge himself would be impeached or forced to a resignation under fire, with his ermine dishonored. It is only fair to say that the judge's fears for his own suffering had less weight with him than his fears for the wreck of his daughter's life and of David's. He loved David as if he were his own son. He had a deep affection for Pierpont, and he cherished a great fondness for Gloria. He respected even the motives that were so perilous to herself as well as all the others.

He wandered disconsolately about the lonelier portions of the Stafford demesne and found himself at the outer gate. There he chanced to see the bargeman, Jed, come up the road. Jed asked if he knew where the Stafford place was. Judge Freeman told him that it was before him. Jed asked if a badly hurt man had been taken in there with his daughter. The judge nodded and asked what Jed knew of the case.

Jed said he didn't know much except that the old man's daughter was his girl and going to marry him some day and he was afraid she was in trouble. So he had left the barge to hurry back and see if he could be of some use.

The judge questioned him cautiously and finally proposed that the best thing to do would be to get the old man out of the hands of the Staffords, who meant him no good. Jed seized on the suggestion hungrily and the judge offered his coöperation. He led Jed by a little frequented path to the rear of the house and bade him wait. He went in and sent Nell out to speak to Jed and make sure if she wanted to escape with him. Nell assured him that she did. The beauty of the home oppressed her. The servants were to her but spies and guards.

While Nell was talking with Jed Judge Freeman was ordering his own chauffeur to bring the car up to a corner of the driveway shielded from the house by a clump of ancient rhododendrons as large as trees. Then the judge, surprised at his own craftiness and bringing into play all the lore he had acquired from hearing thieves' confessions, set about the burglarious art of clearing the house.

When the coast, or at least the stairway, was clear, he called in his chauffeur and Jed. They hurried up to Trask's room and, lifting him in his sheets, hurried out into the hall and down the stairs with him. The old man suffered agonies from the jolts and jars, but he smothered his groans somewhat. The judge went ahead as a scout and warded off one maid who ran in for Aunt Hortensia's parasol and a man who hurried back for a social register of the county to be used in making up a committee list.

Thus Trask was, as the saying is, spirited away without being seen by any one except his abductors. The chauffeur ran his car from the grounds by the tradesmen's entrance and Judge Freeman, lingering, saw the cloud of dust the machine raised as it dashed north. He remained to keep watch and to do what he could to turn pursuit in the wrong direction.

He felt disquieted by the pallor of Trask and by his extreme exhaustion. He was afraid that the old man would not last long. He hated himself for the thought, but he could not dismiss the belief that it would solve all problems if the wretch should pass away in silence. If he spoke he might condemn himself to death in the chair and take David with him.

Judge Freeman abhorred his own deed and regretted that he could not punish himself publicly as severely as he would have punished another judge who violated his honor so. But he had been a father before he became a judge, and the parental instinct overruled the legal obligation.

Meanwhile he smiled, though dismally, to think that his old head had outwitted the young wits of Gloria.

Gloria was frantic. She was still surrounded by hostile friends who thwarted every effort she made to learn the truths that were all important to her peace of heart.

THREE TEENIE WEENIES

GET INTO TROUBLE

by WM. DONAHEY

ONE afternoon the Teenie Weenie house boat steamed into a cozy nook near the shady side of the creek and made fast to a lily pad for the night.

"There are falls ahead," said the Sailor as he tightened the anchor lines, "and we don't want to take chances until we have explored some."

The General ordered the pea pod canoes lowered, and when the little people had all been carried to the shore they set out to visit the waterfall. Presently they arrived at the falls, and climbing down the steep bank they stood in silent admiration at the wonderful sight. The swift water beat against the sharp rocks and fell in a white foam to the whirling current below.

"J-j-j-jimminie!" stuttered the Dunce, "how high do you think the falls are?"

"Well," answered the Doctor, "I should say they were fully forty feet from top to bottom." (Forty Teenie Weenie feet would be about eleven inches.)

"Crickety!" exclaimed the Dunce. "Some falls."

"I should say as much," said the General. "And I want you boys to stay out of the water. If you should get caught in the swift current you would be carried over the falls and be dashed to death on the rocks below." And the General gave the Dunce a look which said very plainly, "This means you."

The Teenie Weenie boat lay at anchor for several days while the little people visited a barn yard that lay near the creek and made friends with some of the chickens. The Old Soldier struck up quite a friendship with an old rooster, and the two spent many pleasant hours together discussing politics and things to eat. Most of the Teenie Weenies disliked the rooster, because of his haughty appearance, but they all had reasons soon for changing their minds, as he proved to be a real friend in time of need.

One morning the Lady of Fashion, while walking along the bank of the stream, happened to look towards the falls and was filled with horror at the sight that met her eyes. The Dunce, the Chinaman and one of the small boys, clinging tightly to a stick of wood, were being rapidly carried in the strong current straight towards the dangerous falls. The frightened little lady hurried to the boat as fast as she could run for help.

"Quick! Dunce, Chinaman, falls, help!" she screamed, and promptly fainted on the sandy bank of the creek.

The Doctor ran to her side while the rest of the little people galloped off towards the falls, where they arrived just in time to see the three Teenie Weenies float to the edge and stop against the stones in a most dangerous place. The Teenie Weenies were filled with horror, for it was quite impossible to swim in the swift water, and any moment the three little fellows were in the greatest danger of being washed over the falls to sure death.

Fortunately at that instant the rooster walked down to the creek, and seeing the great danger the three Teenie Weenies were in he stepped boldly into the stream. Stretching out his long neck he caught up the Dunce with his beak and lifted the badly scared little chap safely to the shore. The small boy, who was bawling loudly for help, was next taken off, and just as the rooster picked up the Chinaman the stick shot over the falls and disappeared in the foaming water below.

"Well, sir," said the General, glaring at the frightened Dunce, "how did this happen?"

"We-we-we th-th-thought we'd have a ride on-on-on th-th-that s-s-s-stick, and——"

"And you got caught in the current," put in the General. "Now you three fellows go to the boat and go to bed for the rest of the day. I warned you about this; it's a wonder you weren't all drowned."

"Three cheers for Mr. Rooster, the hero," shouted the Turk, and the Teenie Weenies gave them with a will.

"Enough! Enough!" said the rooster, blushing until the end of his comb turned a deep purple. "One should never be praised for doing one's duty," and turning about he walked stiffly away.

ONCE again autumn is with us, and the dun colored landscape is enlivened with gleaming, rosy cheeked apples and gayly colored berries that promise winter fare to the choristers of the wood. Here and there faint tendrils of smoke curl upwards through the still air and send afar off the fragrant, pungent odor of burning wood and withered weed. And inspired, perchance, by a desire to offset the pensive beauty of the outer world, the woman of fashion chooses raiment of exquisite color fashioned from materials that rival those of many a fabled princess.

Sparkling with gems and adorned with shimmering silver and gold embroideries, the dress of the hour reveals a richness that is instantly associated with the magnificence of the orient. This richness, however, is not reserved exclusively for the gorgeous evening wrap or the dazzling evening dinner gown, for every realm of dress is characterized by a lavish use of handsome materials and beautiful decorations. Even the tea gown—once a simple affair for the restful moments—has discarded the simplicity of its youth and now blossoms out like an evening dress. Two attractive models depicted on this page are typical of the newest qualities in these interesting garments.

Pale blue satin is favored for the fashioning of the other tea gown that is pictured on this page. Bands of blue fox are attached to its graceful folds and the front of this lovely creation is marked by small formal bows of blue satin. A deep cape is draped about the shoulders and slashed at intervals where handsome tassels are placed. Effective embroidery in steel and white elaborates the cape, while the tunic is faced with dark blue chiffon.

As millinery proves a pleasing discussion at any hour of the day several interesting chapeaux are illustrated. Seldom has a season offered so many novel shapes, but, as if in contrast to the richly trimmed dresses, the hats this season are marked by extreme simplicity. Trimming is frequently dispensed with altogether, the charm of the hat being found in its unusual shape and beautiful lines. Velvet is a favorite material from which designers originate most delectable models, and this year many lovely colors are in vogue. While numerous turbans and small shapes are shown, the big, wide brimmed hat seems to be particularly admired.

A becoming shape is pictured at the extreme right. This is originated in a nattier rose velvet, with a facing of flesh color felt. As fashion favors the turned up brim, this effect is cleverly achieved in the double brim which distinguishes the front of the hat. A narrow grosgrain ribbon encircles the crown and is tied in a prim bow at the front.

Above this is a model that is designed on the lines of the sailor. This hat is developed in pink felt with a rather high crown of black velvet richly embroidered in silver. Another trimming that is sometimes affected when a touch of decoration is desired is all over braiding in colors that match the material from which it is created.

On the chapeau at the top of the page gray felt is combined with black velvet which is used for the facing of this picturesquely shaped model. In keeping with fashion's mandates for scanty trimming, this hat is adorned with a single lotus blossom originated in velvet and enriched with steel beads.

An admirable hat for outing completes the models that are illustrated. This is of pink felt, the wide spreading brim being cleverly turned up in the back and front, and in the center two fancy wings are skillfully attached.

MEN AND WOMEN

"LATELY we've been having the best meals at our house," a friend confided the other day. "Every night now mother has something different and awfully good. Since we moved into our new apartment in the spring mother has been a changed woman. She used to hate cooking so. She complained continually of the drudgery of it all and its unending monotony. And she got so she didn't care what she did serve."

The new apartment into which my friend's family moved was not a new apartment in a real estate man's idea of an up to the minute abode. Instead it was an old house done over some years ago into a four apartment building. When my friend moved in applications of fresh paper and paint were necessary. And in the bright, fresh paint as applied to the kitchen lies the secret of the mother's new found joy in her vocation.

Lighter Work in Lighter Kitchen.

The sunniest yellow paint was applied to the walls and ceiling and the oilcloth on the table and the floor linoleum were carried out in the same happy vein. The bread boxes and the various other boxes that naturally repose on pantry shelves were transformed from the customary morose and ugly drabs and browns to brilliant shades that harmonized with the yellow shelves upon which they rested. Dainty white curtains replaced the dull green shades. A canary bird (the parting gift of a neighbor in the building she left) singing cheerily from morning till night, a freshly enameled sink, and a brand new stove completed the reasons for the transformed housewife.

For ten years this woman lived in her last apartment. The kitchen was dark, the walls a dull gray. The enamel on the sink had long since passed away. The stove had outworn its native ability. There were so many discouraging features about the kitchen that the heart to attempt to change things remained unfostered. As a consequence every hour spent therein became graver and more cheerless and the spirit to do things sank consistently.

The moral of this tale is not to move bigger and beter quarters, for the quarters of which I write were bigger than the old ones and the rent is $2.50 a month. Its moral lies chiefly in cheery paint, the renewal of sink enamel when necessary, in the selection of a kitchen where the sun and light are allowed to flood it, and, above everything else, the recognition of the fact that the kitchen is the pivot upon which the whole family's happiness swings.

The Bread Rise.

The boost in white bread prices, like other well known visitations, may prove a blessing in disguise. To excess white bread consumption may be attributed much of the adipose so prevalent and the unhappiness subsequent thereto. There are substitutes in other breads that have not been advanced in price and in other food articles even better for the symmetry of the body and the happiness of the mind. The opportunity, therefore, is at hand to fight two evils with one form of abstinence.

Debt an Incentive to Save.

In an article in a current magazine Louis F. Swift, president of Swift & Co., the big Chicago meat packing company, is quoted as saying: "Every one, particularly young men, should be in debt. Not in debt for clothes or drinks or such things, but for some investment of tangible value that is worth saving for. Few persons will save anything until they have an incentive for saving. The best incentive is debt—to be paying for something of value. Paying for a house, for a bond, for anything of worth, is an incentive."

Every one who has tried with mediocre success the savings bank habit will appreciate the value of the suggested debt plan. Every one who has had to meet a personal bill of any size knows that what he has to pay he will save for. And every one knows that a reason for saving is the only thing that will make saving a steady, consistent habit.

Mr. Swift's suggestion is as applicable to women as to men. The average wage earning woman is a notoriously poor bank depositor. More than a man, she needs a reason for saving. Possible marriage overshadows her better saving judgment, whereas, in fact, marriage should be sufficient reason for the habit, since most wage earning women marry men on ordinary salaries.

"If I had ordered my life as a man does his," said a woman who had worked for twenty-two years, "I'd be a rich woman today instead of owning only the few hundreds I have saved. But always I had in mind the 'possible man' who'd take care of my old age."

Going into debt for stocks or bonds or insurance, the value of which you know nothing about, would be more foolhardy than not saving anything at all. There are means of finding out the actual values of intended investments. THE TRIBUNE'S Investors' Guide is a source of information free for the asking.

How I Improved Jean Hill's Complexion

By Antoinette Donnelly

Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

BAD complexions are the cause of an endless amount of humiliation and mental distress. Acne, the most familiar disorder of the face, occurs at the most self-conscious age, during adolescence and early adult life. It is characterized by the presence of red, inflammatory pimples, pustules, and blackheads.

The treatment of acne and blackheads is something that cannot be accomplished overnight. It takes weeks and sometimes months before any great improvement is accomplished.

Miss Jean Hill, the model whose skin has been cleared up remarkably under the treatment indicated for her, found the work of the first few weeks somewhat discouraging. But, as in everything else, persistence won. It won for her a good clear complexion which she had despaired of ever possessing again.

The face of my model was covered with blackheads from the hair line down under the chin when I took her in hand. Some of these were small, but most of them were large and had been allowed to go neglected so long that the pores were greatly enlarged. Her face had a gray, unclean look.

The first thing in effecting improvement in Miss Hill's skin was attention to the bowels. A free, daily evacuation is necessary before hope of any improvement in complexion may be en- [illegible]. This was effected by water drinking and a change in diet from pastries and rich, greasy foods and the like, to fruits and vegetables. Miss Hill started drinking water between meals, drinking not less than three pints a day—a glass on arising in the morning, two between breakfast and lunch, two in the afternoon, and one before retiring.

Up to this time eating pastries was a pet meal diversion of Miss Hill. Fried food and rich salad she used to eat in quantity. These I insisted upon her excluding from her diet and sticking to plain foods. Highly spiced dishes, rich soups, candies, hot breads and biscuits, rich gravies, pork, and veal were taboo. Fresh meat once a day she was allowed, but meat only once a day. Plenty of vegetables—spinach, carrots, tomatoes, onions, beans, lettuce, radishes, beets, asparagus, turnips—were allowed to choose from, and she ate plentifully of these. Bran bread was substituted for white bread. Eggs and milk were allowed her.

It is most important that you realize that good blood depends upon the health of the digestive organs, and where there is constipation there are bound to be blood disturbances. If necessary, therefore, take a cathartic in order to keep the bowels in good action.

If you are anemic you must consult a physician and get a tonic for building up your run down condition before you can expect to improve any skin troubles.

There are local measures, as I have proved by Miss Hill, which benefit the skin quite remarkably. The local care of acne consists first in keeping the skin clean and free as possible from blackheads. The blackhead condition had existed in Miss Hill's face for some time, so that it took patience, perseverance, and two weeks before any improvement to speak of was noticed. The importance of a twice daily bath must not be overlooked in this effort to clear the skin of blackheads. It isn't enough just to wash the face twice daily. The body bath is essential to a clear complexion. A warm bath at night before going to bed and a cold plunge or sponge or shower in the morning were never neglected by Miss Hill.

Before beginning operations on her face, Miss Hill took precautions to give her hands an extra scrubbing so that no germs lurking around the nails might undo the good work she planned. First, she cleansed her face with a good cleansing cream, then with a sterilized needle she opened the pimple, where there was pus, and gently pressed out the blackhead. In pressing these out she used a tiny piece of cotton and pressed gently, removing just a few at a time so that her face would not be irritated looking. Then she covered the skin well with the following acne cream and gave the face a vigorous deep massage to get the blood in circulation and help the glands to do their work: Lanolin, 5 grams; sweet almond oil, 5 grams; precipitate of sulphur, 5 grams; oxide of zinc, 2½ grams; extract of violet, 10 drops. The massage was given both night and morning. Around the mouth corners Miss Hill had a great many blackheads so I had her pay particular attention to these at the start.

Beginning with the thumb and first finger nearly together on the chin, as in figure A, she worked upward and inward in a half circle motion, as in Fig. B. This at the same time was lifting up the lines at the mouth corners which were beginning to show. Then the forehead was massaged in an up and down movement, as illustrated in Fig. C. With two fingers of both hands work together, one hand going up while the other goes down. The forehead usually is the seat of so much of the blackhead trouble.

The greatest care must be exercised in opening pus pimples else scars will be left.

Next week I shall continue my experiment of how I improved Miss Jean Hill's complexion.

Doris Blake Says

If you were born this week you are Proud.

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

IF your birthday falls during the week beginning today you will be both sensitive and proud, strongly intuitive, affectionate, and demonstrative. Your home will be your kingdom; there will be no people like your family, and your devotion will amount almost to worship. Your aim is to love and be loved and to be happy, though you do have some trying experiences.

As you Libra people are always noted for your wonderful sense of justice, it is only fitting that the Scales should typify this period of the zodiac. This, combined with your remarkable powers of intuition, explains the fact that you act on first impressions and often form a stubborn prejudice which sometimes hides your sense of justice for the time being. Your intuitive powers cause you to feel the mental condition of those about you so keenly as to be a positive discomfort in cases of inharmonious surroundings and companionship.

Your keen perception and judgment fit you for leadership, and you have a great desire to lead; just remember to keep your sense of justice in the foreground and not depend too much upon your intuition and all will be well. Reticent, thoughtful, and proud, the secrets and interests of others are safe in your keeping, for you are always honest and just in all your dealings.

As people have such a lot of confidence in you, they are willing to have you dictate to them about their business matters. And especially are you careful in money matters, a good trader, and successful, too, in your undertakings. Your great danger is in your excessive activity, which tends to wear you out mentally and physically; then when you get into this condition you fall a victim to fits of melancholy and anxiety. When in this condition you should rest, eat wholesome food, and, above all, seek harmonious, sympathetic, and cheery surroundings.

You are no dollar a day man; you will be found in the best establishment in the city and likely in charge of the most artistic or best paying department. Nothing mediocre satisfies you, either in your own work or that of others. You love the beautiful and luxurious things of life, and you would make a success in the study of languages and music. Your great imitative ability makes you well adapted for the dramatic profession, if your natural conservatism does not deter you from making the attempt.

Punctuality is another of your birthrights. You are never known to be late to a party or to break an engagement at the last moment. And in line with this quality is your enviable ability to put your guests at perfect east, which wins for you the deserved title of a truly successful host.

With your innately artistic temperament it follows that you are a lover of nature and all that pertains to the outdoors, including outdoor sports of all kinds.

In you fortunate Libra folk sentiment, intellectuality, and often physical beauty are combined, making you kind, beauty loving, and impulsive, but with your impulses under thorough control. In other words, the Libra person's physical beauty reflects soul qualities as well. And what is more, you usually know just what you want, and more often than not you get it, lucky child! Of course, if you don't, well, every one will know it from your long face.

When you think of marriage you should take great care to choose a person who will help you to rise to greater heights. You have a great choice in your field of congenial mates, compared to most signs. In spite of this you often bring great unhappiness upon yourself by marrying some one who wants a reason for everything, when you decide almost entirely by intuition. A marriage with Sagittarius, Nov. 23-Dec. 22, or Aquarius, Jan. 21-Feb. 19, will be a harmonious union, but perhaps the happiest would be a marriage with Aries, March 22-April 20.

The two most fortunate weeks in the year for you are those beginning on April 13 and Dec. 6. Your colors are crimson, black, and light blue; birthstones, opals and diamonds.

ETIQUETTE

By ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

SO many inquiries come to me as to the proper form in which to answer different kinds of invitations that I am moved to give these brief directions to cover practically all cases.

No answer is required to a church wedding. To a reception following the ceremony or to a house wedding and reception, a formal note either of acceptance or regret should be sent.

No affirmative answer need be sent to an invitation to a formal reception or afternoon tea, but if it is impossible for one to go, he should send cards to the host and hostesses on the day of the reception.

To other invitations to luncheons, card parties, tea dances, dinners, and dances the answers should be in exactly the same form as the invitation. A formal answer should be sent to a formal invitation, an informal reply to an informal invitation, and if one has been given an invitation on the telephone, the answer may be telephoned. Here is a copy for a formal regret:

"Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith regret that they cannot accept the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown to the wedding and reception of their daughter, Helen, and Mr. Robert Jones on Monday, the 7th of November."

For a formal acceptance to a dance the following is correct:

"Mr. John Brown accepts with pleasure the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jones for Wednesday, Octobes the fourth, at half past eight."

To an informal invitation to luncheon Mrs. Smith might reply:

"My Dear Mrs. Jones: I shall be happy to come to lunch next Friday at one. Thank you very much for inviting me. Sincerely yours,

"MARY T. SMITH."

To an invitation to a luncheon the acceptance should be as follows:

"Mrs. John Smith accepts with pleasure the kind invitation of Mrs. Thomas Brown to luncheon on Monday, the third of September, at one o'clock."

The form for the regret is similar, with "regrets that she is unable to accept," substituted for "accepts with pleasure."

I am sure that these different forms can be adapted to any cases that may arise.

MURIEL: The correct way to take soup or bouillon is from the side of the spoon. Salad immediately precedes the dessert course. At informal dinners or luncheons it is sometimes served with the meat course instead of separately. The correct way to introduce a young man to a young woman is to say: "Miss Smith, may I present Mr. Brown?" but if you think that is too formal you may say: "Miss Smith (or Mary Smith), this is Mr. Brown (or John Brown)". The proper way to answer an invitation is to use exactly the same form as that in which it is given. Telephone your answer to a telephone invitation, write a formal answer to a formal invitation, and an informal answer to an informal invitation.

F. B.: Your employer probably meant no harm in asking you out to lunch, but whether he is marride or single, it would be wiser not to accept. It is always better to keep such relations purely business ones.

Meddling.

MY three daughters are married and living away from my farm home, so several summers ago I put an ad in a city paper stating I wanted a young woman to board with me. I received several replies, selecting one that appealed to me, and was not disappointed when I met the girl at the station, for I felt at first sight I could "mother" her.

She was so grateful for every little attention, and said two weeks of country life away from the department store where she worked would be such a treat. I enjoyed her companionship immensely and while she was always smiling when I was present, I found her weeping several times, and suspected it was a love affair, for I had watched the symptoms in my three daughers.

I hoped the girl would tell me what the trouble was, but she had only been with me a week when she became ill with typhoid fever. She was an orphan, with no near realtives, so I brought her downstairs and nursed her as I would my own. She kept calling for "Harry" in her delirium.

I felt pretty sure it was the "Dearest Harry" she commenced a letter to the day before she went to bed, so I appeased my conscience about meddling with her affairs, and read the first paragraph, where she begged him to write to her saying his silence was breaking her heart.

I saw her little address book on the table beside the letter, and studied the matter for two days and nights. Finally I decided to take the risk, and sent her letter, with a page of my own, to Mr Harry B. in the address book, asking him to come to see her, as she was constantly calling for him in her delirium.

I kept busy nursing her and doing the housework, but I kept thinking about that letter, wondering why no word had come. The fever gradually left and she began to gain.

We were sitting in the hammock one afternoon and I was asking her how she would like to live with me permanently, for her gratitude was touching, in fact, she appreciated me more than my own daughters had done, and I wanted to keep her with me.

I began telling her about the letter I had sent, when a strange young man drove up the lane. I showed him where to hitch the horse, and when he asked for the girl I was pretty sure it was "Harry," so I walked to the milkhouse, to leave them alone.

The girl called me and introduced "her Harry." He said he could never thank me enough for sending that letter. It had gone to the address I had sent it, remained there thirty days, was then sent to the dead letter office in Washington, and he was the employé into whose hands it had fallen. He had left the old address and was working in the postoffice department at Washington.

The misunderstanding of the two had been cleared in a hurry as soon as they were together, and he wanted to marry her right then and there, and take her back to Washington with him, but I advised them to wait a month or two, to let "my girl" get some more country air into her lungs.

I don't believe in meddling, but this case was different, and the girl and her husband are ideally happy. They are so thoughtful and kind to me, and insist that I visit them each year. So every winter my neighbor takes care of my farm and I stay at the capital, and each summer they spend their vacation with me.

Fifteen Whacks for Martha.

Thursday, the 30th of March, being my fifteenth birthday, a party was given in my honor. The guests present did not know it was my birthday, and you can imagine how pleased I was when my father turned me over his knee and "whacked" me fifteen times.

MARTHA.

Why It Didn't Ring.

I am a sound sleeper and depend a good deal on my alarm clock, so one morning it failed to go off and I overslept.

I took the clock to the jewelry store and told him the alarm did not work.

The man looked at it and said all it needed was to be wound. I walked out of the store a whole lot quicker than I came in and a whole lot redder of cheek.

He Leaped Lightly.

Upon entering an ice cream parlor I noticed, seated at a table near the front of the store, three young ladies with whom I was acquainted.

One of the young ladies, living some distance from this city, was on a visit here, so I immediately walked up to the table where these friends sat to say "How do you do?" to the visitor.

After she again sat down I noticed a grasshopper on her waist. "O!" I exclaimed, "there's a grasshopper on you." So I tried to take him off and he hopped right into a dish of ice cream another party was having at the next table.

Keeps Her Children In Perfect Health

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the Family Laxative for Many Years.

Mrs. Aug. Doellefeld

Mrs. Aug. Doellefeld of Carlyle, Ill., recently wrote to Dr. Caldwell, at Monticello, Ill., that she used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin in her home for a number of years, and would not be without it, as with it she has been able to keep her four children in perfect health.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that acts on the bowels in an easy, natural way, and regulates the action of this most important function. Nearly all the sickness to which children are subject is traceable to bowel inaction, and a mild, dependable laxative, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, should have a place in every family medicine chest. It is pleasant to the taste and children like it, and take it readily, while it is equally effective for adults.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold in drug stores everywhere for fifty cents a bottle. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure you get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Got a Late Start.

After I had been married thirty-five years and had had ten children I saved enough money from the eggs and went to Chicago to visit my niece. All my life I had worked like a horse. My one recreation had been playing hymns on the organ Sunday nights, and when I left for the city I was still wearing parts of my wedding outfit.

When I returned I had on a short skirt, high white shoes, and a veil, and was met by my husband with the wagon and a team of mules for the last time. Now we have a car which I have leisure to drive, and Hiram says that his wife is some chicken.

But I put off my vacation just thirty-five years too long. K. G. R.

Father Stays at Home.

My father once suggested that my mother break away from the city and household duties and have a real vacation. Mother said, "Impossible!" but finally went, although thinking, "How will John get his meals; how will the house look; how will he find this and that? He is irritable enough when I'm around."

Father led a royal smoker's life while she was away, because he couldn't when she was home, and upon her return he was a changed man. He had smoked all he wanted to for some time to come and was entirely good natured.

Now mother does this every year, and both parties are benefited and satisfied I know; in fact, they are always glad of the reunion. E. C. S.

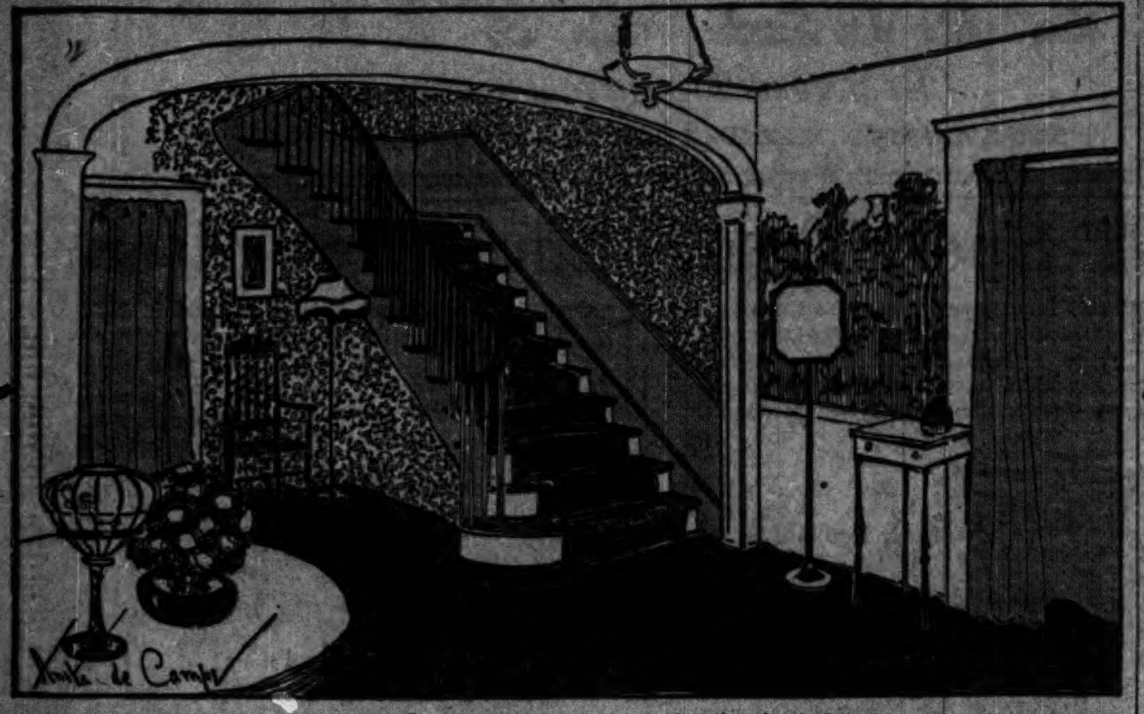
The Home Harmonious

THE DISTINCTIVE TOUCH

By Anita de Campi



Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

HOW frequently it happens that the charm of a room is created by a chance arrangement of extraneous things! Comfort or convenience may have dictated the use of some odd ornament or bit of furniture and, lo and behold, there as the outcome is that stamp of personality that marks successful decorating. Were it not for this distinctive touch how monotonously alike all of our rooms would be!

The distinctive touch is what every one is looking for. Professional decorators go after it madly, growing profoundly solemn in their search. The funny thing about it is that most women who furnish their homes have it without effort, as a natural grace, quite as unconscious as a growing flower.

Though the so-called "cozy corners" are long since things of the past, comfortable corners are more than ever desirable. In a wonderful big living room that has lately been redecorated is a corner quite unique. Let me describe the room first and fit the corner in. The woodwork that was formerly oak has been ivory enameled, a thing that would not have been considered for a room of this size a few years since. The ceiling is paneled in ivory and the side walls have ivory panels or fitments—bookcases, closets, etc.—up to two-thirds the height of the wall. The upper third is filled in with a three foot frieze of medieval design, painted in blurred colors as indefinite as old tapestry—with wistaria as the dominating tone. Near each corner of the ceiling is a square dull brass plate, from which hangs a square lamp on four long brass chains.

The oak floor of the room is finished in kaiser gray, waxed and uncarpeted, excepting for one big square beaver colored rug. The mantel of agate with dull red brick lined fireplace is near the corner of the room.

At right angles with it and right up to the corner a large square panel of beryl green velvet is made into the wall. This panel is about seven feet square, padded and edged with a round ivory molding. Directly in front of this panel, and pushed close sideways against it, is a low sofa upholstered in the same beryl green velvet, with short curved legs, ivory enameled.

Close to the sofa in front of the fireplace is a small ivory enameled table and two small ivory chairs with high, narrow backs, upholstered in beryl velvet.

Sometimes it is the color, rather than form, that individualizes. Peculiarly eloquent of herself was a room designed and executed by a young woman who had the courage of her own tastes. The ceiling was citron green, the sidewalls and woodwork parchment color, relieved only by a line of the same green almost indiscernable at the edge of the rounded moldings that marked the wall spaces off into panels.

Clear across one end of the room was a range of small windows made up of little leaded half circles filled with pale amber glass. The floor, uncarpeted and devoid of rugs, was made of alternating squares of walnut and grayed oak. The furniture frames were made of walnut.

There were no draperies nor curtains. Two colonnades of wood, painted parchment color like the rest of the room, supported a beam near the windowed end of the room. In the center of the space below the window was an unusually long walnut chest and on this was a large royal blue vase.

The small mantel was of white marble. At one side of it and at right angles with it was a red davenport and at the other side a great wing chair. Ranged at the back of the davenport was a long narrow box, about as high as a table, not more than a foot wide and almost as long as the sofa. This was simply enameled citron green and had a bronze figure of a centaur on it and a small royal blue vase filled with light yellow flowers. On the mantel was a gilt clock under a glass bell, with a cup shaped royal blue vase at either side of it. In the center space above the mantel was a landscape in flat colors framed in a narrow oval gilt frame.

A standard lamp of walnut near the wing chair had a lamp shade made on a wire frame. This was of citron green silk gauze, over cloth of gold.

As indicative of grace as the dainty figure on a Watteau fan is a homelike interior of a front hallway living room which the sketch I have made here but inadequately shows. That the furniture is miscellaneous seems to detract nothing from the general beauty of the scene.

The stair with its banister and treads of brown mahogany is carpeted in navy blue. The floor has a complete covering of blue carpet with a few extra rugs in blue and gray. The woodwork is ivory enameled, and the portieres are of deep mulberry rep. The side walls are covered with a quaint landscape paper in shades of gray. In the living room and in the recess by the stairs the wall paper is in shades of gray in tiny leaf pattern.

A closet under the stairs is amply provided with hangers and shelves for coats and hats. There is no hatrack, but the hostess shows a delightfully feminine touch of coquetry in the little piece of furniture at the left of the stairway. It is an old fashioned screen, but she has replaced the piece of needlework which the frame originally held with a good little mirror, and she calls this piece "the parting glance." It is just the right size and height for the hasty look one gives in thrusting in hatpins or putting back a refractory lock before going out or in. The standard and frame are of brown mahogany, and the frame may be raised or lowered by means of a simple catch.

Beside the "parting glance" is a low table with an innocent looking china vase whose ulterior purpose is really to hold a puff and powder. It was told confidentially that in the little drawer were rouge and beauty patches. A wall light was conveniently near and the candle on the top was just scenery.

The top of a gate leg table seen at the left holds one of the newest models in Japanese lamp shades. It is of delicately colored rice paper on a black frame, with a black lacquered base. The black bowl beside it is filled with multi-colored garden flowers.

Answers to Inquiries.

MRS. A. N. T.: Mulberry and taupe striped would be excellent choice for the upholstered pieces in your living room. Use delicate tan for your walls. The correct background for the Jacobean furniture in the dining room is the paneling of wood. Old blue sunfast would make good draperies. For the rug in your bedroom let it contrast with the color of the wall. Orange and gray rugs suggest the use of modern furniture in the rooms in which they are used.

* *

MISS A. P.: Have a wardrobe box made to measure, to fit under your bed, as you have no closet room. This could be covered with the same material that you use for your bedspread. The box must be on ball bearing rollers. Your choice of yellow is excellent to go with walnut. Pine is more difficult to paint than other woods. Your furniture dealer can order the articles unfinished for you. A yellowish gray would be a good color. The dealer from whom you buy the paint will give you full directions. These directions differ with the paint used.

Good Coffee.

A WHOLE newspaper page has recently been given to a summary of the latest conclusions about coffee. Many of the points in this article have been mentioned in this column, but they will bear repetition at this time when economy because of increasing prices is imperative, and it is only by reiteration that certain kinds of progress are made.

The sooner people in general learn to make filtered coffee, and it is the easiest of all to make, the sooner will "coffee drunkards" become unknown. Less often, also will these same exaggerated lovers of coffee have to cut out this beverage from their meals for health's sake.

Perhaps the facts about percolated coffee have never been stated in a more convincing way than when the authors of the article in question say: "Percolated coffee is deemed distinctly inferior because the water pumped through the tube and sprayed over the coffee is not actually boiling. To make the proper extraction the water should not be below 212 degrees F.—the boiling point—and the water that comes through the tube of a percolator is seldom above 150 degrees—sometimes as low as 100 degrees. In both cases little of the flavor is extracted and the longer contact with the water results in the extraction of the elements that are injurious to both flavor and health, especially tannin."

This does not mean that we must throw away our fine percolating pots entirely. Filtered coffee is the better if its temperature is maintained close to boiling point, as it only can be if the cloth is rinsed in hot water before using and the strainer and vessel into which the coffee drips are hot and remain so. The perforated plate of the perculating pot, when hot, gives the post just the desirable temperature for filtered coffee. Warmed up coffee is always inferior.

The recipe of the committee on better coffeemaking appointed by the National Coffee Roasters' association has been more or less widely printed in the best sources. It has been printed in this column. First, emphasis is placed on having the coffee pulverized, as in the making of Greek coffee. This makes for economy, since it has double the drawing efficiency of granulated coffee. "Experts advise the housewife never to use coarsely ground coffee, as it is an extravagance both as regards the amount demanded and the result produced."

It is these same experts who have proved that the filtration method is "the most efficient in that it yields the best brew with the least trouble. For this method only pulverized coffee should be used."

Here the methods stated in different words, but in essentials the same as that given in "The Pure Food Cook Book": "The coffee should be placed in a closely woven filter—usually a muslin bag—and boiling water poured through it at once, gradually but steadily. This produces the real aromatic flavor and demands the minimum amount of coffee. Also as the extraction of caffetannic acid is in direct proportion to the length of contact with the water, this method gives the minimum of that undesirable constituent. Two points are absolutely essential, the water must be boiling and the cloth clean. Also, the cloth should be kept wet when not in use. Drying the cloth causes decomposition and keeping it in clean cold water is the way to insure a sanitary filter."

An expert I know, who uses this method, keeps her cloth in a mason jar with the cover on. This is rather necessary in a dusty city. My own opinion is that it does not hurt it to scald it frequently. I am not at all sure what the decomposition mentioned above is. And again I say have the pot into which the coffee drips hot before dripping begins.

It is the flavor of the coffee that gives pleasure. It is the caffein of coffee that is stimulating. Filtered coffee contains less of this latter than that made by any other method. The boiling of coffee not only cooks this out, but, what is worse, develops tannin, which is no comfort to anybody, and is harmful to what we shall sometime learn is a delicate thing, the mucous membrane of the whole alimentary tract.

The state chemist of Connecticut has recently shown that the so-called "hygienic" coffees do not deserve their name. The best known brand of a highly concentrated powder, according to a quotation from his article which I have not seen, contains about four times as much caffein and caffetannic acid as coffee itself. Any one who wants to understand better the worth of these hygienic coffees may write to J. P. Street, state chemist, undoubtedly of Hartford, Conn., as I intend to do, and get his article.

Coffee drinkers can cut down their coffee bill a half by using pulverized coffee instead of granulated, and by learning that if filtered coffee is carefully made in hot utensils it is good, though it may not bite like nor be as bracing as boiled coffee. It is the biting and bracing that are bad, bad for almost any man's health. One tablespoon of pulverized coffee in my experience goes as far as three of granulated.

With the article in question are printed the following cautions:

Caffein is a nerve stimulant. Coffee should be used with moderation by all, and some cannot tolerate it at all. The personal equation is large.

Whatever the adult may do, neither coffee nor any caffein bearing beverage should ever be given to children.

Filtered coffee—boiling water poured over finely pulverized, freshly ground coffee—gives a beverage at once the most delicious and the most healthful, the tannin content being reduced to a minimum.

Whatever the process, the longer the water is in contact with the coffee the more tannin you get and the less quality.

Few hygienic coffees can make good the extreme claims made for them. Whatever has been taken out, if the caffein and tannin remain, the chief injurious qualities of the coffee are still present.

Cereal coffees have no nutritive value worth considering—they are good merely because they are warm and harmless and keep you from drinking more coffee than you should.

If you always have a headache without your morning cup of coffee, it is a sign you have the "coffee habit," and that your nerves are dependent upon their daily stimulant for content. This is not wholesome.

Green Tomato Pickle.

"A Daily Reader" writes: "Will you publish the recipe for green tomato pickles? We shall not get many ripe ones this year, so will have to put up the green ones."

The last time I put up green tomato pickles I did it in the old fashioned way, washed the tomatoes thoroughly, sliced them in one-third inch slices, and sliced a few onions in with them, sprinkled them lightly with salt, and let them stand over night. Then I cooked vinegar to cover them with powdered spices in a bag, with the exception of the cloves, which I left free, but would not now; cooked the tomatoes in this vinegar until tender and put them up hot in large Mason jars. They were dainty and good, but I think it was because I used but little salt, and today I would not use any in the preparation and not much in the seasoning. Too much salt makes them bitter and removes from them the valuable mineral matters.

If I had time to experiment with them this year I should not only not allow them to stand in salt at all but should use only a cup or so of vinegar boiled with spices and cooled to a gallon of tomato and onion. For my own eating I would not use any vinegar at all, that is, not make pickles, but simply onion, green pepper, a little salt, and some spices in a bag. Tomatoes have far more spiciness in themselves than most people realize, and therefore should be treated to develop this instead of to drown it.

This is not a good year to do much experimenting with green tomatoes since they cost four or more times what they did last year. A few days ago they were more than seven times as expensive as they were on one day I bought some last year.

Muskmelon Recipes.

MRS. W. F. P.: I have no muskmelon recipes of my own, but the first one of Marion H. Neil's, given below, is similar to what I should use.

Muskmelon Butter.—Twelve muskmelons, sugar, cinnamon. Wash, peel, and seed the melons, then cut them into small pieces and put them into a large porcelain pan. Cover them with cold water and boil until tender. Drain and rub them through a colander or fruit press. Measure the purée, add half as much sugar, and cook to a thick butter. Flavor them with powdered cinnamon to taste. A few chopped nut meats may be added if liked. Seal in jars.

Muskmelon Preserve.—One muskmelon, one-half lemon, two sour apples, two rose geranium leaves, one-fourth teaspoon ground cassia buds, one-eighth teaspoon ground cloves, one tablespoon chopped preserved ginger, sugar. Pare the melon, cut it into small pieces, and then weigh. Cut the lemon into thin pieces and put into the preserving pan, then put in the melon, cover with cold water, and stew until tender. Add the apples pared and cut into small pieces, the spices, geranium leaves, and two-thirds the weight of the melon in sugar. Boil quickly until the pieces of melon are transparent. Remove the geranium leaves when they begin to fall to pieces. Seal, while hot, in jars.

Canned Spiced Ripe Tomatoes.

Most people can tomatoes in the old fashioned way, stewing them in their own juices until thoroughly cooked, and then putting them into perfectly sterilized jars. Strained and cooked down somewhat, this furnishes us with an excellent sauce, but one not so popular as certain canned soups. If half onion and a fourth green pepper were cooked with the ripe tomatoes, and they were put up in the same way, I think this would more nearly take the place of the canned soup and I know it would be a more wholesome product. In fact, this mixture with a little salt and butter is like a breath of fresh air after a close room. I do not know how well it will keep, but I shall put up my ripe tomatoes in this way this year and find out.

The Worst Slam I Ever Got.

Sometime, somewhere, somebody gave you a "slam" that nearly bowled you over. Tell the worst one you ever received. The stories must be original, written on one side of the paper, and confined to 200 words. Address them to Slam Editor, "The Sunday Tribune." For every letter published "The Tribune" will pay $1. Dorena's Little Job.

Dorina, charmingly dishabille, sat Turkwise watching me brush my hair. It fell in clouds of chestnut around my shoulders. She bit into a milk chocolate, then spake Dorina: "Ruth, your hair is certainly your 'crown of glory.' Without it I'm sure I don't know what you would do." Up to that time I had been thinking the rest of me wasn't so bad. R.

Coming Up—Hot!

I was acting as attorney for the defense in a case that I was confident of winning until a maiden lady of uncertain years, whose sharp tongue proved to be more than a match for my wits, stepped into the box.

She had testified that her acquaintance with one of the parties involved extended back to 1874. Seeking to weaken her testimony by drawing special attention to her age, I asked, "How old were you at that time?" She replied, "Mr. attorney, I was born young; if necessary to state my age now, I can do so. If not, continue the examination."

I continued, and having occasion to ask why she believed my client to be of unsound mind, was startled with her testimony, that there were many reasons; the chief one being that she had engaged me as counsel. E. C. P.

"Lots of 'Em Are Homely."

"My dear, I don't see why you don't go on the stage," said a "friend" after I had performed creditably in an amateur play. Now, secretly, I always thought I'd make a wonderful actress, but I managed to say quite modestly, "O, I'm sure I haven't the qualities necessary for the stage." She said, "You shouldn't worry about that." She said it sweetly, too. "Lots of actresses are real homely." H. H.

UNSIGHTLY HAIR WHAT CAUSES IT

Why it increases—the only way to prevent coarse growths.

Nature does not produce coarse bristly growths of superfluous hair. They are caused by the unwise use of pastes, rub-on preparations and imitations of DeMiracle, the original sanitary liquid.

To prove that DeMiracle is the quickest, safest and only method that will devitalize hair, we have repeatedly offered to pay $10,000.00 for proof that any imitation will remove hair from face, neck, arms, or under arms without injury as quickly as DeMiracle does.

Remember others advertise money-back guarantee but give none. Buy DeMiracle, the original sanitary liquid, by name and you will get the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package.

DeMiracle is sold in 50c, $1.00 and $2.00 bottles at all good stores, including Public Drug Co., and Buck & Rayner's six stores, or direct from us.

The truth about superfluous hair in plain sealed envelope on request. Write for it today. It will guard you against imposition and possible permanent disfigurement. DeMiracle Chemical Co., Park Ave. & 129th Street, New York. —Advertisement.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

Give "California Syrup of Figs" if cross, bilious or feverish.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out of sorts, half sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, or has stomach-ache, diarrhœa, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs"; then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

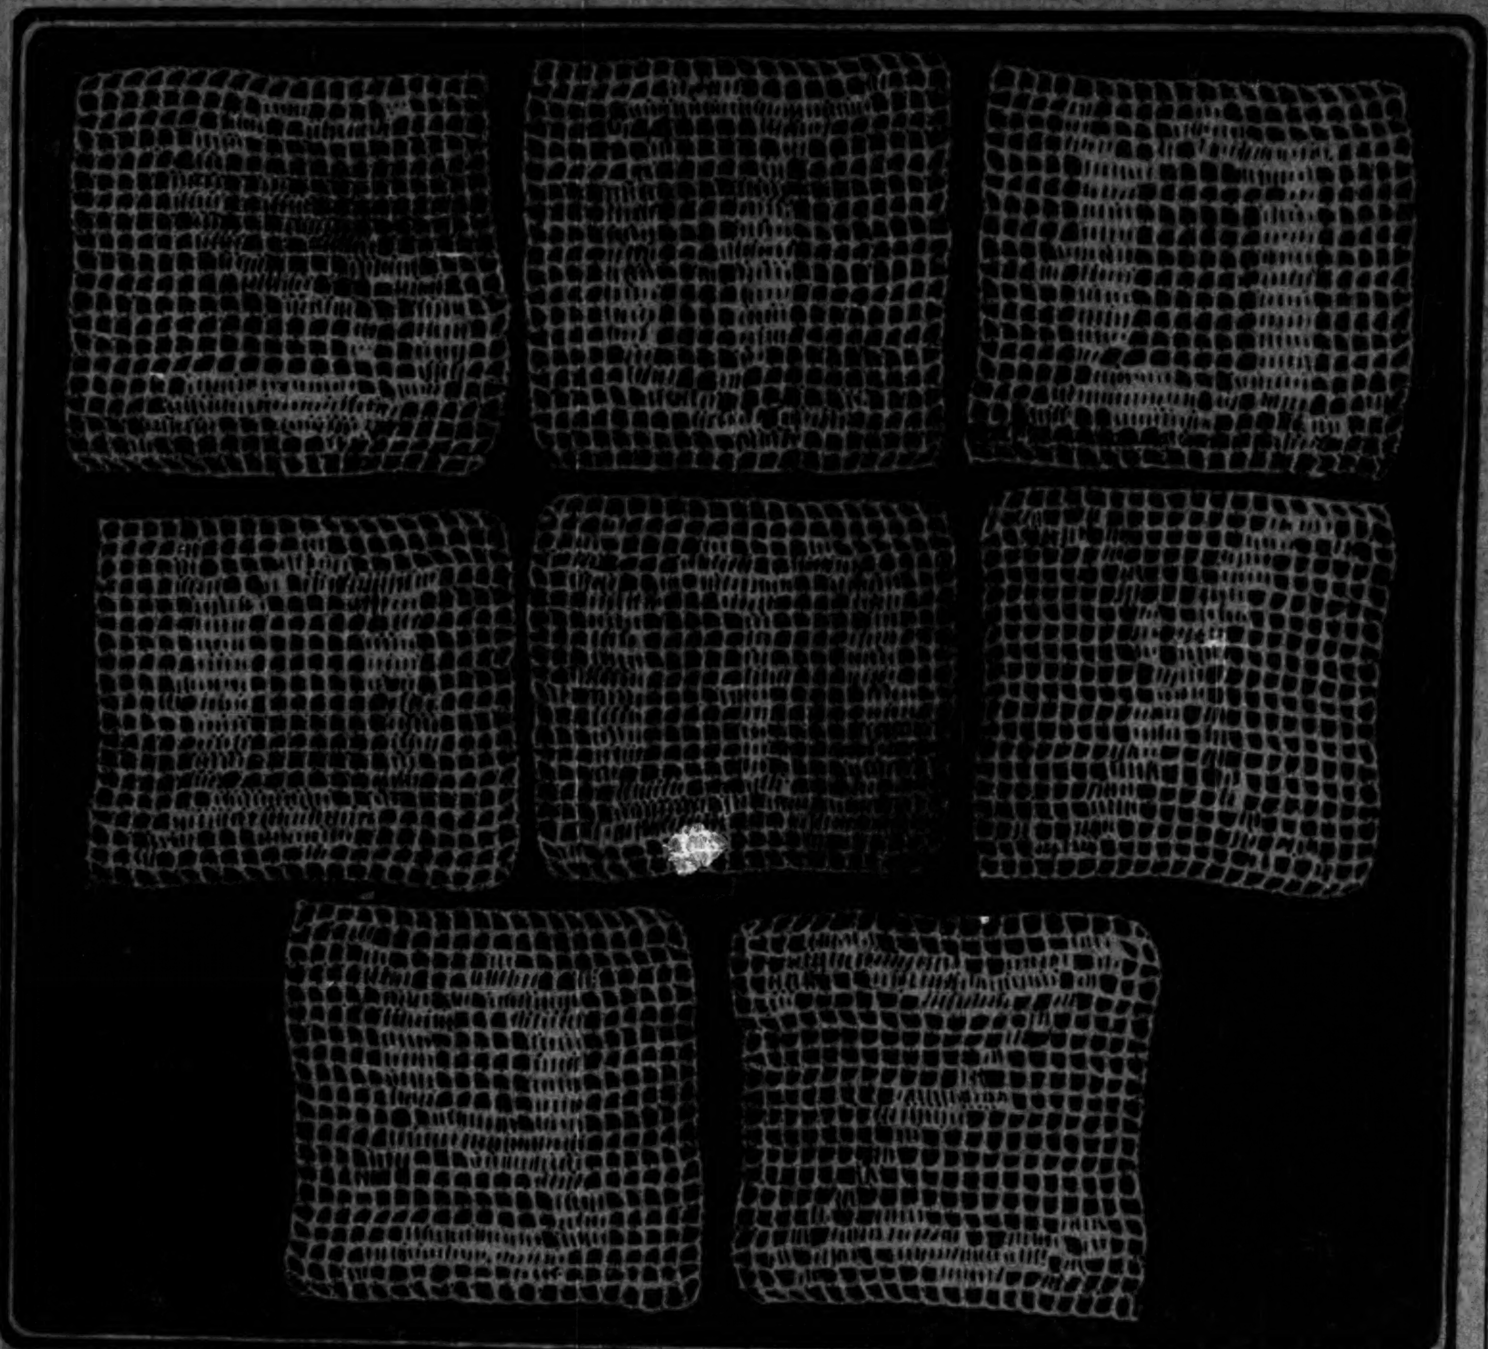
Old English Alphabet in Filet Crochet.



This is the fourth and last installment of old English alphabet in filet crochet. This alphabet should prove invaluable to the needlewoman who is already beginning to make her Christmas presents.

These letters have many uses and may find a place wherever an initial is needed. They have been used for towels, handkerchiefs, pillow cases, baby's dress, or the central design of a yoke.

As most needleworkers know, filet is a lace made up of open squares or meshes, and the design in crochet is worked out by filling the meshes with trebles, two trebles in each mesh and one treble over each treble.

Begin each letter with a chain of 43, turn with 5 ch., and divide the long chain into twenty meshes. In the second row the form of the letter begins. These designs admit of no errors, each space should be filled exactly as shown.

If the plan is not perfectly clear, consider each letter a square of blocks twenty by twenty. With a pencil draw and divide this square, filling open spaces with dark shading outlining the letter desired, following the illustration until the drawing is perfect.

The crocheting can then be commenced intelligently, and there will be no errors.

Bright Sayings of the Children

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, "Tribune," Chicago.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Louise had been taught to say, "Now I lay me down to sleep," etc. One day she said to mother, "Mother, I want some bread." Mother replied, "If," expecting Louise to say, "If you please, mother." Instead she said, "If I should die." E. B.

Elisabeth looked thoughtfully at the cob from which she had just eaten all the corn, then laid it down with the remark: "That's a dead one, isn't it?" P. M. McD.

One day when baby first began to sit at the table with us, he did something naughty. I didn't say a word, but looked surprised and sorry. He stood it as long as he could, then in a pleading little voice said: "Talk about it, mother, talk about it." P. W. B. Jr.

Billy did not seem happy on his return from the picnic, and groaned as his mother was putting him to bed. She asked: "What is the matter, Billy? Didn't you have a good time?" "O, yes, mother, but I ate all I could and then two bananas." S. K.

Bobby looked up inquiringly at his mother, "What is a husband, mother?" "Why, don't you know, Bobby?" asked his older brother. "A husband is a man what owns a lady." C. N.

One day a little friend came to visit my boy and as he was about to come into the yard he saw our collie dog and exclaimed: "O, I can't come in; I am afraid of the dog." My boy replied: "Don't be afraid. He can't hurt you because the house is tied to him." Mrs. A. S.

My neighbor's little 4 year old daughter was in my library and seemed much interested in a long, narrow framed picture of six old poets that I have. She would look at it and then all around the room.

I said to her, "Dorothy, how to you like that picture?"

She replied, "All right, but where are the grandmas to them?" B. O. M.

Jack lived with his grandmother. His maiden aunt was employed downtown and when telegrams came for her office after business hours, the telegraph company would telephone them to her. This particular evening no one was in but Jack and his grandmother. Grandmother is hard of hearing, so Jack answered the telephone. It was the telegraph company attempting to deliver the message, but Jack couldn't understand and finally exclaimed: "Well, there is no one at home but my grandma and me and we can't talk business." The Amateur Gardener

by Eben E. Rexford

All questions relating to the cultivation of gardens will be answered if addressed to the Amateur Gardener, "The Tribune," Chicago. Please write on one side of the paper only.

R. H. T.: Send to some of the leading seedsmen and ask for one of their free catalogues. In it you will find full directions about growing and blanching celery. I could not do the subject justice in the space afforded in this department.

Mrs. J. M. McG.: From what you say about the withering and dropping of the leaves of your tomato plants, I infer that there must be a worm at work in the stalk. The other plant, about which you inquire, which you say blooms well, but never develops any seed, probably needs a plant of the opposite sex to pollenize it.

If new pots are to be used be sure to give them at least twenty-four hours' soaking before filling them with soil. If this is not done they will rob the soil of the moisture that ought not to be taken from it, immediately after the planting of the bulb, as new pots are extremely porous.

Mrs. T. E. writes: "I noticed what you said in a recent SUNDAY TRIBUNE about getting rid of ants on the lawn. It seems to me that I have tried almost everything for that purpose, for a good many years back. Whatever was done simply seemed to cause the pests to scatter, and collect in some other place. This summer I found a destroyer that I want to tell you about and have you 'pass it on.' I got meat bones from the butcher and placed them here and there on the lawn. In a short time they would be literally black with ants. Then I would gather the bones, roll them in paper, and dip in boiling water. At first I hadn't the heart to make use of hot water, but cold water was of no use. If you're going to fight ants you can't afford to be squeamish about it, I find."

Thank you for your communication. No doubt many persons will test it thoroughly between now and cold weather.

Mrs. D. F. S.—I cannot tell you how to increase the quantity of flowers on your white lilac. Something along this line may be done by manuring the bush, pruning it well, and generally increasing its vitality. I have never seen any variety of white lilac that bloomed as profusely as the ordinary kinds, and I do not think you can give any treatment that will result in such large and profuse quantities of bloom as we obtain from the old fashioned varieties.

If many roots are cut away in lifting and potting it will be necessary to remove a corresponding amount of top. Top and root must be made to balance. Sometimes the desired result can be secured by shortening the branches of the plant. Sometimes it can be thinned out by the removal of superfluous branches.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING-HAND

By MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

When an address or other information is wanted by mail a stamped addressed envelope should accompany the request.

"I HAVE read of how the Helping Hand is aiding the poor shut-ins and so I decided I would write and ask if some one will send me a few quilt pieces, magazines, or anything else that might be useful to a poor crippled woman with six small children. Mrs. A. W."

Will not some one write to me for this correspondent's address and try to cheer her forlorn lot?

Wheel to Donate.

"In reply to the request for a bicycle I would say that I have an old wheel which will probably need new tires that the boy can have if he wants it. I would like to get an old saddle for a boy who is working near here. He is now riding horseback without any saddle. No matter how old such a saddle might be he would be glad to get it. Mrs. C. A. H."

I am so sorry that the correspondent who offers the bicycle did not inclose the clipping containing the request or even give the boy's signature. I cannot trace him and I only hope that some lad who needs it as much as the other applicant may secure the coveted machine. I trust also that some one may have the saddle asked for and that when writing to secure the address of Mrs. C. A. H. the clipping here and a stamped and self-addressed envelope may be inclosed so that there may be no uncertainty as to who is meant.

Learning Crocheting by Mail.

"I am a young married woman and as I haven't many friends where I live and would have to stay at home all day, I would like to correspond with some Christian woman, preferably of the Baptist faith, who knows how to crochet. I thought perhaps some one could teach me through letters how to do such work. "Mrs. C. R."

Should the desired correspondent not have a knowledge of crochet this may be acquired perhaps by means of the instructions which we were recently told by a correspondent could be procured at any shop where materials or such work are sold. If the address of Mrs. C. R. is desired I will be glad to send it. It may be that she can meet personally some Cornerite who can instruct her more easily than by letter.

Would Exchange Letters.

"I would love to exchange letters with some persons living in California and also with some in Colorado. Could you please send me the addresses of some living in these states? Besides these, correspondents from Washington, Utah, or Montana would be all right, if none could be secured from the first named states. "Miss J. S."

It has seemed better to put this letter here, so that those who desire a correspondent may write for her address.

Correspondence in Spanish.

"I have a favor to ask of the Corner. I am just learning to speak Spanish. I wonder if any of your readers have a slight knowledge of it. I can speak it a little, and I should love to correspond with some one who can do the same. Also, can some one send me either in Spanish or in English, or in both, the words of 'La Paloma' and 'La Jota'? Has any one the music of the latter? I would be glad to send magazines or music in return. I already have the music of 'La Paloma.' E. M."

Undoubtedly there are many reading the Corner who can correspond about Spanish or in that language.

Crochet Pattern for Spread.

"I have tried to procure a pattern for a crochet bedspread. I would prefer it in strips instead of in squares, if possible, but this is not essential. I do not wish it to be too difficult, and it must be such that I can do the work from it in bed, where I have lain for nearly three years. So far I have been able to find no such pattern, and so my thoughts have turned to the Helping Hand. Coarse crocheting is positively the only thing I can do, except hen scratches with my left hand when trying to write to dear friends, and reading. If any one will kindly send me the pattern I wish I will be thankful. This request is written for me by a friend. "Mrs. M. V. H."

Such a modest request as this should surely find a prompt answer from some of the many fancy workers we have among us. No effort would be much more worth while than that which puts into the hands of a bedridden invalid something to help while away the hours that, in spite of her courage, must often be long and weary. I shall look for prompt applications for her address.

Pronouncing "Khaki."

"Will you give me the right pronunciation of 'khaki'? In England we call it kar-ke; here they call it kah-ki. Which is right? S. H. C."

I use the English pronunciation. Will some one fully versed on the subject advise us?

Crochet Patterns to Exchange.

"I sent the baby clothing to a correspondent and she was much pleased to get it. If any of the Cornerites would like to trade crochet patterns for quilt scraps, I would gladly make the exchange, as I have a few scraps on hand at present. I wish to express my great thanks to you for bringing me in touch with the Cornerite who fulfilled my boy's musical desires so generously. I also received from her some Christian literature which I am grateful for. "M. K."

I am delighted to hear of the benefits given and received by this correspondent. She is evidently not satisfied to be only one who gets but wishes to pass on kindnesses. I trust some one may want to make the exchange of the crochet patterns for the quilt scraps and will send to me for her address inclosing the clipping and a stamp.

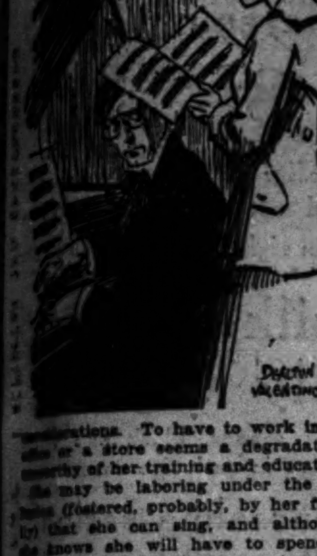
For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

Mary King.

The Superior Girl.

WE have with us everywhere the superior young girl who, when she finds it necessary to support herself, is inclined to scoff at business training and decides that hers must be an artistic career, but whether or not she is possessed of any unusual talent is the least of her considerations. To have to work in an office or a store seems a degradation, unworthy of her training and education. She may be laboring under the delusion (fostered, probably, by her family) that she can sing, and although she knows she will have to spend a great deal of money and years in voice cultivation she believes implicitly that the result will more than justify the effort. In nine cases out of ten she will have the misfortune to engage an instructor who will encourage her in the delusion. And so she will go on spending money that in all probability represents many sacrifices on the part of her family.



Then she will have to go through the struggle for engagements, and if hers is not a voice of high quality she will have small chance of making it pay for the time, energy, and money spent in its development. But even the disappointment of realizing that her voice is not her fortune cannot be compared to the bitterness of learning that the dearly prized accomplishment, nurtured with such great care and cost, is nothing more than a mediocre talent.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Miss Mary King, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

Nor is singing the only accomplishment with which many people delude themselves into a belief they have been especially endowed. In every field of art there are people who either bluff their way through to a small measure of success or, failing completely, live on the bounty of those friends who are not too superior to earn their living by commercial work.

Some time ago I received a letter from a young girl whose mother had set her heart on making her a singer. Although the mother had worked hard all her life she had spent money lavishly on her education. When the daughter finished school she wanted to take up a business course, so that she could fit herself to take over the burden her mother had carried so long, but when her mother suggested that she take up the cultivation of her voice she was delighted.

They both believed that with the proper training she would develop into a great singer. The teacher they engaged proved to be an honorable one who shortly told the girl that she lacked most of the qualities that made a successful singer. She dreaded breaking the news to her mother, so she decided not to tell her but to change teachers on some pretext. Thus she spent four years and a great deal of her mother's hard earned money on a voice which she knew was not responding.

At the time she wrote to me she was begining to realize what an injustice she had done her mother and herself by not having the courage to acknowledge that she possessed no real talent, and she was starting to work with no business training.

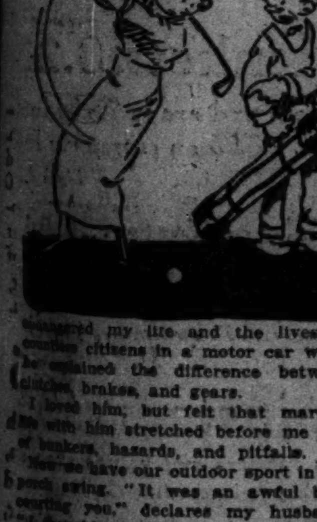
In order to attain an artistic success a young girl must be absolutely sure at the beginning of her career that she possesses a real talent.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Trying to Be Agreeable.

Before my marriage I tried to be a good sport. I walked miles over the golf courses with my suitor, patiently accepting his instructions; leaped and dashed and swung my aching arms on the tennis courts; with sinking heart let go my sinking form in the water while he showed me how to float; bounced merrily beside him on horseback, and endangered my life and the lives of countless citizens in a motor car while he explained the difference between clutches, brakes, and gears.



I loved him, but felt that married life with him stretched before me full of bunkers, hazards, and pitfalls.

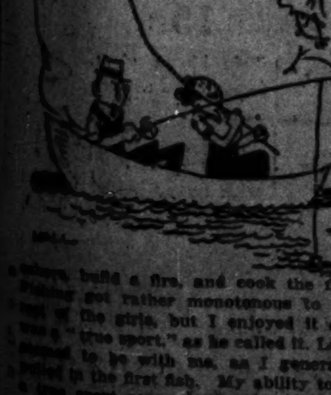
Now we have our outdoor sport in the porch swing. "It was an awful bore courting you," declares my husband. "I thought you had to be amused all the time." I. B.

How I Won My Mate.

How did you win the love of your mate? What measures, if any, did you adopt? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Won My Mate." Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Sunday Tribune," Chicago.

Fries All His Fish.

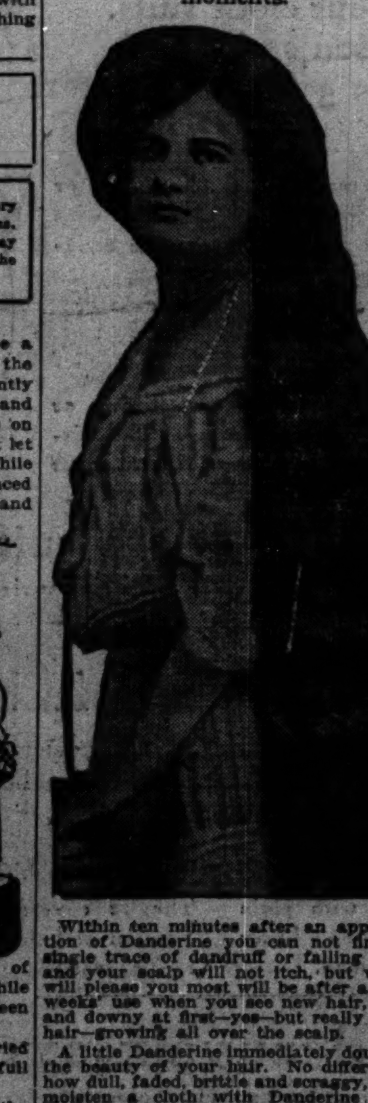
There was a crowd of girls at the same resort one year and there was one young fellow there who was especially popular, as he owned his canoe. Canoeing appealed to all the girls, but the thing he liked to do best was to paddle up the river, stop, and fish, then go ashore, build a fire, and cook the fish. Fishing got rather monotonous to the most of the girls, but I enjoyed it and was a "true sport," as he called it. Luck seemed to be with me, as I generally hauled in the first fish. My ability to be a true sport soon gave me the opportunity to fry all his fish. O. M.



DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

25 cent bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in few moments.



Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

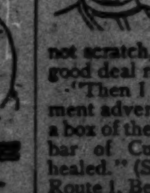
A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—Advertisement.

CHILD SUFFERED WITH ECZEMA

Mother Had to Tie Gloves On to Keep Her From Scratching.

"My little girl suffered with eczema. There were just two or three little pimples on one side of her face at first but they kept spreading till they covered her whole face. They were quite large and red, and when I washed her a watery matter came from them and they would bleed. They itched and burned so I had to tie gloves on her hands so she could not scratch, and she kept me awake a good deal nights.



"Then I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised and I used about a half a box of the Cuticura Ointment, and one bar of Cuticura Soap and she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Andrew Scheid, Route 1, Belding, Mich., April 17, 1916.

Some think that because Cuticura does such wonderful work in soothing and healing severe itching and burning eczemas it is not adapted to the gentle uses of the toilet. On the contrary, that is just where it is most effective in preventing these serious skin troubles. You can have samples for the asking. Address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. H, Boston." Sold throughout the world.

End of Summer Brings Travelers Back to Town.

By Mme. X.

"HOW do you do? Have you had a pleasant summer! Isn't it horrid to come back and have to set the house in order, get a new cook, and think of winter clothes?"

These and similar phrases are to be heard in a daily swelling chorus on Chicago's rialto. It is, however, only a fashion of speaking. The settling of the home for winter is a most interesting problem. The untested new cook presents, like Emerson's new acquaintance, illimitable possibilities to offset past disappointments. Clothes—new ones—are an ever exhilarating pursuit by even the least vain of women.

Did the summer speed by for you on swifter feet than usual? It did for us, too. Part of this sense of hurrying time was due to the fact that on a hot day in late June we planted with our own ink stained fingers a few squash seeds in our 2x4 garden. They sprouted in twenty-four hours and the rest of the summer was occupied in running away from those squash vines. They chased us down the path, up the back steps, across the lawn, and out into the street.

The little squashes, flat, golden, and succulent, grew to know and to love us. They even wagged their tails at us. One large Hubbard squash, sole product of its vine, sat on the garden path as inscrutable and brooding as a Hindoo idol. Him we brought in town with us as a fireside companion for the coming winter.

In spite of the superiority of what, without pride, we may call our squash court over anything the University of Chicago Atheltic club can show in that line, we were not invited to join the Garden Club of Illinois, an omission we shall try to forget, though forgiveness is impossible.

Cruise on Inland Waters.

There were no such things as squashes in the William G. Beales' summer. Desiring seclusion, quiet, cool air, sweet breezes, changing scenes, and a life far from maddening or any other kinds of crowds, they achieved this rather difficult combination by chartering the steam yacht Hiawatha, with its crew of fifteen men, and, embarking at Chicago, they sailed out on Lake Michigan's iridescent expanse.

They cruised at will on the Great Lakes and finally emerged onto the broad bosom of the St. Lawrence river, one of the most beautiful streams in the world. Past the Thousand isles, Montreal, and Quebec they steamed. They explored the Saguenay, but did not carry out their original plan of coming around via the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Atlantic ocean to New York. Inland waters are rather more friendly than high seas for yachting trips.

Mrs. Beale is at the moment becoming accustomed to life on shore by sojourning at the Yama farms on the Hudson.

Another explorer of inland waterways is Richard Crane III., who last week went by motorboat from Woods Holl, Mass., to Washington, D. C., via Long Island sound and the canals that meander through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. It was a trip which he had long contemplated and it more than realized his visions of its attractive possibilities.

View Scenic Savannah.

There is still much curious and interesting territory to be discovered in this country, and now that we Americans are practically, for the time being, cut off from the more distant fields of adventure, it is worth our while to better our acquaintance with our native land. That enterprising organization known as the Friends of Our Native Landscape, did some exploring a fortnight ago today when a dozen of them, at the suggestion of Prof. Coles of the University of Chicago, went down to Savanna, Ill., on the Mississippi, to examine its claims to have its natural beauties and wonders preserved by state and national park boards.

Savanna, which is Spanish for lowlands or prairies, is a settlement of some 7,000 inhabitants, but has vaulting ambitions for a larger population and greater public recognition. Among its principal features are its escarpments, or palisades. These are of a curious geologic formation and are twice as high as the famous ones at Starved Rock, in the Rock river valley. It has an Indian head profile carved by nature on the lofty front of these palisades, which is said to be more striking in effect that the White mountains' celebrated profile.

Besides these escarpments there is a maze of charming bayous, or "sloughs," as the aborigines call them, which are peculiarly picturesque and lovely, and are alive with jacksnipe, quail and wild duck.

Scenic drives are being built through that region for motorists. For pedestrians there are Indian trails. In short, it seems to be a little known region of great promise. Among the F. O. O. N. L., who explored it on this occasion, were Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Mrs. Bley, Miss Ahern, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Ewing of Bloomington, and Eames MacVeagh.

The officers of this society are: Jens Jensen, president; Henry C. Cowles and Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, first and second vice, presidents; Eames MacVeagh, treasurer, and Mrs. Norval Pierce, secretary.

Border Snake Stories.

There is one set of our fellow citizens for whom it is safe to say the summer has gone far from swiftly, and that is our troopers in Texas, who are keeping guard along the Mexican border. From the few that return one hears vivid though briefly told accounts of the discomforts, hardships, and dangers of their life down there.

Have you heard them tell about the rattlesnakes, for instance? It seems that they abound in that part of the world. On a recent hike, after a terrific all day tramp, our friends of Battery C camped in a driving rain in a water soaked cornfield. Utterly exhausted after the day's march, "Freddie" McLaughlin crawled on hands and knees into his only shelter, a squat little "pup" tent. He was about to flop as he crawled in face down on the wet earth, when, by the dim light of a lantern which happened—merely happened, mind you—to be in the tent, he saw the flat, three cornered head of a five foot rattlesnake just between his hands. He did not flop.

The men get to be experts at killing rattlers down there. They slay "bushels of 'em," as one youth cheerfully expressed it. Andrews King—familiarly known as Andy—because of his prowess in this direction is dubbed by his comrades "the rattlesnake king." Incidentally it is an interesting evidence of our military efficiency that the doctor of Battery C was on this hike, provided with no antidote to rattlesnake bite. So the men have to be efficient swatters.

A well known Chicago man, not in Battery C, but an officer in another battery, happened to examine the kitchen outfit of his mess and found the pots, pans, and other utensils in an indescribably filthy condition. He gave the cook orders to clean up everything in a minimum of time, but rescinded the order when the cook explained to him that if the pots were so treated they would cease to hold water, coffee, or soup, and that he could get no other utensils. So the vessels were left soldered with grease and dirt, and the officer accepted as many invitations out to mess as he could corral.

Over in East Oak street the smart signboard painted by Mrs. John Carpenter for that most picturesque of enterprises, the Bandbox, after having hung limp and lifeless all summer, is beginning to vibrate in the breeze, and by Oct. 12 will be swinging eagerly and alluringly. For that is the day set for the opening of the establishment with the "derniers cris" in suits, hats, all the dainty accessories to dress and frou frous dear to the heart of women.

Mrs. Howard Linn, now hunting mountain sheep in the Canadian Rockies, will be at home again by then to help Mrs. Arthur Orr and Mrs. Donald Forgan in making the Bandbox even more of a success than it was last year. Miss Katherine Linn is in New York now collecting things for the shop. Miss "Bobsie" Fuller is already enlisting her young and fair friends to serve as models to show off the hats, frocks, and coats. It will be a chic fashion show.

A new department will be added to the Bandbox this year. For want of a better name it will be called the "novelty room," where will be sold all sorts of curios, war relics, and old furniture.

This last item—furniture—is of the tragic in its nature, for it will be the contribution of the sorely afflicted in France, who, under the stress of the war, are obliged to part with their rare old "meubles," kept in the families for generations. There will be some charming and quaint pieces for sale; consols, commodes, cabinets, an ancient carved oak communion cabinet from some sacristy, and other things of this ilk.

There also will be curios and art objects made by the soldiers in the trenches and their struggling families in lonely homes. Curious and really lovely are the flowers made out of bread by French fighters. These, tinted and varnished, look as if made of porcelain or enamel. There will be rings, letter openers, and button hooks made of shrapnel; lace and embroideries made by the women at home and by the "orphelins de la frontiere," who are the especial objects of the Bandbox's existence.

To this group of war sufferers, who are being cared for at Versailles by some of that wonderful Roman Catholic band, the Sisters of St. Vincent, and to the "orphelins de la Guerre," the young women of the Bandbox have already sent between $5,000 and $6,000. Besides this they have given $100 to the American ambulance, $50 to the Chicago United Charities, $25 to the Children's Memorial hospital, $500 to the American Red Cross, and $100 to the "Orphelins des Armées." A pretty good showing for these energetic and able young women, and one that means months of the hardest kind of work, daily attendance at the shop, and much planning.

John McCutcheon's Engaged.

It is putting it mildly to say that the announcement today of Miss Evelyn Shaw's engagement to John McCutcheon is the most exciting and interesting thing of its kind that has come our way in many and many a moon. Had Ulysses been a bachelor and, after escaping from the wiles of Circe, the lure of the sirens, the dangers of Scylla and Charybdis, returned to find Penelope a lovely debutante, the cases might have been parallel. But he wasn't and didn't, so this particular engagement is unique.

Last summer Mr. McCutcheon bought an island near Nassau, the favorite winter haunt of Miss Shaw's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shaw, and her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Atkinson. The West Indies have always had a great fascination for Mr. McCutcheon. Their natural beauties, piratical legends of battle, murder, and sudden death, and their halo of buried treasures and sunken Spanish galleons make them an alluring region for one with a spirit inclined to adventure and a soul to romance. He has explored them on various cruises and will doubtless make other, longer explorations now that he has an isle of his very own.

This one belonged to an elderly American who died there a year or so ago and Mr. McCutcheon bought the island, the house, and all its furnishings, including books, china, linen, etc., from his heirs.

Having acquired this continent in miniature, which includes many cocoanut palms, our modern Ulysses found that it needed a queen and quickly chose the most appropriate possible consort, the lovely young woman who had helped him explore it. Their honeymoon next winter will be spent 'neath those murmuring palms. Are the wanderer's wanderings over? Will he visit no more battle fields, explore no more untrodden wildernesses?

To his friends he privately confides that he is a convert to militarism and maritalism—militarism for others, maritalism for himself.

Is it from a sense of humor or from an abounding hope that the women's committee of the Hughes alliance and those women interested in organizing the women's train trip across the country besiege Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, wife of the Democratic senator from Illinois, with requests to join the alliance and to subscribe to the train fund? Their attentions interest but do not influence the fair voter in question. Besides being wedded to this leader among the opposite party, she was born in the south and is by inheritance, tradition, and inclination a dyed in the wool disciple of Jefferson.

Attractions at the Aldis.

This is to be a busy week for the Aldis playhouse at Lake Forest. Tuesday evening Miss Ruth Draper and Miss Elizabeth Perkins—both of New York and well known socially in Chicago—will speak there on the work of the promoters of the American fund for French wounded. They arrive tomorrow and will be the guests of the Arthur Aldises for the ten days they plan to spend in this part of the world. They have speaking dates in a dozen nearby communities.

On Wednesday and Thursday the Lake Forest players will present in the playhouse Zoe Aikens' "The Magical City," and to offset the bit of tragedy, "A Thief's Honor," lent them by Arthur Hopkins. The first piece will be played by Mr. and Mrs. Volney Foster, Mrs. Maurice Browne, Charles Atkinson, Samuel Otis, Martyn Johnson, and Cleves Kincaid, the author of "Common Clay," now running here.

Charles Dewey has painted the scenery for this piece. It was played by the Washington Square players in New York last winter for a long run and attracted much attention because of its theme and the acting of it.

"Here the Best Dressed Women Wear Gossard Corsets"—

OUR trained corsetieres travel all over the world, demonstrating and selling Gossards. In practically every town and city they hear women make the above statement. Designers in the United States, Canada, Australia, South America, London and Paris prefer a Gossard over which to design the frocks, dresses and suits of their clients.

Being well dressed means being, first, correctly corseted. The growth of the Gossard idea—front lacing, and style plus comfort and wearing service—is the result of millions of satisfied wearers. It is quite the thing to say, "I wear a Gossard."

Gossard Corsets continue to win scores of friends, because the best dressed women prefer them and will wear no other corsets.

Ideal Curved Back and Short Waisted Figures

ENID MARKEY, Triangle Star, is an ideal short waisted figure, yet she more nearly represents the ideal figure because a special Gossard lengthens her waist line. She prefers Gossards to any other corsets.

Should you, through incorrect corseting, have a poor back line, we suggest a special Gossard which will reduce your lower back or support your abdomen. In a few weeks you will find your figure an ideal average.

Thousands of women have made this experiment successfully. Both of these ideal type special Gossards are designed at $2, $3.50, $5, up to $25. Be fitted today.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS

Rogers Park Club to Give Reception to Its President.

By Hazel Whitaker.

THERE'S nothing like having an inspiration, a goal toward which to work, and that the Rogers Park Woman's club, whose membership now numbers 450, has had in the clubhouse which has been its dream for so long. Now that the actuality is so near, club activities for the fall seem to be fairly booming.

Both business and pleasure will be combined in the opening meeting Tuesday afternoon, at the new parish house, Estes and North Ashland avenues, where all meetings are to be held until the new clubhouse is ready for occupancy. A reception to the president will be followed by a musical program, of which Mrs. C. T. Lemmon is in charge. Mrs. Marjorie Dodge Warner will present an Italian, a German, and an English song group, and Sig. Salvi, first harpist of the Chicago Grand Opera company, three numbers. A short business session relating to the new club building will precede a social hour, at which lunch will be served.

Mrs. Edmund Graf, as chairman of the building committee, has had a busy summer attending to the final details connected with the building, the corner stone of which was laid on July 21, but things have progressed so satisfactorily that the club hopes to celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary early in December in the new home at Estes and Ashland avenues.

Always active in its philanthropic department, the club is this year contributing regularly to the Rogers Park Day nursery, which was recently opened for the benefit of the working mothers in the neighborhood. Besides this, the club will coöperate as formerly with the various charitable organizations that give assistance to the needy poor in Rogers Park. Two of the regular club meetings will be in charge of the philanthropy department, the first one in October, at which Clarence Darrow will be the speaker, and the other in January, when Miss Anne Davis will talk on "Vocational Guidance in the Chicago Schools." Two other important talks, one of which will be given by Miss Harriet Vittum, will be under the auspices of the home and education department. The club is also assisting the Infant Welfare society through its school extension department, and at the first meeting in November Miss Minnie Ahrens, the superintendent of the society, will address the club.

The study classes are as follows: Shakespeare, with Mrs. Sarah Willard Hiestand as leader; civics, in charge of Miss Grace Nichols; art, with Mrs. F. B. Sherwood and Miss Catherine Maxey as leaders; domestic science and physical training.

But what has been and will still continue to be one of the most commendable and unusual activities of this club is its connection with the lunch room of the Nicholas Senn High school. For four years different groups of the members, averaging twenty women a day, have gone regularly every school day and for two years assisted in the dining room work of this lunch room, receiving in pay only what they actually earn. The high moral influence that these mothers exert upon the school is, as B. F. Buck, principal, expresses it, "An asset no money could buy." And so, in this way the club has combined splendid civic service with financial returns.

The officers for the year are: President, Mrs. Ida M. Hullhorst; first vice president, Mrs. Carrie B. Campbell; second vice president, Mrs. Charlotte B. Morgan; recording secretary, Mrs. Julia H. Carroll; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Anna Belle L. Meyer; treasurer, Mrs. Metta B. Safford. The directors are: Mrs. Charlotte S. White, Mrs. Edith J. Hays, Mrs. Alice P. [illegible], Mrs. Anne W. Graf, Mrs. Mabel B. King, Mrs. Nellie E. Lowell, Mrs. [illegible] K. Boyce, Mrs. Laura R. Ditzler, Mrs. Kate M. Walker, and Mrs. Louise C. [illegible].

NEW YORK SOCIETY

Many Weddings Planned for Early Winter.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Some one remarked that it was a bit difficult to decide which was the more important, the assemblage or the event, at the wedding of Dorothy Perkins, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Perkins, and Edward W. Freeman last week Saturday. It was really the first important social event of the season in town, and yet so many of the political and business friends of the bride's father were present that it was utterly unlike a society affair in the strict sense of the word.

Mrs. Freeman has never allied herself with the ultra-fashionable set, and some of her most intimate friends are the political associates of her august parent. Therefore as one glanced about the picturesque little church at Riverdale-on-Hudson, which sounds miles away, but really is just opposite Van Cortlandt park, one saw no less distinguished guests than Col. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, wife of New York's governor; Mayor and Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Cortelyou, Frank H. Hitchcock, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Rea, Mr. and Mrs. James Colby Colgate, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Francis Lynde Stetson, Oscar Strauss, William Flinn, and Mr. and Mrs. William R. Willcox.

Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt were among the first to arrive, the colonel having hurried, as usual, from a noon engagement in New York, where he had delivered a short talk on the work of the American ambulance in France, illustrated with moving pictures taken at the front. As usual, too, he attracted almost as much attention as the bride, and much more than the groom.

Many Engagements Announced.

Since the Perkins-Freeman wedding has brought up the subject, there has been a perfect avalanche of announcements of engagements that are and weddings soon to come. Mrs. Theodore Frelinghuysen has announced the engagement of her daughter, Elizabeth Adelaide Cannon, to Henry Luden of Amsterdam, Holland. They are to be married at Tuxedo Park on Oct. 28. Mr. Luden's sister, Mme. Van Loan, is lady in waiting to the queen of Holland. There is also an international interest in the cabled announcement last week that Virginia Marriott Hellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edmund Hellen of London, England, is to marry John Adams Moffitt of New York some time before the holidays.

Harriet Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, is to wed Winthrop W. Aldrich, son of the late Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, according to a recent announcement by the bride's parents, which has interested the younger set greatly. Miss Alexander is an active worker in the Junior league, of which she is vice president, and is fortunate in the possession of many friends.

Another mid-winter wedding will be that of Sylvia Hyde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. William H. Hyde and Fillmore Van S. Hyde. Mr. Hyde is a nephew of the late J. Seymour Hyde, and Miss Hyde is a granddaughter of the late Bishop Henry Codman Potter.

Two other American society girls who have gone over, body and soul to the cause of the allies are Marie Louise Rodewald, daughter of William MacNeill Rodewald, and Gertrude Aimes Lincoln. Miss Rodewald, who told her friends when she sailed for England a month ago that she was going abroad to extend the work she had been doing here in behalf of certain allied charities, had hardly arrived on the other side before announcement was made of her engagement and probable early marriage to Lieut. Allen Dyson Perrins, son of Chares W. D. Perrins, high sheriff of Worchestershire. Lieut. Perrins is now in London on a leave of absence, and it is expected the marriage will take place before he returns to the front. Miss Lincoln, who was a Los Angeles belle, last Saturday became the bride of Lieut. Arthur Lett Haines of the royal field artillery in London.

The stayjates at Newport last week, realizing apparently that something had to be done if they were not to expire from the boredom of social inactivity, proceeded to bestir themselves. And it was Mrs. Vincent Astor who took temporary charge of affairs—a wisk of straw, by the way, pointing the possibility of a winter campaign in town which may have more than a little effect in placing this young matron nearer the coveted goal of social leadership.

The Astors gave a dinner dance last Saturday to 200 guests, half that number dining at Beechwood and the other half coming on to the dance from dinners given by Mr. and Mrs. Craig Biddle, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. C. Taylor, and Mrs. W. Watts Sherman. The Beechwood ballroom was decorated in Mrs. Astor's favorite color, which is pink, and the dancers divided the evening between there and the grounds, where canvas had been stretched and a Hawaiian orchestra installed.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw II. of Boston have purchased the Victor Sorchan estate on the cliffs, it was announced last week, and Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius H. Tangeman have renewed their lease of the Ceasar villa for next season. This was the Tangemans' first summer in Newport, and because Mrs. Tangeman is beautiful as well as charming her social success was immediate, presaging a brilliant second season for her. Mrs. David Nevins has leased the cottage of Miss E. B. Waring in Catherine street for next season.

Red Cross Elects Officers.

When the Newport chapter of the American Red Cross, which was formed at the tea given by Mrs. Livingston R. Beeckman a fortnight since, got around to the election of officers Mrs. Beeckman was made chairman, Miss Maude Wetmore vice chairman, Mrs. J. Andrews Swan second vice chairman, Mrs. French Vanderbilt third vice chairman, Mrs. B. B. H. Sherman secretary, and Thomas B. Congdon treasurer. The charter members include Miss Martha Codman, who recently contributed $50,000 to a French war orphan charity; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Mrs. Joseph Harriman, Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mrs. Henry Barton Jacobs, Mrs. Burke Roche, Mrs. Gibson Fahnstock, Mrs. Guy Norman, Mrs. J. Gordon Douglas, Mrs. John J. Wysong, Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan, and Mrs. Eugene S. Reynal.

Because Roberta Willard and Robert Goelet have been seen much in each other's company recently colony gossips have started the rumor of their engagement. Neither has affirmed or denied the truth of the report, probably because neither has taken it seriously. It would be some honor to carry off the prettiest girl in Newport, and if the rumor prove to be founded in fact young Mr. Goelet will be generously congratulated.

WADSWORTH CAMP, author of a new mystery story, "The House of Fear" (Doubleday-Page), is resting up at his summer place in Vermont after a spring spent in war corresponding in Europe and explaining to English football fans that his first name isn't Walter of Yale. He went over to Ireland during the rebellion. "The boat reached Kingston at dawn of a rainy morning," he says. "I was told by one of the boat's officers that I couldn't land without a pass. I asked him if he meant that I would have to stay on the boat and go back with it. 'O, no!' he answered, 'because you couldn't leave without a pass.' Rather Irish, wasn't it?" he submits.

A new Who's Who is "My Table Cloths" (Doran) by Mrs. Alec-Tweedie. It is made up of anecdotes about famous personages who have signed their names on Mrs. Alec-Tweedie's tablecloths in London.

A book from the pen and pencil of Joseph Pennell is always a joy. His newest one is "Pictures of the Wonder of Work" (Lippincott) in which there are fifty-two drawings representing the dignity and power of work. Among them are drawings of the Gary steel mills and the Chicago stockyards, besides the famous ones of the Krupp works in Germany which have been printed in many of the magazines.

Wadsworth Camp

Cosmo Hamilton, author of "The Sins of the Children" (Little, Brown & Co.), wrote his first novel when he was 21, and it was accepted by the first publisher to whom he sent it. In five consecutive years there was never a time when one or more of his plays was not running on the London stage. He lives in this country now, you know.

This is Gene Stratton-Porter's Apologia pro vita scribenda sua. Isn't it exactly what you would expect the author of "Michael O'Halloran" (Doubleday-Page) to say:

> I elect to write only of moral men and women who work for the betterment of the world. My characters portray life as it is lived in homes of refinement and culture, where each man or woman does his or her level best. . . . To deny that the world contains the simple, kindly moral folk as I put into books is insanity; all of us are acquainted with the gentle, kindly, courteous men and women I describe. That their life pictures are true pictures of all life I never intended any one to think. I knew the folly, the fraud, the intrigue, the immorality of life. . . . Often I read the big books of realism written with tears tinctured with shame. I know their strength and truth to life. What I do not know is whether they accomplish any great work for the betterment of the world; while in their second rate and third rate forms of immediate discourse of lust, fraud, and snobbishness, I do know that they are a horrible source of corruption and evil.

Florence Kiper Frank, whose "The Jew to Jesus and Other Poems" (Kennerley) attracted much attention last winter, is one of the small group of young Chicago writers. Her concern just now is the production in the Little theater in Los Angeles of two plays for children, one Greek, the other Mother Goose people in a new story. Incidentally, four of her poems are included in the new Macmillan anthology, "Modern Poetry," which Harriet Monroe and Alice Corbin Henderson have chosen, and a war poem has been spoken for for the anthology which the Belgian scholarship committee is getting together for the benefit of a fund for Belgian professors.

The committee in charge of the dramatic museum of Columbia university is issuing in limited editions several series of documents dealing with the theory and the practice of the art of the theater—reprints of inaccessible essays and addresses, translations from foreign tongues, and original papers. These documents are furnished with introductions, and they are annotated adequately, but succintly. The third series consists of the following papers on play making: "How Shakespeare Came to Write 'The Tempest,'" by Rudyard Kipling, with an introduction by Ashley H. Thorndike; "How Plays Are Written," letters from Augier, Dumas, Sardou, Zola, and others, translated by Dudley Miles, with an introduction by William Gillette; "A Stage Play," by Sir William Schenck Gilbert, with an introduction by William Archan; "A Theory of the Theater," by Francisque Sarcey, translated by H. H. Hughes, with an introduction by Brander Matthews, and an extra volume, a catalog of models and of stage sets in the dramatic museum of Columbia university.

"Witte Arrives" [Stokes] is the name of the chronicle which Elias Tobenkin has written of a young Jewish immigrant and his adjustment in the life where the fear of losing their jobs makes cowards of countless millions of our land of the free and the brave. Mr. Tobenkin used to be an editorial writer on THE TRIBUNE—an earnest, clear eyed student of life and its ways. I haven't read "Witte Arrives" yet, but a reviewer whose judgment I sincerely respect says it is, quite aside from its interest as a novel, so valuable as a text book of sociology that it should not be overlooked; that its place in the worth while library should be near Mary Antin's "The Promised Land." I shall read it.

Ian Hay, the author of "The First Hundred Thousand" (Houghton-Mifflin), is under orders to join the forces on the continent at once, and so "Carry On," which is a continuation of "The First Hundred Thousand," will probably be published soon. When Capt. Beith—he's Ian Hay Beith, you know—was recalled to England to act as an instructor in machine gun practice at one of the training camps work on the book had to stop.

"A Dictionary of Similes" (Little-Brown), by Frank J. Wilstach, is, as far as I know, the only book of similes which is available for reference use. It is a compound of similes culled from English literature from Chaucer to Irvin Cobb. You find even that figure of speech, "About as much privacy as a goldfish," which helped to make Irvin Cobb's "Speaking of Operations" something you can't forget. Nov. 11 is the date of the publication of "A Dictionary of Similes."

To their list of published plays Little, Brown & Co. of Boston will add this fall "Duty and Other Irish Comedies," by Seumas O'Brien; "Anne Pedersdotter," a drama in four acts by H. Wiers-Jenssen, a Danish dramatist, discovered by John Masefield, and three Irish plays by Padriac Colum, one of the most conspicuous of the younger Irish dramatists and poets.

Three books of especial interest to those of you who have a penchant for the Freud and Jung theories are Moffett, Yard & Co.'s publications, "Analytical Psychology," by Jung; "Wit, and Its Relation to the Unconscious," by Freud, and the famous psycho-analysis of Leonardo da Vinci, by Freud. "Analytical Psychology" is a collection of the earlier writings of the famous Zurich professor, things that appeared before his "Psychology of the Unconscious," scattered through pamphlets, reviews, monographs, and lectures. It is edited and translated by Dr. Constance Long. The two Freud books are translated by Dr. A. A. Brill. In the Leonardo da Vinci analysis there is an explanation of the Mona Lisa smile—and you may be sure it is not the conventional one.

Louise Closser Hale, author of "The Actress" and "The Married Miss Worth," and Walter Hale, author of "By Motor to the Firing Line" (Century), have gone to France, where Mrs. Hale will write and Mr. Hale will etch. Mr. Hale was over there last year, but this is the first time the Hales as a family—devoted to motoring and charming records in illustration and description of their wanderings—have gone into the tumult of the great war.

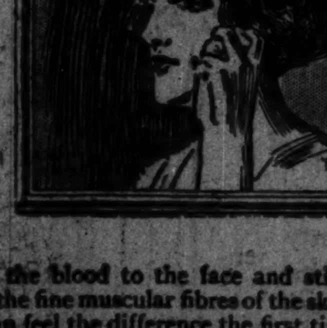
How to rouse a sluggish skin



A dull, sallow, lifeless complexion has several causes. Whatever the cause in your case, your skin needs stimulating. The following treatment is the most effective you can use.

Just before retiring, wash your face and neck with plenty of Woodbury's Facial Soap and hot water. If your skin has been badly neglected, rub a generous lather thoroughly into the pores using an upward and outward motion, until the skin feels somewhat sensitive. After this, rinse well in warm, then in cold water. Then rub your skin for five minutes with a lump of ice and dry carefully.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of an authority on the skin and its needs. This treatment with it cleanses the pores, brings the blood to the face and stimulates the fine muscular fibres of the skin. You can feel the difference the first time you use it—a promise of that lovelier complexion which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings.

Do this today! A 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap is sufficient for a month or six weeks of this treatment. Go to your druggist or toilet counter today and get a cake. Begin at once to get the benefits of this treatment for your skin.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is for sale by every dealer and druggist in Chicago and, in fact, by dealers everywhere throughout the United States and Canada. Made by The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ont., Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. David Martin of 4830 Monticello avenue announce the engagement of their sister, Mrs. Eleanor R. Bird, to J. W. Knee. The marriage will take place in December.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Martha Wolf of 536 Lill avenue to Sigmund Liebenstein of Burr Oak, Kas.

Mrs. Thomas Kelly of 4750 Woodlawn avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary, to Arthur Stockstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stockstrom of St. Louis, Mo.

Mrs. J. K. Columb Goddard announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Hazel Dorothy Columb, to O. W. Koppelman Jr., son of Mrs. Bertha L. Koppelman of 5211 Ingleside avenue. The wedding will take place in November.

FUTURE EVENTS.

Miss Elizabeth Perkins of New York will arrive in Lake Forest on Tuesday to be the guest of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aldis. Miss Perkins is field secretary of the American Fund for French Wounded, and with Miss Ruth Draper, the monologist, she has made a pilgrimage through New England arousing interest in the work. She and Miss Draper will give their charming talks this week—on Tuesday at Lake Forest, on Wednesday at the French shop in East Washington street. They will be the guests for luncheon on Wednesday of Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham in Evanston and speak in Mrs. Burnham's bungalow. From there they will go to Highland Park, where they will speak before the unit which is established there. On Thursday they will talk in Racine, Kenosha, and Milwaukee, on Friday in Madison, Wis., and on Saturday they will go to Rockford. It was planned that they would dine at the Cordon on Wednesday evening and give a talk about the work of the fund there, but Wednesday will be such a busy day for them that the Cordon dinner has been postponed until next week.

Mrs. Russell Tyson, who left Chicago on Thursday for a month's stay at her estate in Brattleboro, Vt., placed the chairmanship of the Washington street war shop in the hands of Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter, who will be in daily attendance there. Plans for the benefit of the American Fund for French Wounded, to be given the first week in November under the direction of M. Gustave Rolland by his Theatre de la Renaissance Française at the Playhouse, have been delayed, owing to the changes in the shop's directorate. They will be pushed from now on by Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. William E. Clarke, Mrs. George Halleck Taylor, and Mrs. Henry S. Robbins. The working days of these shop helpers will be arranged as follows: Mrs. Robbins, Wednesdays; Mrs. Clarke, Tuesdays and Fridays; Mrs. Taylor, Mondays and Thursdays. Besides the proceeds of the benefit to be donated by M. Rolland to the A. F. F. W., comfort bags will also be sold at the performance by a group of the shop workers and young women aids.

A unique tennis match will take place this afternoon on George McLaughlin's tennis courts, when Samuel Chase, hopping upon one foot, will play Count Bolognesi. Count Bolognesi, who confesses that he is no player at all, challenged Mr. Chase, who is a brilliant tennis player, to this game, which promises to be funny. The gallery will contribute a small sum each, which will be given to the American Red Cross.

Cecil J. Sharp, the authority on English folk songs and folk dances, will lecture at the Chicago Little theater next Sunday evening, on the following Tuesday evening, Oct. 10, and on the afternoon of Wednesday, Oct. 11. Singers and dancers will interpret his lecture, and there will be stereopticon views of actual dances given in England.

Mrs. Charles W. Folds of 1228 North State street will introduce her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Folds, at a tea on Thanksgiving day, which will be followed by a dinner for the debutantes and a dance. She has not yet decided where the festivities will be held. Mr. and Mrs. Folds and their family are still at their country place in Lake Forest, where they plan to remain until mid-October.

Although the date for her formal presentation has not been decided upon, entertainments for Miss Lolita Armour, daughter of Mrs. J. Ogden Armour of 3724 Michigan avenue, already are being planned by her friends. On Tuesday evening, Jan. 2, Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss and Mrs. Edward F. Swift will give a dinner dance for her. Both Mrs. Countiss and Mrs. Swift have apartments at 1550 North State parkway. The dinner will be given in Mrs. Countiss' apartment and the dance in Mrs. Swift's.

Plans are under way for the first annual bazaar of the Deborahs and Deborah Juniors, to be held at the Masonic temple, Fifty-first street and Michigan avenue, Nov. 8 and 9, for the benefit of the Deborah Boys' club, the patients at Dunning, the Glenwood school for boys, the parental school for boys at Bowmanville, and the Geneva home for girls.

Added interest is given to the first meeting of the season of the Dorothy Meadows Drama circle tomorrow at the Blackstone by reason of the fact that the first reading of Thompson Buchanan's play, "A Woman's Way," will be given at that time. Mr. Buchanan is the husband of a Chicago girl, formerly Miss Katherine Winterbotham.

The entire main floor and the lower boxes for the performance on Tuesday evening, Oct. 17, of "The Great Lover" are being sold for the benefit of the junior auxiliary of the Hyde Park Infant Welfare center.

The annual frolic of the Bachelors and Benedicts will take place on Thanksgiving eve in the gold ballroom of the Congress, if the boys on the border are able to return by that time. There are four new members of the committee—Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, John Wentworth, Ambrose Cramer, and Laurance Armour. The other members of the committee are Arthur G. Cable, W. E. Clow Jr., Chauncey McCormick, J. Morse Ely, Robert A. Gardner, Lawrence Robbins, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Jesse Spalding, Joseph T. Bowen Jr., Kent S. Clow, Albert Farwell and David Dangler. Instead of being a dinner-dance, as it has been in previous years, the frolic will be a dance followed by a supper.

Saturday, Nov. 18, has been chosen as the date of the debut of Miss Eleanor Deming Stout, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Deming Stout of 4847 Ellis avenue.

Mrs. Edgar Lee Masters of 4833 Kenwood avenue will have charge of the social affairs of the College club for this season. The first of the Friday teas will be given this week with Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Browne of the Chicago Little theater as guests of honor.

There will be a meeting of the Antiquarian society on Nov. 14. The date will be selected for the annual January tea. There has been talk of arranging a memorial to Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, a life member and enthusiastic worker with the Antiquarians, and whose death occurred in the early spring.

The eleventh annual pow-wow of the Onwentsia club will take place on Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Lorraine J. Pitkin

The Front Lace Corset With the Ventilo Back

The last session of the Fashion Art League was a splendid ovation to the superior features of La Camille when demonstrated in competition with other famous makes. The style artists there assembled were quick to recognize La Camille's smart style, perfect fit and the ideal foundation it gives for garments of the prevailing mode. Be sure your front lace corset is a La Camille. It has the Ventilo Back and Ventilo Front Shield, the greatest corset improvement of the age.

The corset illustrated shows a very popular new girdle top model. In a variety of beautiful fabrics, at $3.50 to $7.50.

Other La Camille models at $1.75 to $25.00.

News of the Religious World

Big Rally Day Celebration in Sunday Schools.

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

RALLY day in the Sunday schools reaches its climax today. Officially last Sunday was rally day, according to announcements of the Cook County Sunday School association. Nevertheless Elbert Beeman, general secretary, said more schools would celebrate rally day today than on last Sunday. A few schools will celebrate next Sunday. In Methodist Episcopal Sunday schools today is the official day not only in Chicago but throughout the world.

Cook county has 250,000 Sunday school pupils enrolled, and Illinois has 1,024,387. In the world there are approximately 30,000,000 persons enlisted under the Sunday school banner.

Rally day means not simply the gathering together again of the children who have been scattered by the vacation period, but the enlisting of men and women in Bible study classes and the enlivening of all forms of aggressive church work. Today may be considered the beginning of the ecclesiastical year.

The Rev John W. Melody

The Rev. John Webster Melody, D. D., is the new pastor of St. Jarlath's Roman Catholic church, Hermitage avenue and West Jackson boulevard. He officiated for the first time last Sunday. He is the successor of the Rev. Thomas Cashman, who resigned because of ill health and advancing age and went to California.

Dr. Melody was born in Chicago and educated at St. Ignatius' college. He received the degree of doctor of divinity on examination in 1903 and at once became professor of moral theology in the Catholic university, Washington, D. C. He has attained a wide reputation as a lecturer and a writer.

Dr. Melody will speak today at the musical vespers in St. Patrick's church, Desplaines and Adams streets, at 3:30 o'clock. He is the first of a series of speakers who will speak there each Sunday. A choir of 150 voices will sing under the leadership of Dr. J. Lewis Browne. The service lasts one hour and ten minutes and is open to the public.

The corner-stone of the Irving Park Swedish Lutheran church, Belle Plaine and Harding avenues, will be laid today at 3 o'clock. A new church and parish house will be built, costing $65,000. The pastor of the church is the Rev. Joshua Oden, who came to the church eight years ago when it was merely a mission, and he has seen it grow to its present dimensions. The Rev. Dr. M. C. Ranseen, president of the conference, will officiate and the Rev. Dr. Gustav Andreen, president of Augustana college, will deliver the principal address. A Sunday school chorus of 300 voices and the church choir will sing.

The Rev. E. C. Dolbeer will be installed pastor of the Hope Lutheran church, 1520 North Laurel avenue, this evening. The Rev. Dr. J. F. Seibert will be in charge.

The Rev. Von Ogden Vogt will preach his first sermon today at 11 o'clock as pastor of the Wellington Avenue Congregational church, Wellington avenue near Broadway. He spent his boyhood in Chicago, graduating from the Hyde Park High school in 1897. He later graduated from Beloit college, was five years general secretary of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor, received the master of arts degree from Yale university, and graduated from the Yale divinity school and then became pastor at Cheshire, Mass., where he has been for the last five years. He succeeds at the Wellington Avenue church the Rev. Leslie W. Sprague.

A Quaker homecoming and rally day will be held today at the Quaker meeting house, 4413 Indiana avenue. There will be a Bible school at 9:45 a. m., worship at 11 o'clock, and social hour from 5:45 to 6:30 p. m.

Farewell services will be held today at the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church, Fifty-ninth and South La Salle streets. The membership of the church will be transferred to the Englewood First church and the Simpson property will be sold.

The Rev. John Forbes Mitchell, formerly assistant pastor of St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, Hyde Park, Chicago, will become the assistant pastor of the Church of the Transfiguration, New York, known for many years as "The Little Church Around the Corner." Since his return from visiting the war zone in France he has been lecturing on his experiences.

Now—The Annual October Sale of Silks is again at your threshold and with urgent word of the very silks that most every woman is now in quest of, priced in a manner that will astonish every other merchant in the country—those are the two prime factors in making this the most noteworthy Silk Sale in America—qualities, quantities, desirability of merchandise, service, lowness of prices, all are far superior to any ever offered—and, too, in the face of conditions that only this Silk Store, the largest in America, could surmount, for, while silks, because of Dame Fashion's drastic decrees, are in greater demand, they never were more difficult to secure—not alone is the October Sale supreme, but it provides stocks and varieties even larger and better than in former years—for our silk organization is so thoroughly intrenched in the silk manufacturing centers of the world that we have a steady stream of silks flowing into our store every day in the year. Always the silks in demand are here first, always the whimsical colors are to be had here, and always values are greatest here. The October Sale crowns a long line of similar events with a superiority none would have thought possible. Just a few of the values are told of below as a criterion for you to judge by.

Mr Arnsan's Personal Classes

Start This Week

I am the man whose methods revolutionized the teaching of Stenography and Typewriting. I now offer my personal instruction to a limited number of high class students in Pitmanic Shorthand, Typewriting and Voicewriting.

My personal interest in you and the instruction received from these special classes will give you a quick entry after graduation into high grade stenographic and private secretarial positions. Positions of this character average between $20 and $30 a week—some pay as high as $100 a week.

Several of Chicago's biggest business men have repeatedly urged me to train stenographers, secretaries and voicewriters to fill immediate pressing demands. Right now there is a scarcity of highly trained young men and women, owing to the fact that business colleges do not graduate students sufficiently competent to hold these positions.

I am therefore offering you the benefit of my years of practical business training and teaching experience.

Classes

Night classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings—for the employed girl or man.

Day school, five days a week—including Saturday, if desired—for those who wish to devote their entire time to study.

I also offer a special Home Study Course in Typewriting, Shorthand, or Dictating Machine, with the understanding that where possible those who can get to the loop will report one day or evening each week.

It is not my desire to charge a large price for entrance into these classes, and therefore I am going to make it to your advantage to enroll yourself and save solicitor's fees.

This advertisement will be accepted as $5 cash against any course, but you must enroll Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday, between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m., to cash in this advertisement.

Get Bigger Pay

If you are perfectly satisfied with a salary of $12 or $15 or $18 a week, then this School has nothing to offer you. If you are happy and contented with a small salary, we can do nothing for you. But if you are eager and ambitious, if you earnestly and sincerely WANT BIGGER PAY, if you want your work in the business world to give you the biggest possible rewards, if you would like to have your pay envelope give you $5 or $10 or $15 MORE EVERY WEEK than you now receive, then we CAN help you.

We don't work any miracles. We don't perform any feats of wizardry. We simply teach you a new method of typewriting that is so simple, so easy and so efficient that by its use you can MORE THAN DOUBLE YOUR SPEED without working so hard as you do now. We train your fingers so that they can accomplish MORE THAN TWICE AS MUCH as they accomplish now—and at the same time we take away the back strain, the eye strain and the nervous exhaustion that nearly every stenographer now experiences. We make it easier for you to write 80 to 100 words a minute than you now write 30 or 40.

In one office in Chicago there are seven of our graduates now working at $30 a week each. In other offices there are dozens more. Some of them did not even take our full three months' course. We cannot supply graduates fast enough for the employers of Chicago who know what our graduates can do. If you are now a stenographer or typist you can master our method of DOUBLE-SPEED TYPEWRITING in THREE MONTHS, merely by evening study and practice. If you are a beginner you can master both our DOUBLE-SPEED TYPEWRITING and DOUBLE-SPEED SHORTHAND in FOUR MONTHS. If you are going to work in an office, do work that is worth while. Get a salary that is worth while.

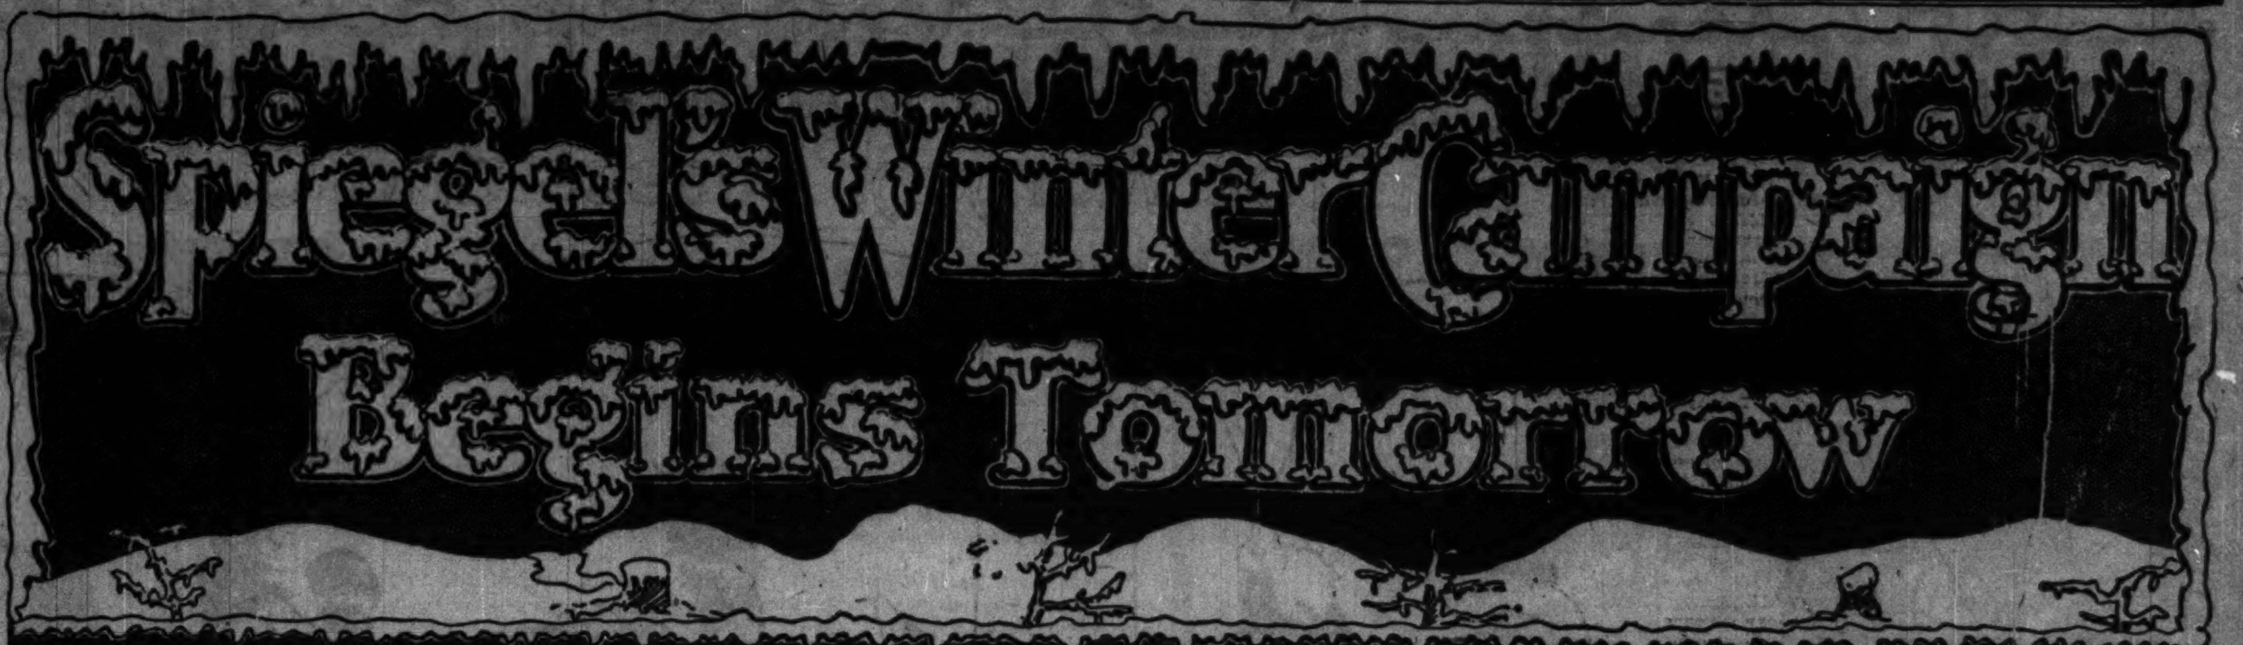
S. H. CAMP & CO., 57 E. Madison Street



Thousands of people are eager now to get their homes ready for winter. More thousands have just moved today and are equally eager to get things in shape as quickly as possible.

So this great Winter Campaign at the Spiegel Stores is starting none too soon.

We can live in the Parks in the summer. We can be out of doors most of the time in the spring. But in the winter we live in our homes. In fact, we live all over our homes. And the more snug and comfortable they are the more enjoyment we get.

A big easy chair or a fine bed davenport doesn't mean half so much in the summer as it does in the winter time. New rugs and curtains add to coziness. A family spends more time in the dining room, and so nice dining room furniture also means more in the winter than any other time of the year. And music fairly becomes a necessity.

So right at this time this Spiegel Policy of Credit and Courtesy and the low prices which the Spiegel Buying Power provides, also mean most to you. It must be considerable satisfaction to feel that you do not have to drain the family purse to get the comforts of life; to know that for a few dollars cash any one can have any of these comforts right away.

This Spiegel Buying Power means that you can buy furniture here on credit cheaper than you can buy it elsewhere for cash.

The big winter sale begins tomorrow with bargains everywhere.

NO effort has been spared, no source has been overlooked, to present at this time every mode tendency relative to smart Millinery. Clever two and three piece sets, the ultra smart novelties of the season for street and evening wear—Millinery that is totally different, including the newest and most clever conceptions in Persian ideas, combined with fur and velvet, the select things in the Russian, Chinese and Oriental modes, with dress hats for afternoon and evening wear, street and tailored wear, and a complete showing of White Millinery. Among the many novelties which we show, none of which are to be found elsewhere, is long desired to meet the requirements of fashion, TWO HATS IN ONE—Illustration at the right shows how cleverly adapted to dancing and dinner uses this hat is in its close fitting brim, and yet how easily it can be converted to a hat of larger dimensions by firmly fastening in a clever, invisible manner an additional large brim to the small brim of the hat itself. Thus the wearer can appear in two hats on one occasion. A large hat when a large hat is appropriate and a small one when desired.

Actors, and Plays, and the Like

By Frederick Donaghey.

LEO DITRICHSTEIN'S industrious past as an adapting and performing patron of continental playwrights makes reasonable the thought that, at base, "The Great Lover" is an importation; but, if it be, there is no hint of the fact in what he has to say of the genesis of the new offering in the Grand Opera house. The play had its beginning, Mr. Ditrichstein is quoted as explaining, in his admiration for the part of Maurice Renaud, the baritone—a singing-actor who, in the notion of the present writer, is one of the truly great artists of modern French opera. Chicago knows him for a few performances he gave with the company at the Auditorium in the Dippel regime. Mr. Ditrichstein, when he saw Renaud, was, it appears, impressed by the latter's physical possibilities as a stage type, and forthwith determined to have a play in which he could make himself look like Renaud. He assembled incidents and anecdotes of the opera stage as suitable matter, and decided to utilize an actual happening, Italo Campanini's sudden loss of voice, as the foundation of the "big scene." [The great tenor was the brother of the Auditorium's manager.] The play did not grow fast, Mr. Ditrichstein confesses, and composition was delayed by the necessity of his acting in other works, until, despairing of making without aid a workable fabric of his odds-and-ends and shreds and patches of lore from the world's opera houses, he called in Mr. and Mrs. Hatton, and with them fashioned the piece as a medium for his talents as an actor of fantastic character.

Miss Callish, pictured on the right of this page, is a Dane, a protégé of Sarah Bernhardt, a fiddler, an opera singer, and an actress, according to biographical details submitted by the precursor of "The Great Lover," in which, tonight, she will be the principal woman. She is a newcomer in Chicago. Miss Stevens, on the left, is better known hereabout, although she has not acted in Chicago since the spring of 1912, when she originated the part of the shopgirl in "Within the Law," in the Princess, where she is again on view. She would appear to have come along so far in both ability and popularity as not longer to require to be identified as "the niece of Mrs. Fiske," which she isn't.

A last-minute change in the cast of "The Unchastened Woman" put Miss Mary Alden into the part which Miss Emelie Polini had been announced to play in the Princess. Another change gave H. Hassard Short's original part to Malcolm Dunn. A review of the performance of the Anspacher play will be printed in THE TRIBUNE tomorrow.

Louis Mann is said to be expecting a play by George M. Cohan, to be written when the latter gets the Chauncey Olcott piece on its way. The latter is called "Honest John O'Brien," and will be produced tomorrow night in Detroit.

The Playhouse [hitherto the Fine Arts] is in the keeping of workmen for the purposes of the alterations in both stage and audience room outlined in the recent prospectus of the new management, the Messrs. Hardy, Sheehan, and Perry; and it is the expectation that the theater will be new in both aspect and possibilities by the 9th inst., when its formal reopening will be made with the new comedy, "Where the Rooster Crows." Miss Mary Mallon, Miss Laura Walker, Geoffrey Stein, Barry Maxwell, and Charles Markey are familiar names in the cast.

Miss Bertha Mann, the "on-call" wife in the Chicago performances of "Today," will be Ruth Honeywell in "Justice" when, on Oct. 15, John Barrymore acts the Galsworthy play in Powers'. Whitford Kane, well known here for his acting in "Hindle Wakes," "Hobson's Choice," and other plays, will in "Justice" be the defending barrister—a part he originated when the play was staged by Miss Horniman in Manchester, England. O. P. Heggie, the fine comedian of last season's "Androcles," also will be with Mr. Barrymore.

The Man Who Dined with the Kaiser, a wise and alert correspondent of the London Daily Mail, has asked the managers of variety theaters to book him in the United States at $3,750 a week. They said "No!"

"Potash and Perlmutter in Society," not yet shown in Chicago, has been mounted in London. Barney Bernard and Julius Tannen will be the partners when, soon, the play is given in the Olympic.

Edward Knoblauch, the American playwright of "Kismet" and "My Lady's Dress," in accepting naturalization as a British subject changed the spelling of his name to Knoblock, that there might remain no suspicion of German origin. He has been officially told that the change was unnecessary, piffling, and unsatisfactory. He has another play ready, "Home on Leave." His "Paganini" will soon be laid aside by George Arliss for "The Professor's Love Story."

Mr. Warfield, realizing that even his great popularity was not proof against the deadly stupidity of "Van Der Decken," reverts to "The Music Master." His burning desire to act Shylock persists, of course, in promotional narrative.

Thomas A. Wise, animated by his success when last season he played Falstaff in place of James K. Hackett at the head of the company the latter had assembled for his own support, is to fare forth in a revival of "The Merry Wives of Windsor," although Hackett, himself, proposes to do the same thing. Mr. Wise will have the Misses Constance Collier and Isabel Irving as the wives, Lawson Butt as Ford, settings in the old manner of A. D. 1914 [Hackett's were gotten up by the ubiquitous and effectual Urban], and music by Silvio Hein, who used to do the tunes for Miss Marie Cahill's ditties.

Overheard at 8:10 o'clock Monday night in the Blackstone lobby:

The Man Who Bought—"Well, I'm risking four dollars on this play's being good!"

The Man with the Buyer—"I guess you're safe. We ought to be sure of something good from a man of Hobart's experience."

The Man Who Bought—"That's what makes me doubtful—Hobart's 'Experience'!"

Miss Anglin Scores Hit in Maugham's "Caroline."

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—We used to think it was difficult, not to say almost impossible, for a popular star to find a play suited exactly to his or her individual set of talents, expressions, emotions, hair, eyes, and teeth, because stars were vain and their judgment warped. And we still think so. But we also have come to know that the play market, though glutted, is also practically barren of plays that are either original or desirable.

Therefore we are inclined to be generous with Margaret Anglin and Otis Skinner, who came to town last week with comedies that did not square with the amount of effort or talent expended upon them. Miss Anglin, again deserting the tearful drama she inwardly loathes because it is the thing she plays best, appeared in a sprightly but trivial comedy called "Caroline." It was written by W. Somerset Maugham, the polite English author of "Smith," which John Drew and Mary Boland played for a season, "Lady Frederick," with which Ethel Barrymore toyed, and "Jack Daw," through which Mr. Drew also trailed his streamline coattails.

Now "Caroline," springing from a veritable inspiration in the way of ideas, is really an intellectual farce. Which means that it begins to bore its average audience about the middle of the second act. It is only the lowbrow romp that can go skipping hilariously through an entire evening, as you may have noticed. It does not matter a great deal whether the baldheaded old flirt is caught dining with the redheaded actress early or late in the evening. It is always funny to those to whom it is ever funny. But it does matter with plays that depend largely upon the spoken dialogue for their appeal.

A bright author is ever as welcome in the first act, because it usually is such a surprise for the audience to find out. But he has to be wonderfully bright to hold the pace through an entire evening. By 10 o'clock, usually, his brilliance has dulled and his wit grown commonplace, because more is expected of him than he can deliver, and, having little body to the story he is telling, he grows tiresome.

It is that way with "Caroline." She is a delightful heroine on first acquaintance. A widow by choice, and likewise by death, she has, for ten years, lived apart from her husband, who was a bad boy and overfond of brandy. During that ten years she has met and grown to love a bachelor friend. Together they had approached middle life buoyed by the sweet thought that when Caroline's husband should die they would marry. But when he does die, as he has done just before the story of the play begins, they discover that neither wants to marry. And yet each is afraid to confess it.

Caroline has grown accustomed to her own home and her own way of doing things. The thought of again assuming the responsibilities of a husband and a house appal her. Also the knowledge that marriage will mean death to her romance is most disquieting. While she was unattainable she was much desired of men—young men, old men, nice men—remove that lure and she would settle into the humdrum of life, the conventional wife of a conventional barrister.

Robert, her lover, also views with inward trembling the breaking up of his orderly bachelorhood. He loves Caroline devotedly, but he wants to go on loving her, and he is not quite sure she will be as dear to him as his wife as she has been as his sweetheart. Much of the fun comes from the plans of the two to avoid the matrimonial issue, while their romantically inclined friends, particularly the women friends, try to push them into it.

Finally Caroline finds a way out. Lying skillfully, she resurrects her dead husband. He is still alive and well—in Africa or India or some other distant place. Once more she is the unattainable and desired. Her romance can now go on so long as she cares to prolong it. And she is happy. Miss Anglin reveals her best comedy manner in the playing of Caroline, which is to say that it is a splendid characterization. Charles Dalton is a trifle heavy and somewhat middle aged for the rôle of the lover, though he plays it with expert facility.

Otis Skinner's play is called "Mister Antonio," and is from the Indiana fiction factory of Booth Tarkington. It has not the advantage of the bright lines that do so much for "Caroline," which is strange when Mr. Tarkington is so much wittier a writer than Mr. Maugham. But, curiously enough, the stage seems to frighten Tarkington. Give him paper, pen, and an idea and he will write reams of the most deliciously human romance, vide practically all that he has written, from "Beaucaire" to "Penrod."

But set him down to preparing a comparatively few pages of scenes to be acted and dialogue to be spoken, and he becomes as artificial as a wax rose. Only his humor and William Hodge's peculiar fitness for a Yankee rôle saved "The Man From Home," and the art of Mansfield had more to do with the success of the stage version of "Beaucaire" than any other agency. And the rest have been mostly quick failures.

"Mister Antonio," however, stands an excellent chance of being saved by Mr. Skinner. It is practically a monologue for him. It is an old fashioned comedy drama, in fact, one in which the star makes all the rescues, speaks all the good lines, and dominates all the crises. Skinner, as an idealized organ grinder, a sort of "harvester" sprung from New York's east side, is a picturesque figure with a mellifluous dialect and a soft voice, who expounds eloquently the philosophy of a gentle soul. He is sensitive and fine beneath his yellow skin, and the soul of an artist is back of the handle he grinds on his organ.

These virtues are often of genuine appeal to the average run of audiences, whatever their basic weaknesses may be. Antonio, in the play, is a good man. In the prologue he rescues from the fag end of a debauch the mayor of a small town in Pennsylvania and loans him an overcoat and a dollar to wire for funds. Antonio does this partly because he is good and partly because he recognizes the mayor and recalls that the particular town over which he presides is a model town where sometimes they jail organ grinders for playing opera tunes on a Sabbath day.

In the play Antonio comes again to the mayor's town and finds him a different man when sober and in his right senses. A hard, cruel, narrow, unyielding, religious bigot of a man, who is about to cast his servant girl into the streets because she has been seen dancing at a neighboring roadhouse.

Antonio takes the girl's part, and by the hold he has on the hypocritical reformer, highly exasperates that unworthy individual. The mayor even tries to have Tony shot by putting a gun in the hands of an amiable lunatic who is given to taking pot shots with a cap pistol at those he admires. But in the end Tony goes his way without exposing his enemy, largely because he meantime has fallen in love with the little servant girl and she asks him to be kind.

Those who admire Mr. Skinner, and many do, will find him a pleasant evening's entertainer in this one man play, and we would not be in the least surprised if the road tour added much to his fortune. The rôle of the Italian is child's play to one of his fine equipment and it seems a pity he should be wasted on it. But—there you are. We can't write of the stage and run it, too, can we?

Notes About the Theater

LYN HARDING, absent from Chicago since his interesting engagement in 1914 in "The Speckled Band," will be the king and Miss Edith Wynne Matthison the Katherine of Aragon when, late next month, Sir Herbert Tree acts in "King Henry VIII." in the Illinois.

Miss Josephine Clement has been engaged by Maurice Browne as business manager of the Little theater.

Miss Maud Allan, the dancer, is announced for three appearances in the Grand Opera house on the afternoons of Nov. 19, 20, and 21.

Claire Kummer, the song-writer, is the author of "Good Gracious, Annabelle!" a farce. Miss Lola Fisher, who was so effective in "Rio Grande," and Miss May Vokes will be in it.

An operetta by Eysler, composer of "The Blue Paradise," was performed last night for the opening of the season of the Bush Temple theater, where a German-speaking company is again to hold forth.

Arnold Daly is to act in "The Master," a comedy by the author of "The Concert."

"A Good Provider" is a new play, based on one of Fannie Hurst's stories of Jewish character. Miss Harriet Ford, one of the two authors of "The Dummy" and "Mr. Lazarus," has attended to the footlighting.

Miss Laurette Taylor now thinks that one of her husband's plays, "The Harp of Life," is better than another of her husband's plays, "The Wooing of Eve," and, so, will devote her immediate attention to the former.

Richard Bennett is to be the formal star of a new comedy, "Zack," by the author of "Hobson's Choice."

Notes About the Theater

NEW plays of the week in New York will be "Under Sentence," made from Irvin Cobb's stories about John W. Blake, with Miss Janet Beecher and George Nash at the head of the cast; "Betty," a musical comedy from London, with Raymond Hitchcock and Joseph Santley in the chief parts; "Backfire," by Stuart Fox; "Rich Man! Poor Man!" by George Broadhurst; "Hush!" an English comedy by Viola Hearn, with Miss Cathleen Nesbitt, one of the Irish Players, as leader of the actors; "Fixing Sister," with William Hodge, its author, in a part said to be a slight variant of the one he acted in "The Man from Home"; and "Bunker Bean," with the cast which was in last season's run in the Cort.

Miss Hilda Spong is to be Lesbia in William Faversham's mounting of Shaw's "Getting Married," a comedy not yet acted in this country. Mr. Faversham is of the belief that even this lightly-regarded piece—which Shaw wrote in one long act, requiring not less than two and a half hours in performance—is a better stimulus for the new season than his abandoned plan of a repertoire made up of "Hamlet," "Romeo and Juliet," and "Othello."

George Ade is retouching his "Father and the Boys," which W. H. Crane is soon to revive.

George Randolph Chester, author of the Wallingford stories, is to be represented again in the theater by a farce called "Business Before Pleasure."

Harry B. Smith, the Lope de Vega of American playwrights, has written another, "For the Love of Mike!" Jerome Kern has provided the tunes.

Walter Hackett, ex-Chicagoan, and Horace Annesley Vachell are co-authors of a play called "Mr. Jubilee Drax," now on view in London, where both for the last two years have been focused, if not altogether successful, writers for the stage.

MATTERS OF MUSIC.

INEXPLICABLE optimism as to opera in its aspect as a business marks many communications posted hither by the men who pursue fortune in exploiting those who sing for a livelihood. The record runs against their hopes, but the enterprises multiply as the days pass. It may be that the entrepreneurs have run upon philanthropists willing if not eager to range themselves with the Messrs. McCormick and Kahn, the guardian angels of the annual deficit in Chicago and New York. More likely, however, is an explanation based upon the felicitous recuperation in the latter half of last season of Mr. Rabinoff from the ills that beset him and his Boston-Pavlowa venture in the first half. Never before had such a tale of happy reëmergence been told in the annals of selling opera at $5 the seat.

Mr. Rabinoff, having renamed his company the Boston-National, is again in activity, with operas and singers new and old, a Pavlowaless ballet of Muscovite activity, if not nativity, and a tentative promise that the celebrated Ida Rubinstein will journey hither to be his before the season ends.

Trading upon the Rabinoff trademark is a "Boston English" company, and upon the Auditorium's is a "Chicago English" troupe. The irrepressible Aborns, freed of the thrall in which they were held by the cruel millionaires of New York who gilded up their old dollar-a-seat troupe and sought to make it seem worth two dollars, are returning to first principles. A listening banker has been found for the argument that Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Detroit should not be neglected, and is signing checks for an International company which will divide its beneficences among the three communities—one of which, it may be added, is musical enough to pay for its seats.

Another suave impresario reaches our shores to explain that the government of France took its attention from Verdun and the Somme long enough to sign papers, issue permits, and everything whereby the very pick of the Paris opera-houses becomes available for the purposes of a "season" of French works in New York "and other American cities." Just as soon as that dear printer sends the subscription-blanks——!

Quite oblivious of the proved fact that Boston is the least musical city in the world, its antic burgess, Mr. Curley, is making the first page of the newspapers with fervid expressions of his approval of a venture in opera under municipal auspices. Mayor Curley, in view of his esthetic record since taking office, may be trusted to see that Monna Vanna is correctly underdressed, that Melisande is animated by no sense of allure when she drops her wedding ring into the pool, and that the argument is so revised as to make clear that the marriage of Butterfly and Pinkerton is not, in the lingo of the law, consummated.

Wellnigh sure to be fiscally sound is the flyer taken by Mr. Ellis, the careful Bostonian who for a generation and more has looked after the business of his city's fine orchestra. With a small and select roster of celebrities and the Auditorium orchestra under Campanini, he is to give "Il Trovatore" and "Carmen" in a limited number of communities, whose opera-hunger is indicated by the fact that they have the money ready to hand to him when he arrives. Mr. Ellis is practiced enough to know that only underwritten opera is safe opera.

Chicago's chief artistic asset, the Orchestra, will on the afternoon of the 13th inst. go into its twenty-sixth season. Mr. Stock's programs for the first four weeks are made up. The first soloist of the season will be Josef Hofmann, on the 27th, in the third week. Eddy Brown, violinist, will be the soloist of the fourth week. Mrs. Zeisler, Mischa Elman, Efrem Zimbalist, Albert Spalding, Rudolph Ganz, John McCormack, Alma Gluck, and Harold Bauer and Ossip Gabrilowitsch, together, are others listed.

The Messrs. Wessels and Voegeli, in their capacity as business managers of the Orchestra, express apprehension of public confusion in the matter of the series of ten "popular" Thursday evening concerts, starting the 26th inst., in Orchestra hall, owing to the fact that the Commonwealth Edison orchestra also is scheduled for a like-named series in that auditorium. The likelihood of a mix-up seems to me remote and tentative: buyers of seats may be presumed to know just for what they are spending their money.

The Chicago Symphony band, a new organization, will give a concert Saturday night in the Auditorium. The conductor is Francis Amendola. It is sheer charity to assume that the selection of a trade-name for the enterprise was not dictated by regard for the established celebrity of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The program will include a symphony by Sgambati, said to be new in this country; selections from Perosi's oratorio of "The Resurrection of Lazarus," and some matter from Boito's "Mefistofele."

Mr. C. D. Kinsey's scheduled series of Wednesday morning recitals in the Ziegfeld theater will start this week. Miss Christine Miller, contralto, will give a program of modern songs. Among the novelties will be a group called "Water-Colors," made up of four Chinese tone-poems by that gifted Chicago amateur, Mr. John Alden Carpenter. His titles, always interesting and suggestive, are "Highwaymen," "On a Screen," "The Odalisque," and "To a Young Gentleman."

Mr. F. Wight Neumann's prospectus for 1916-17 is lengthy and formidable—and, in some of its items, important. Thus, the great Pablo Casals is in the schedule, and Kreisler. The Kneisels will give three concerts in the Illinois under the Neumann direction. Mr. Neumann's first offering will be Leopold Godowsky, the afternoon of the 15th inst., in the Blackstone theater.

The titles, in order, are: "Canada: From Coast to Coast," "The Canadian Rockies," "Imperial Britain," "The German Fatherland," and "La Belle France." None of these, it is explained, deals with territory previously covered by Mr. Holmes in his travelogues.

The Selig-Tribune—Semi-Weekly

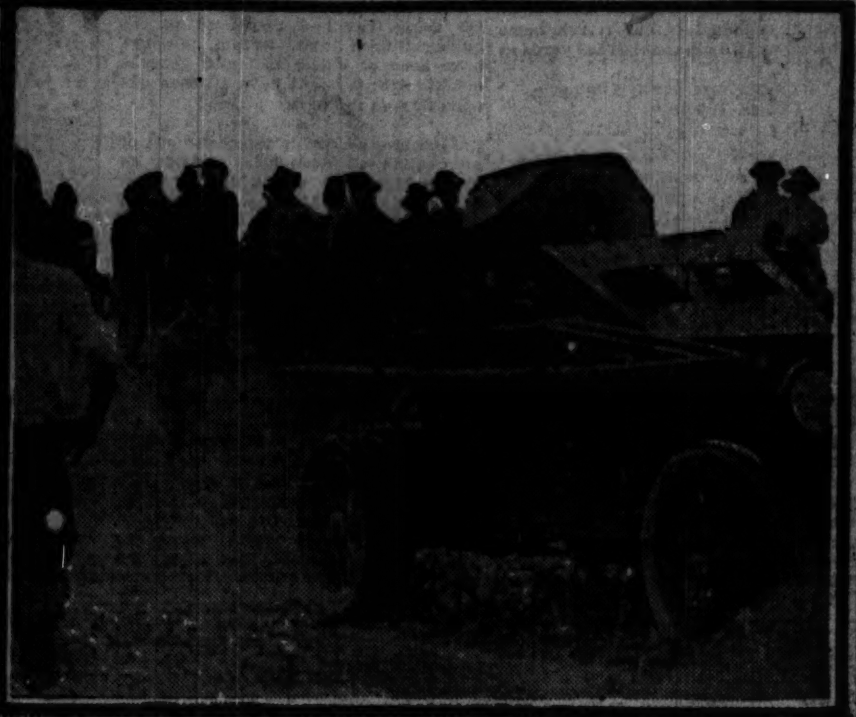
The World's Greatest News Film.

In the two issues this week are shown:

Number 78

WHAT'S BEEN DONE TO VERDUN.

Verdun—before and after! Verdun before the bombardment by the Germans—beautiful, peaceful. Verdun after the tons of steel had crashed into its vitals. These are the scenes shown you in this issue.



ARMORED CAR MAKES TESTS.

An armored automobile, massive, heavy, gaunt, and formidable appearing, took some strenuous tests before American and foreign military representatives, and came through nobly. "Only give her a wheel hold and she's all right," commented an interested observer.

Number 79

BIGGEST PARADE SINCE CIVIL WAR.

No matter how small a squad may be you never witness marching soldiers without a thrill. Imagine how you'll feel when you'll see on pictorial 26,000 United States soldiers, who at El Paso, Texas, formed the largest all military parade since the Civil war.

EVER ATTEND A PAPOOSE CONGRESS?

If not, here's your chance, for on the Nabobs Indian reservation near San Jacinto, Cal., the All-America Papoose congress was held and no reason at all why you shouldn't see the doings. The papooses are willing.

LATEST NEWS FROM MOVIE LAND

RETURNS TO THE UNIVERSAL.

THAT they often return again to their old loves has been proved again by Miss Leah Baird, who has rejoined the Universal company and will be featured in productions made at the Pacific coast studios.

It is said that Maurice, senior partner of the firm of Maurice and Florence Walton, soon to be featured in the Famous Players production, "The Quest of Life," speaks seven languages. Almost as many as he dances in.

Fritzi Brunette and Director William Robert Daly have severed their connection with the Selig company.

The children shoppers of Los Angeles had a treat the other day when a children's afternoon was given them at one of the department stores and the little screen star, Doris Baker, who was guest of honor, appeared and gave a talk to them, afterwards joining them in games and refreshments.

Any friend of Charles Clary who mentions gold mines to him is a friend no longer—Mr. Clary having recently been stung.

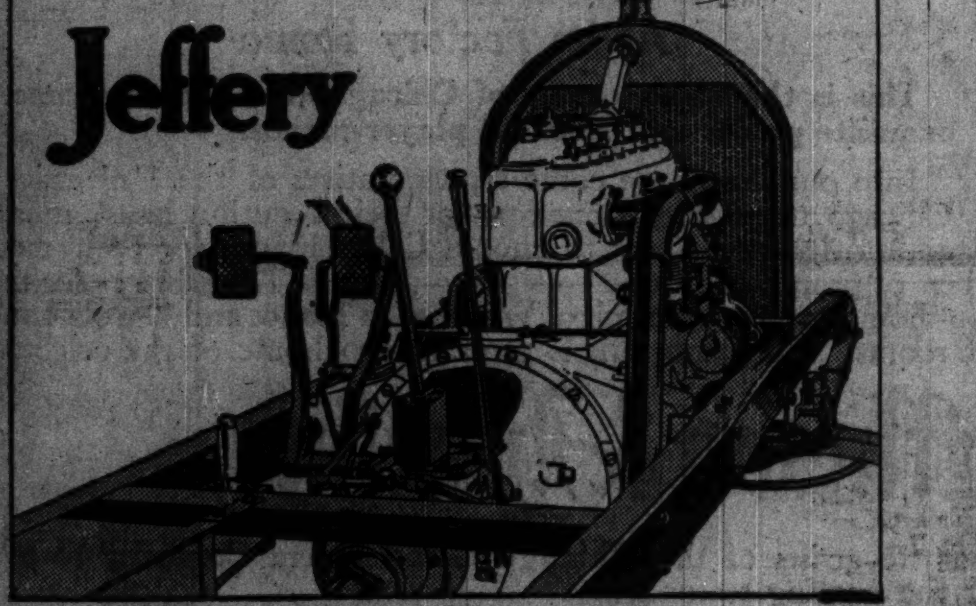
Helen Gibson is said to have been seriously injured while riding a running horse last week for a picture. She is Kalem's railroad girl, you know.

Ruth Stonehouse has commenced work on a single reel comedy-drama for the "Mary Ann" series.

Myrtle Stedman is acting with Sessue Hayakawa and Tsuri Aoki.

Oliver Morosco denies that he said in a recent interview that the motion picture is doomed. Says he: "At no time did I intend to be quoted as saying that the high class picture or the worthy picture was on the decline. I said that there will be a place and a demand for photoplays containing good stories, good acting, fine production, and all that goes to make a good picture, and it will be the companies and producers capable of giving these pictures that will survive."

Sidney Olcott has resigned from the Famous Players directorial staff.



Jeffery

The Care-Free Four

Over a thousand contented Chicago owners are telling the inside story of the famous Jeffery Four.

Yes, the inside story, because the secret of this car's goodness is under the hood. Owners call it the Care-free Four; so little mechanical care does its motor require.

Big mileage and hard usage with ridiculously low repair and overhaulage costs—these are common as bread and butter with the Four.

But forget generalities. Take the case of S. E. Silverman, Chicago real estate expert in Cook County's employ.

Mr. Silverman bought his Four in February, drove it 11,000 miles on the same set of Goodyear tires and spent less than ten dollars since then for repair bills. Ask him yourself.

Take Mr. H. J. Bonney, 860 Cass Street. In his own words—"I've driven my Jeffery 18,000 miles and it hasn't cost me a dime for mechanical repairs." Ask Mr. Bonney!

There you are. There are hundreds of other instances where the Jeffery Four has proved itself the care-free car.

And its wonderful motor, with extra large bearings and oversized crankshaft, is the big reason behind such owner-satisfaction.

On account of this motor it is a great service-buy—this famous Four. You can secure a quick delivery to take advantage of this fine Autumn touring weather.

Telephone Calumet 4631 for demonstration appointment. Here are the prices—Seven-Passenger Touring Model, $1095; Roadster, $1065, and Sedan, $1260. F. O. B. Kenosha.

Pslams of Life

by J. P. McEvoy

A FELLER NEVER CARES ABOUT THE OTHER FELLER'S KID.

When loving fathers rush to me with high lights in their glims
And prattle of their cunning hers and supercunning hims,
How booful lil Squijums is a fool for orange juice,
How she can hold her head straight up and warble like Carus',
How soon she learned her toeses are impervious to munchin'—
When on her back how cutely she rolls over on her luncheon—
O when a loony father comes and blabbers thus to me
I counter with a lecture on my cunning progenee!
Why shouldn't I ignore the tricks his little shaver did?
A feller never cares about the other feller's kid!

When youthful fathers come to me with chests of wondrous size
And tell me what their offspring did I do not feign surprise,
I do not arch my brows a bit, I do not catch my breath,
The crudest thing my kiddy does has got 'em skinned to death!
I do not even listen as they strum the golden strings—
I may say "Yes?" or "Ain't that nice!" or other friendly things;
A smile of sweet benevolence may decorate my dial,
But just the same my innards may be coming to a "bile."
Why should I get excited over what his young 'un did?
A feller never cares about the other feller's kid!

You protoplasmic papas with the flabbergasting geeks,
I've listened to your gibber now for many weary weeks.
You may have thought you stunned me with the wonders you unveiled
When I was merely hatching up a scheme to have you jailed;
You may have thought I listened when you told me of your brat—
But I was merely hankering to swat you on the slat!
O save your blather while you may, it isn't any use—
You bull for your bambino, but I pull for my papoose—
You'll never get a rise from me on what your snoodles did,
For a feller never cares about the other feller's kids!

AN' WHEN I GET HOME HE-ER-ER!!

I CAUGHT A GLIMPSE OF BUCK McCOMB, OUR NEW COOK, AND HE SEEMED TO BE HAPPY ABOUT SOMETHING

LIEUTENANT GALE was not an easy drill master at any stage of the campaign. He had a sharp way of giving commands and sharp eyes for detecting any fault in complying with his orders. It was one of those sizzling sort of mornings down there in San Antone and he had begun early to put G company through a "manual of arms" grilling.

"There are still some of you men who place the forefinger faultily against the sight leaf of your piece," snapped the lieutenant. "Now this time I'm going to watch closely for those who fail to do it properly and the corporals will see that the offenders are given a full hour's drill on their time off. Now then: 'Present, h-arms!'"

Well, he caught me. My forefinger happened to grasp my cannon at least an eighth of an inch off. Some corporal had mistaught me in the beginning and it is always hard to unlearn a thing. Lieut. Gale called out my name sharply and I knew I was the victim. The sides of my mouth began to sag. There were a lot of things I had planned to do during my hour off that day. I knew what it meant to go over and over the thing in the hot sun, to—

From the center of the drill grounds a whistle blew. The lieutenant told us we could rest for a minute, but we should remember that "rest" meant keeping one foot in place. The lieutenant went over to answer what I learned was "officer's call" and when he came back he gave orders for our speedy return to our company street. I noticed that all the other companies were returning at the same time. There was surely something doing when our three hours of drill could be interrupted.

Passing our mess hall at the edge of our company street I caught a glimpse of Buck McComb, our new cook, and he seemed to be happy about something. I figured he had heard something ahead of us. Buck had recently left his place in the ranks to become our cook—not because he was a cook, but because the job paid him $15 more a month to send home to his wife. I hadn't seen Buck smile for so long that I was half prepared for what was coming even before Capt. Hoppe cautioned us against cheering over the order he was about to give. But some of the other companies had already started to cheer. To where our squad stood, at the far end of the line, the captain's voice came faintly:

"The orders are that we will entrain or rather be ready to entrain at 6 o'clock tonight. That means to fill in the tent trenches that you dug yesterday, roll your blankets, and be ready to move. Don't ask me where we're going; I don't know any more about it than you do."

But we knew. At least we thought we knew. Maybe the wish was father to the "hunch," but by the time we had finished falling out of ranks we all had it "Springfield or Chi." A few figured we were going to some point on the border, but there weren't many crepe hangers.

"It's home, boys, home, it's home we ought to be," sang Jack Mesiner, and the song continued popular while we started to undo a lot of our work of the few days previous.

But we didn't leave that night at 6 o'clock. Our tents down, we flopped on the ground when night came and laid our close cropped heads against our blanket rolls until morning. Capt. Moss of the hospital corps had ordered the close cropped heads. He said that the "golden locks Sadie loved so well" were equally loved by the typhus carrying Mexican flea.

We might just as well have had our tents up all night, because we didn't pull out until the next afternoon. Once, as we were actually starting to whiz back through Texas, the train backed up a bit for some sort of switching maneuver and Private Forrest reached out the window to grab hold of a telephone pole so that we wouldn't go back any farther. One fellow in Company H held a compass in his hand when the engine started to chug. He said he was going to make damn sure that the train was headed in a northeasterly direction. In fact, none of us felt real confident of our return home until we woke up in the railroad yards at Springfield:

"By thy rivers, gently flowing,
Illinois, Illinois."

Do you know there was not a hellevalot of patriotic enthusiasm during our return across the country? No conquering hero stuff about it at all. A traveling man explained to a farmer on a depot platform at one of the Oklahoma towns that we were a "bunch of $15 a month men," and he finished the explanation with a yawn.

It wasn't a bit as if we had been away to war. I do remember, though, a little town in Missouri. Its name was Mokane. We hit it in the middle of a lazy Sunday afternoon, and within ten minutes after the train stopped the two blocks of Main street that ran from the depot to the Methodist Episcopal church were alive with khaki. We had about an hour there, and during that time the baby carriages were brought to a standstill on the plank sidewalks, the old timers in front of the postoffice gave us the prolonged squint, and the restaurant did a State street business.

I remember particularly one fellow of about 35 who stood, shirt sleeved, in front of the harness shop watching us go through our "physical drill with arms." We had gotten so we could go through the drill with considerable class, and I saw him motion impatiently to his three offspring beside him to be quiet, while he followed our movements with tightly drawn lips and now and then a sympathetic jerk of his arms. He had probably never had any touch of military life himself, born and bred as he had been there in Mokane, but I figured there was blood in his veins that had responded to the bugle call back in '61. In fact, he might have been of officer material. Maybe not, though; it might have all been imagination on my part.

Of course, we couldn't expect much of an ovation at Springfield, arriving as we did before the cool September morn had even dawned. The saloons had barely opened. A fellow did come out from one of the saloons and remark, "Well, I see you're back," but that was all.

But the rustling oak leaves in the trees out at Camp Lincoln—they welcomed us. You could hear them whisper as we unslung our packs in their shade:

"By thy gentle rivers flowing,
Illinois, Illinois."

We were back in a different atmosphere than we had known in Texas. The sky had a different color. We trampled blue grass instead of gumbo. Goldenrod greeted us instead of cactus. Beyond the parade ground fence the yellowed corn rustled, and along the vines that trailed the fence were purpling grapes. We had been gone quite a while, at that. And again we pitched our tents, but it wasn't long before we took them down again. It wasn't long before we were turning in our government equipment, and the war—the "war" was over.

HE FOLLOWED OUR MOVEMENTS WITH NOW AND THEN A SYMPATHETIC JERK OF HIS ARMS

And I never did have to put in that extra hour of drill.

AN OLD FURNITURE SECRET

How a Famous Furniture House Cleans and Beautifies Fine Pianos

The old established house of Tobey [Chicago & New York], makers of fine furniture, uses a secret shop formula for cleaning and beautifying the rich finishes of all furniture they make.

This formula is now offered to the world in the form of Tobey Polish. Already it is being used in the finest homes throughout the country. It is more than a furniture polish. It restores the original finish by removing all dirt and blemishes. Cleans off dirt and grease much more easily than soap and water. Wipes off dry. Leaves no oily film or veneer. Does not dry or crack the finest finish, but renews the elasticity of the varnish.

Further advantages are the ease and speed with which it works. Results are instantaneous. No hard work, no hard rubbing. After the furniture and woodwork have been cleaned with Tobey Polish, a little used on the dust cloth will keep everything looking new from day to day. Try it on any article of furniture from a chair to a piano. There is nothing like it for cleaning and preserving the finish of automobile bodies. Gives a beautiful polish that will not collect dust.

Don't wash fine varnished surfaces. Don't use "polishes" that shine today and mar tomorrow. Try Tobey Polish—the same old secret formula used by a famous furniture house. Bottles 25c and 50c; quart jugs, $1.—Adv.

Royalty

is above all things human, loving enjoyment as do you and I, but better able to follow every new appeal.

Scripps-Booth

King Alfonso, being under his royal insignia but a gentleman-driver, with a tasteful appreciation of Best Things, gets the same pride and enjoyment out of his Scripps-Booth that you do. He enjoys it for what it is, and for its beauty which reflects his station.

Its comfort appeals to him, and the fact that he can drive it himself without losing dignity. You will find Scripps-Booth in nearly every Royal garage in Europe outside of the enclosed war zone.

Scripps-Booth does business in a way that appeals. It moves with the least effort, meaning economy; it is light-fingered in the handling, light-footed in the going, quick, lithe and pliable, with a never-failing store of smooth-flowing power.

That it is the one American car whose prestige is as great abroad as at home, is impressive, but not surprising. It appeals to Those Who Know, for it in turn is sure of its own ground.

Scripps-Booth appeals to Royalty as royalty appeals to Scripps-Booth, adding each to the prestige of the other.

Choose Your Piano
At Its Factory Home

This is the piano center of Chicago—the factory home of exquisite pianos and splendid player-pianos.

Into our store have come representatives of the University of Chicago to procure Conovers for their beautiful halls; musical authorities from Gary to choose Cable Pianos for their model schools; faculty members of prominent music colleges to purchase Kingsburys for their studios, and hundreds of home-makers in search of Wellington Pianos and Carola Inner-Players for their music rooms. Then too, this is the Chicago home of the celebrated and to us have come the artists of the Chicago Grand Opera Company to select Mason & Hamlins for the coming season.

No where else can you exchange your piano money for so great a measure of piano quality—protected quality, for the Cable guarantee is backed by six million dollars in resources. But your selection MUST be made at once. Our factories have orders now in hand for every instrument it will be possible for them to produce for weeks to come. Though our new fall stock is unusually complete NOW, it is certain that shortly many styles will not be obtainable.

We urge you to call NOW and make your choice at the first possible opportunity. As an added inducement, some few instruments overlooked during our Alteration Sale, will be disposed of this week at unusually attractive figures.

MASON & HAMLIN

Contrary to common knowledge, Mason & Hamlins may be rented or bought on our Easy Payment Plan. Those in search of a bargain will be keenly interested this week in a used $600 Mason & Hamlin Upright in mahogany at $400, and a $950 Mason & Hamlin concert used Grand at $750. Easy Terms.

INNER-PLAYER SPECIALS

We have on our floors a number of players in discontinued case styles of which we are especially anxious to dispose. They are splendid instruments and absolutely guaranteed, but the incoming of our new models induces us to offer our $725 Kingsbury Player at $525 and our $825 Cable Player at $565, a clear saving of $260. Other players $395 up. Easy Terms.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

"Motor flexibility is coming to greater prominence each year. There is a growing demand on the part of buyers for greater range of ability on high gear. In talking with salesmen I find that the question 'How slowly will the car run on high' is getting as much attention as 'Will it climb this hill on high,'" says Don T. Hastings, consulting engineer of the Empire Automobile company. "There are plenty of good reasons for such requests from prospective buyers. In recent years the amount of traffic on streets in larger cities has grown so enormously that in the business sections at least the driver is forced to slow down almost continuously. Often when streets are divided it is absolutely necessary to trail along behind some horse drawn vehicle for a block or more. There is real satisfaction in being able to do this trailing without dropping down into second or low gear."

One of the well known motor car manufacturers has just enlarged, remodeled, and newly decorated its salesrooms on automobile row—the Crow-Elkhart Sales company at 2029 Michigan boulevard. It has on display and promises immediate deliveries of two new models, Crow-Elkhart "35," a lightweight five passenger touring car at $795, and the Clover Leaf three passenger roadster at $825. One of the unique sales inducements is that the buyer is offered a choice of special body colors and the owner can have a color that will match his latest wearing apparel or milady can select a body color which will harmonize with her general color scheme or hair.

According to Thomas J. Hay, local Chandler distributor, the foreign demand for Chandler cars has increased so greatly in the last season that W. S. M. Mead, vice president in charge of exports, has found it imperative to move to a larger office and to engage C. S. Levitt, an expert traffic manager, to assist him in handling the business.

Put on the market only three months ago, the H. R. Neutralock, sold by the H. R. Manufacturing company, 1926 Wabash avenue, has had a phenomenal sale for a new product, probably because there is a great demand for such a device to protect automobiles from the army of motor car thieves now running wild in this country. The Neutralock fits on the gear shifting lever and locks the transmission in neutral.

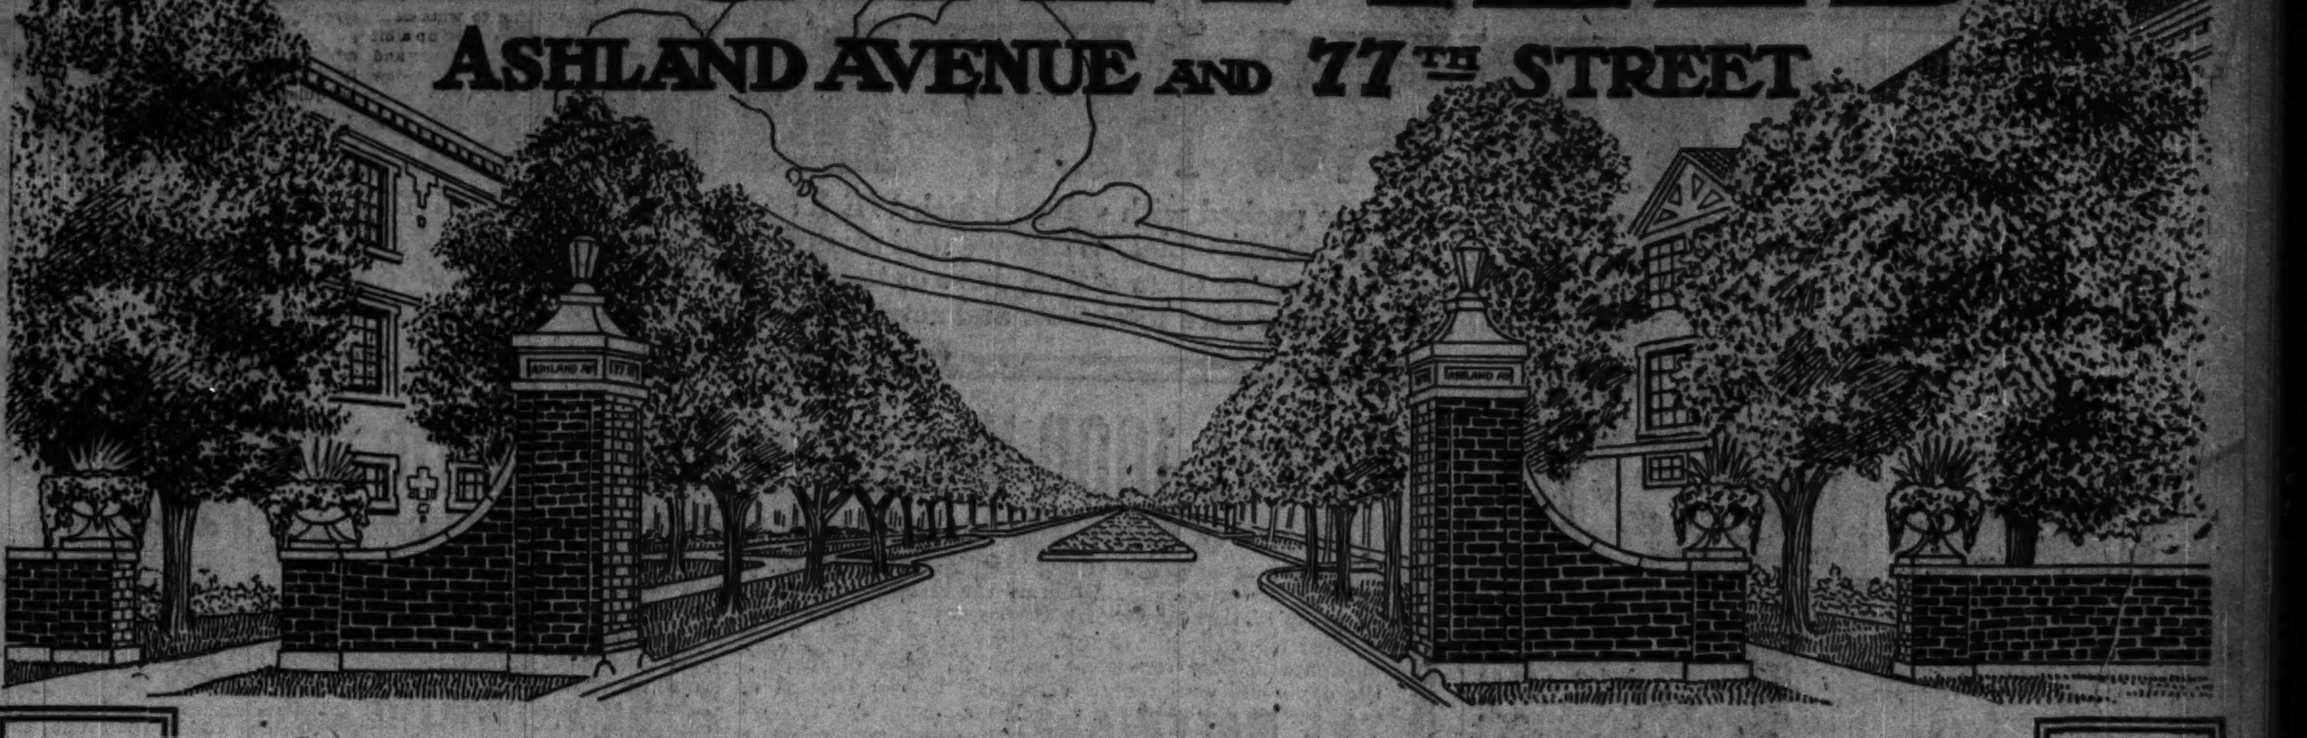
"ENGLEFIELD"

ASHLAND AVENUE AND 77TH STREET



Entrance Gateway and Parking System for 77th St. Designed for Englefield by Mr. E. H. Bennett of the Chicago Plan Commission. Note: Gateway Completed. Work Under Way to Carry Out the Artist's Conception, Pictured Above.

LAST CALL FOR ENGLEFIELD—last chance to buy property at one-half its real value! To-day we stop our talk and concentrate our efforts on our improvement work. While building one of the beauty spots of the South Side, let us at the same time lay the foundation of your independence. For the past few years hundreds of people have been heard to make substantially the following statement:

"Sorry I didn't have sense enough to buy from you at Ravenswood, where values have made such a phenomenal increase.' In a little while you will hear hundreds say the same thing about Englefield. If you have been dilly-dallying, if you have been putting off the vital home question—determine this very day to go to Englefield and become rent free and financially independent.

Do not delay. Some opportunities do not recur. Remember what happened two years ago in our Chatham Fields property—another gateway entrance similar to the one above was pictured in "The Tribune." 3,000 people in one day responded to the call of a model South Side home center. The greatest real estate sale in the United States resulted. The actual Chatham Fields of today is rapidly growing in beauty—surpassing the artist's conception. History will repeat at Englefield.

Englefield, backed by the Harmon Service which "stays by" their properties helping them to build up—is bound to have a wonderful future. Englefield has fine trolley service, also a suburban train service—20 minutes from Dearborn St. Station, with no delays caused by crossing drawbridges. This is a combination service which only the most favored sections of the city have, and meets our "Safety First" requirement in selecting property for home development. Whether you buy for home or investment, adequate transit possibilities are a first requisite.

Our properties build up. Our architects' prize contest, just completed has given us a selection of original, artistic designs for homes costing about $3,000, which are at the disposal of the Englefield home builder. That means that a number of Chicago architects have contributed their share in developing Englefield into a modern Englewood. Englefield will be distinctive. Charming homes in a setting of trees and flowers and shrubs in a district right in the path of Chicago's greatest growth will create the model home community of the great South Side.

Last Call for Englefield

Lots $390 to $840—$10 Down, $7 to $10 Monthly. Improvements, Maintenance Fund, Protective Restrictions. $20,000 in Rewards to Early Builders. Free Deed in Case of Death or Money Returned with 6% Interest. Both Train and Trolley Service. Both Title Insurance Policy and Abstract Free.

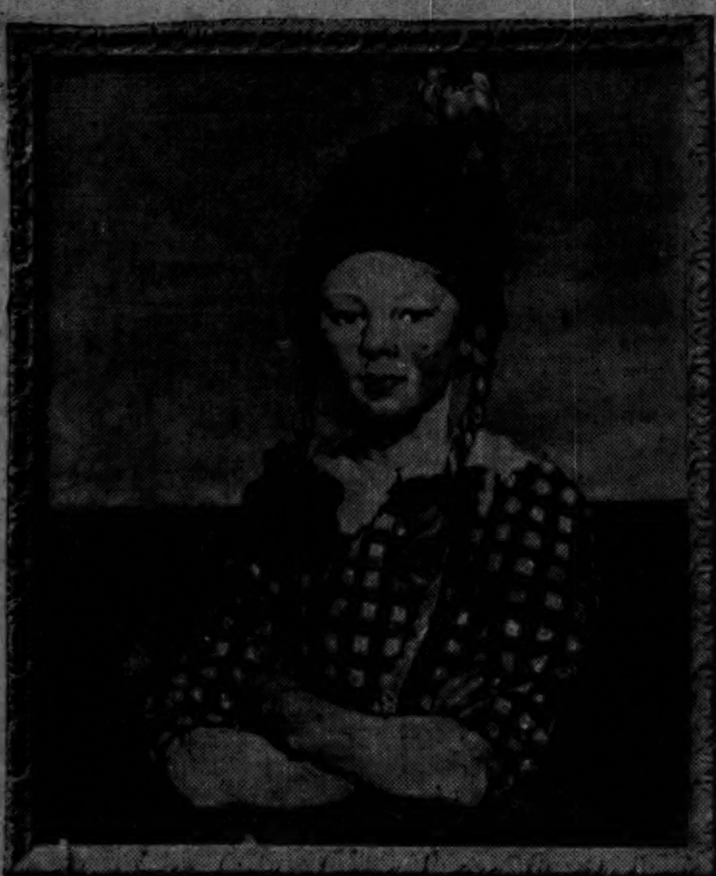
ART

by Louise James Bargelt



"Jane Connard" by Phillip Connard In the British Exhibit, Art Institute

IN November, besides the American oil paintings exhibit and the twenty-fourth annual exhibit of China by the Atlan Ceramic club, there is under contemplation the National Sculpture society exhibition. This exhibition, which is in Buffalo now, numbers among its representatives only one artist from Chicago. This is Miss Agnes Fromen, whose "Drinking Fountain" is in the Art institute. She has two pieces of work in the exhibit, one of them called the "Indian," which was on display at the San Francisco fair.

Guy Rose's seven or eight paintings which are now hanging in one of the east halls of the institute are pleasingly and moderately modern works. One especially attractive picture is that of the woman in green, with pale blonde hair, who is sitting studying herself in a mirror. One example of his landscape work which is slightly impressionistic is that of a reflection of green shrubbery reflected in the water.

Rehung, too, are Hopkinson Smith's charcoal sketches of London—smokey, enormous, infinite sided London. Especially strong is the Covent Garden, Fleet street and St. Paul's, and Fleet street from Cock tavern.

Many preparations are being made now for the exhibit of applied arts, which opens in the new building of the institute on Oct. 12. That this exhibit, which is the fifteenth to be held in Chicago, is to be the finest of any given previously seems to be a proved fact by now. It will be larger and more representative of a widely carrying number of subjects than ever before.

OCTOBER

WILD asters bloom by the side of the scarlet maple. The field is yellow with golden rod and brown with dried grasses. Aspens and beech rustle yellow leaves in the west wind. Saplings of oak have bronzed or browned their foliage.

Vesper sparrows billow in their flight over fields of bracken and dried helianthus. Chickadees and juncoes are in the thickets. The hermit thrush is in the fallen leaves. Golden winged flickers assemble in diffident gregariousness, for passage.

A nip of frost at night, a flash of the northern lights, Jupiter well up in the sky as Arcturus goes down in the west; in the morning white frost on wood pile and path. Gray days when a flight of mallards, arising out of the wild rice, goes west against a slate colored sky into a void of faraway loneliness; days of white sunlight when the ducks, by twos or fives, fly west against the crimson and purple of sundown.

The day, gray or white, with a close of crimson and purple or with one of darkening clouds, with rain pelting the roof or with Jupiter showing in through an east window, brings, at its end, an appetent creature to the fire and reading lamp and the odor of flesh pots. For an October evening good sweet cabbage and salt pork and a book wherein folk do much in a simple fashion and hear the north wind a great deal.

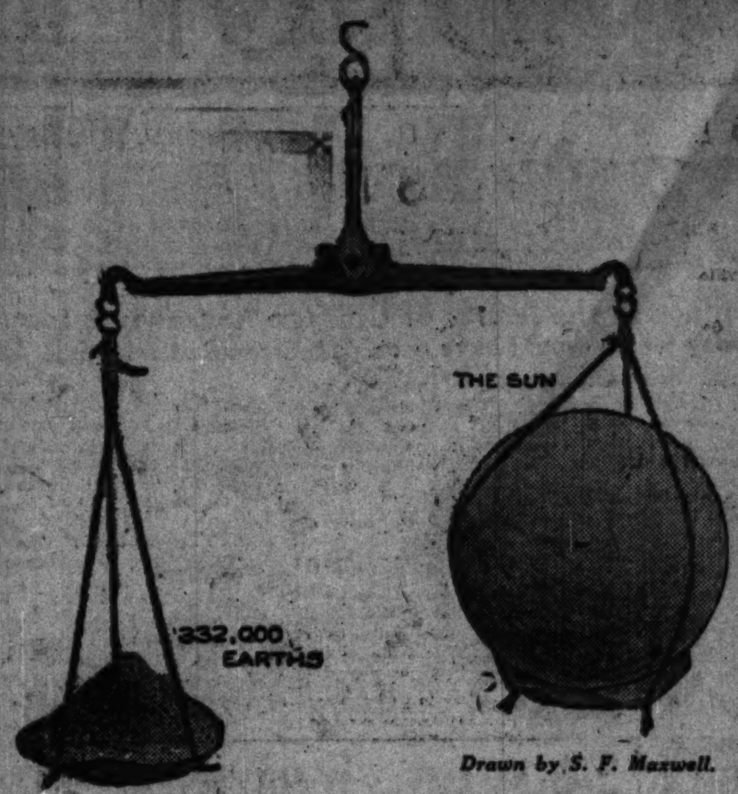
ASTRONOMY

by CLIFFORD RAYMOND



Drawn by S. F. Maxwell.

RELATIVE WEIGHT OF EARTH AND SUN.

"WEIGHING" A SUN.

THE attempt to ascertain the mass of a star whose distance from the earth can be expressed only in light years might seem to be a preposterous invasion of the impossible. Science accomplishes it and suns are "weighed." The law of gravitation is the scales.

It was known that planets did not move around our sun in circles but in ellipses. Their distance from the sun varies. Their speed also varies. The three planetary laws of Kepler, which were the product merely of observation, are that a planet moves in an ellipse, that it moves at a speed changing as its distance from the sun changes in the elliptical orbit, and that there is a relation between the average distance of a planet from the sun and the period it requires to make a revolution about the sun.

Kepler, who formulated these laws—here merely indicated and not stated—did not know why they were laws. His observations revealed that planets followed them. Science at that time did not know why. Newton found the cause. It was gravitation. The laws not only were true. They had to be true.

A body moving in space would go in a straight line if there were no interference with its movement. Gravitation is the interference. It is the control which produces the planetary relations observed by Kepler, and it is a control as supreme in space beyond our system as it is within it.

In a few months Sirius, the brightest star we see, will arise early in the evening. Now it comes up after midnight, but we shall take it to illustrate the "weighing" of a sun because of interesting factors in the problem.

Sirius has a velocity of about 1,000 miles a moment. If that motion were subjected to no interference it would remain unchanged. In fact it is irregular. Sirius does not move uniformly. The cause of the disturbance was not known when the irregularity was discovered, but it was known that there must be a disturber.

Another great body, unseen, was near Sirius. The derangement in the movement of the bright sun was caused by the unseen star. The path of the invisible body was ascertained by the irregularities in the movement of Sirius and the period of its revolution about Sirius was computed. Then the companion star was detected and its distance from Sirius was determined, being taken as twenty-one times the distance of the earth from the sun.

Then comparisons became possible and the laws could be applied. If a body revolving around our sun were as far from the sun as the companion was from Sirius, it would require about ninety-nine years to make a revoluttion around the sun. The planet Uranus, nineteen times as far from the sun as the earth, takes eighty-four years. A body twenty-one times as far would take ninety-nine years. Kepler's laws prove that.

The companion of Sirius revolved about Sirius in fifty-two years, as nearly as could be computed, by not quite perfect observation. Therefore its speed must be much greater than that of Uranus, its centrifugal force greater and, therefore, the mass of Sirius greater than the mass of our sun.

A greater degree of attraction was needed to hold this rapidly moving companion; attraction, power and mass being in relation. By computations, based upon these principles, it was ascertained that the mass of Sirius was three and one-half times that of our sun, and Sirius was "weighed."

MOTORS AND MOTORCYCLES

Questions and Answers

By High Speed

Owing to the large volume of inquiries for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Only routes and answers to questions of general interest will be published.

I often drive between Chicago and South Bend and Chicago and Indianapolis and have been considerably puzzled over the various markings on the telephone poles. I am particularly curious to know the meanings of "C-F" and "V-J." I have made inquiries along the routes and nobody seems to know. High Speed has helped me out a whole lot in the past and I am going to put his knowledge to the test in this case.

PUZZLED TOURIST, Chicago.

The enterprising business men of Frankfort, Ill., realizing the importance and value of marked routes, painted helpful characters on the telephone poles of two routes. One of these routes starts at One Hundred and Nineteenth street and Western avenu, Chicago, and runs south in Western avenue to Broadway, Blue Island, at which point it turns west and then south to Frankfort, and connects with the Lincoln highway. This route is marked with black letters on a white background. The letters are C.-F., meaning Chicago to Frankfort. As this route passes the Midlothian Country club and also the road that runs to the Cook county poor farm at Oak Forest, and as it has five confusing turns within two miles of Blue Island, the value of the markings is apparent. The second route also is marked with black letters on a white background. The letters V.-J. mean Valparaiso to Joliet. This road and the Lincoln highway are the same for a great portion of the distance. As most motorists know, the Lincoln highway is marked with red, white, and blue bands, bearing the letter L.

About one year ago I made a trip to Madison, Wis., going and returning via Lake Geneva. Now I want to go to Madison again and would prefer a different route. Will you please map one out for me?

J. S. R., Chicago.

Will you be so kind as to furnish me with the best route from Highland Park to Milwaukee and from there to Madison, Wis.?

A. E., Benton Harbor, Mich.

Take the Green Bay road and go north through Corliss and Franksville to Milwaukee, 92 miles; then go through Brookfield, Waukesha, Delafield, Johnson's Creek, Lake Mills, and Vilas to Madison, 81.8 miles.

I am planning an automobile tour from Racine to Buffalo and return and would like to make stops at Niles and Jackson, Mich. Please furnish me with the most advisable route.

E. G. L. A., Racine, Wis.

Chicago, 67.1 miles; South Chicago, Hammond, Gary, Michigan City, South Bend, 97.5 miles; Niles, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Jackson, Ann Arbor, Detroit, 208.6 miles; Toledo, 59.8 miles; Cleveland, 120.1 miles; Erie, 102 miles; Buffalo, 89.2 miles.

In your issue of Sept. 24 you state that Illinois has 208,000 motor cars registered, although I have seen numbers above 282,000. Will you kindly explain the discrepancy?

J. T. C., Chicago.

If you will refer to the article in question you will find that the figures given were for the period between Jan. 1, 1916, and June 30, 1916. The work of compiling automobile registration figures is a vast one, and the statisticians issue complete tables twice each year. As a matter of fact, it is quite likely there are close to 240,000 licensed cars in Illinois today.

Why are automobile tires usually made the same size for both front and rear wheels? I have heard that it is a good plan to have two sizes, with the larger ones on the rear. What is your opinion?

FAN, Chicago.

It is common practice to make the front and rear tires the same size on most American cars because there is little difference possible between front and rear shoes with the average weight distribution. If two different sizes of tires are used, one must carry two spare casings and two different sizes of inner tubes to make replacements in case of punctures or blowouts. Then again, there is no way of equalizing the wear on the tires. If the casings are the same size, the front tires may be used to replace the weaker rear shoes, which always receive the hardest wear. Then when new tires are purchased, the old tires should be transferred from rear to front. I would not advise you to use two sizes of tires on your car.

Will you please publish the best route for one to take in going from Janesville, Wis to Newark, O.?

A. P. LOVEJOY, Janesville, Wis.

News and Gossip of the Auto Trade

The new Roamer, which has been christened the American Rolls-Royce, will have a coming out party this week, eight models of one of the most individual cars seen on the streets of Chicago this year being shown in the Elizabethan room of the Congress hotel. The Roamer, manufactured by the Barley Motor Car company of Streator, is a most attractive job, having the graceful lines, rich finish, and smart fitments that have made the automobiles of Europe cars of great distinction. The specifications include a Roamer-Rutenber six cylinder motor, Bosch magneto, Roamer-Stromberg carburetor, Bijur starting and lighting system, Warner speedometer and electric clock, Stewart-Warner warning signal, Houk wire wheels, Goodrich black tread tires, and Boyce motometer. The car sells for $1,850 and looks like value received.

A new product, which, its manufacturer claims, will increase the efficiency of gasoline and eliminate carbon in the motor, thereby reducing the maintenance cost of the car, is the new fuel tablet known as "Inajiffi." This article has been tested in all forms of cars and has been recommended highly by its users. It is handled in Chicago by the J. B. Rush company, located in the Consumers building. A liberal tr'al offer is made, with a money back clause if the article fails to accord satisfaction. It also is absolutely guaranteed against injuring a motor.

"The complete success of all year car show week is, in its broadest sense, but another demonstration of the close attention paid by laymen to the development of the automobile," says H. P. Branstetter of the KisselKar. "To this keen general interest in the details of automobile building is attributable the marvelous advance of the industry, an advance not paralleled in any other line of American business enterprise. It has spurred our manufacturers to efforts that have put the United States far to the fore among car builders of the world. To say that the average American has much more than a superficial idea of cars is the exact truth. They not only know the prominent ones in the abstract, but each in its concrete self."

PAIGE

The Standard of Value and Quality

Can YOU Drive 100 Miles An Hour In YOUR Car?

The Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company designs, builds, advertises and sells nothing but genuine stock models.

We have refused to build racing cars. We have refused to change the gear ratios in our stock models so that purely superficial "records" might be established on the hill or track.

We have refused to court notoriety through sensational "stunts" which might capture the public imagination for a few brief hours—but prove absolutely nothing so far as the essential quality of our product is concerned.

In short, we have refused to resort to expedients of any kind. From the very beginning, it has been our purpose to build thoroughly reliable, thoroughly serviceable automobiles—and we have attended strictly "to our knitting."

"A Hundred Miles an Hour"

Every engineer knows that we—or any other manufacturer of high grade cars—can take a stock car, strip the chassis, change the gear ratio, "tune it up," and drive it 100 miles an hour on the track. That would be a simple task—but an absolutely profitless one.

Such a car would have to be a specially prepared "freak" model. It would have to be a "speedster"—pure and simple. And, unless we are deliberately willing to misrepresent, we could not advertise it as a genuine Paige stock model.

In other words—to put it in plainest terms—we advertise precisely what we have to sell. We sell precisely what we have to advertise.

If we claim a maximum speed of a mile-a-minute, we mean that your Paige—any man's Paige—will travel that fast.

As you very well know, some manufacturers are claiming truly startling "records of performance" for their cars. Beyond doubt these records have actually been established. But were they stock model records? Were they made by the same standard car that you must purchase from a local dealer?

Get the Real Facts

Ask an owner. Find out if he can duplicate those "performances." See if he can turn up 100 miles per hour—or ninety—or eighty—or even a mild, conservative seventy-five.

If not—what's the use of all this misleading prattle? It's a very bad thing for the motor car industry as a whole and very unfair treatment of the prospective buyer as an individual.

No—the Paige refuses to employ any such advertising and selling methods.

On the other hand, here is what the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company actually DOES.

We design, build, advertise and sell motor cars to run twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week and fifty-two weeks in the year.

We believe that a speed of a mile-a-minute is the maximum that can be secured without shortening the life of the car, without ruinous repair bills, without wanton waste of gasoline and oil.

We give you the best design, the best materials, the best workmanship and the guarantee of a name—the Paige name—unexcelled for quality and value in the motor car industry. That is Paige Policy.

Service Always—Everywhere

And—wherever you buy a Paige, wherever you drive a Paige—your Paige is kept running. That is Paige Character and Paige Service.

The Paige challenges no competing cars to Speed Tests.

We believe that such tests are inconclusive, deceptive, worthless.

But the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company does herewith post a challenge—a sweeping and bona fide challenge.

A Real Contest

We challenge any motor car manufacturer in the world to produce a car—within three hundred dollars of the Paige price—of better design, better materials, better engineering practice than the Paige.

We challenge any motor car manufacturer to produce a car—within three hundred dollars of the Paige price—that offers more consistent performance, on hill or highway or in heavy traffic, than the Paige.

Or, a car which offers AS MUCH Dependability, Stamina, Genuine Power and All 'Round Comfort as the Paige offers.

We challenge any motor car manufacturer in the world to produce a car—within three hundred dollars of the Paige price—that offers the Gentleman Driver and Owner AS MUCH luxurious, reliable and uninterrupted motoring under all conceivable motoring conditions as a Paige car offers.

And we challenge any motor car manufacturer to produce a car approximating the Paige in power and capacity that will show gasoline and oil and repair records within twenty per cent of the corresponding records of the Paige.

That is our challenge. It is merely the echo of the testimony of 20,000 satisfied Paige Owners.

Buy Now—And Save Money

At the time this advertisement is written, we have on hand less than one Fairfield "Six-46" Model for each Paige Dealer. When these cars are sold, we shall start upon another production schedule of Fairfields and the list price will be substantially increased.

The cost of materials and labor has risen enormously during the past twelve months. We are obliged to pay more for every ounce of crude metal that goes into Paige cars—and, of course, we shall have to charge more for the finished product.

So, you can actually make money if you buy a Fairfield at its current price—$1375. But, remember the present production is very nearly exhausted and you must act quickly in placing your order.

We want to be absolutely fair with prospective purchasers. For that reason we are giving this advance notice. The price of the Paige Fairfield Six-46 will be substantially increased just as soon as the few remaining cars are sold.

In Conclusion

We think too much of our good name, of our good product, of our success (unrivaled in the industry) to employ misleading advertising.

To cheapen our car or our principles—

To design, build, advertise and sell anything but that car which we have for every man and every motoring need.

That is the Synonym for Square Dealing—as well as the "Standard of Value and Quality."

These, you know, are "Jubilee" Days. It is the time when the Paige Dealer plays "host" and keeps "open house" for everyone in his community. So don't fail to visit your local Paige Agency. There you will find "Welcome" on the mat and a corps of men who will do all in their power to make your visit a memorable one.

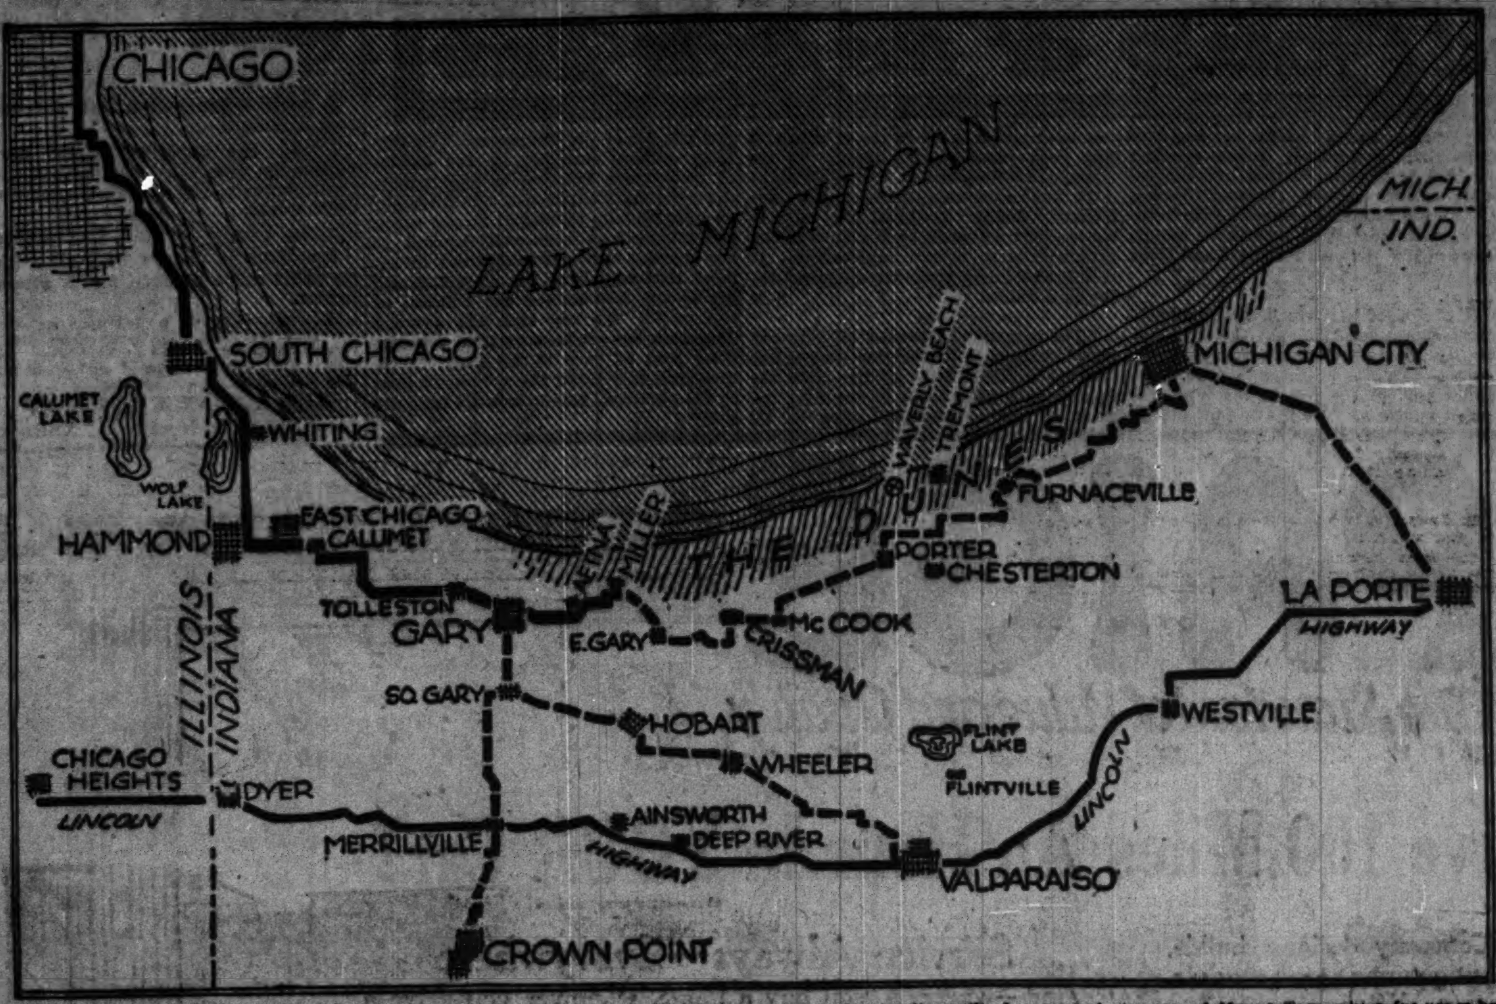
Dune Country with Its Strange Beauty Calls the Motor Tourist.



BY JOHN G. DE LONG.

MANY motorists of Chicago and vicinity who have visited the Berkshires, the White mountains, Bretton woods, Yellowstone park, and other famous touring grounds of the United States and who consider they have seen about everything worth while, have missed one of the rarest treats of all, and that at their very doors.

Within easy driving distance from Chicago—thirty-six miles, to be exact—is the famous but comparatively little known dune country, a unique section rich in historic, scientific, and picturesque interest. For many years scientists and nature lovers have been making regular pilgrimages to this wonder spot at the foot of Lake Michigan and have been studying one of the most interesting and mysterious natural phenomena to be found anywhere on the North American continent.

But, strange to say, thousands upon thousands of motorists, in touring to and from the Michigan and Indian resorts, have passed within one mile of the dune country, woefully ignorant of the scenic and scientific interest it holds. A general belief seems to prevail that the dunes are barren wastes of sandy desert, but nothing could be farther from the truth. To be sure, the sand is there, oceans and mountains of it, as pure and almost as white as refined table salt, but there also are miles of territory where nature has wrought wonderful things. In the dune country trailing arbutus, a typical flower of the northland, grows side by side with the cactus of the southwest. There are thousands of varieties of plant life, including in season, eight or ten varieties of orchids, as many varieties of violets, purple asters, golden rod, daisies, fringed gentian, ferns, scores of varieties of beautiful trailing vines, etc.

But this article is in the nature of a tip to the nature loving motorist to visit the dune section while the weather is good. Volumes have been written on the subject and many more could be and undoubtedly will be penned in praise of the country, so I will leave the descriptive colorings to Henry M. Hyde and other word picture painters. It is hard to say just how much territory the dunes cover. Some say the entire stretch around the foot of the lake from Gary to St. Joseph should be included. It is conceded, however, that the most interesting part is the section around Miller, Chesterton, Tremont, and Waverly, and the motorist who wishes to visit the dunes should drive to one of those places.

Commercial interests have been steadily gaining a foothold on the dune country, and redoubled efforts are being made to preserve some of the section from further encroachment. It was only recently that the nature lovers learned with consternation that historic Mount Tom, the most imposing peak among the sand dunes and said to be the highest spot in northern Indiana, had been sold to a Chicago contractor, who intended to mine its millions of cubic yards of sand. A government survey station occupies the apex of Mount Tom, which for years has been a favorite retreat of scientists. Senator Thomas Taggart of Indiana is making gratifying progress with the plans of the conservationists to have a part of the dune country set aside as a national park.

Not long ago Senator Taggart succeeded in introducing and having passed at Washington a resolution instructing Secretary of the Interior Lane to investigate and report upon the advisability of the project. Secretary Lane's report is to be made to congress about Dec. 1, and high hopes are entertained that it will meet with the favor of the national lawmakers. On Aug. 6 the temporary National Dunes Park association was made permanent by 3,000 delegates who attended what probably will turn out to have been a historic meeting at Tremont, Ind., in the heart of the dune district. Eight or ten large scientific bodies were represented at the meeting. A committee of seven from Indiana, seven from Illinois, and one from Michigan comprise the executive council named.

To the nature loving motorist I would say, make a trip today, and then repeat it next Sunday, and so on as long as fine touring weather lasts. Load the car up with your family and your friends and go supplied with a picnic lunch, not forgetting a couple of vacuum bottles of steaming coffee. Then select any one of 10,000 good spots and enjoy the time of your life.

The beauty of the trip is that it easily may be made, even after a heavy rain, for the entire distance is over city pavements and fine hard roads. Another advantage lies in the fact that the route is so easily followed that one who has never driven in the country will experience no trouble in finding his way.

The nearest and at the same time one of the best points is Miller, where a picturesque view of the Calumet river and the surrounding dunes is to be obtained. The motorist should not attempt to negotiate the sand, but should leave his car at the bridge and then walk in whatever direction his fancy takes him.

The route to Miller is as follows:

Chicago, Michigan and Jackson boulevards. Start south in Michigan boulevard.

Immediately beyond railroad underpass bear left with one line of trolley in Indianapolis avenue. Cross railroad, 14.9.

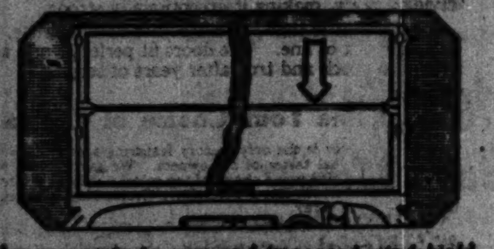
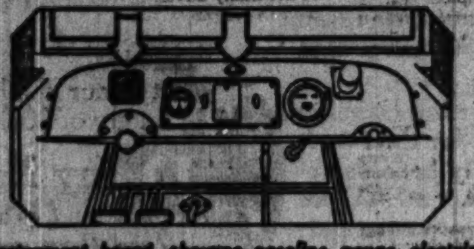
Cross railroad at Miller Station [illegible]. Instead of turning to the right and following the St. Joseph route keep straight ahead for a little over one mile, going under two railroad viaducts to the Calumet river and the dunes. If one wishes to drive to Tremont, Waverly or Chesterton, take the right hand [illegible] crossing railroad at Miller Station.

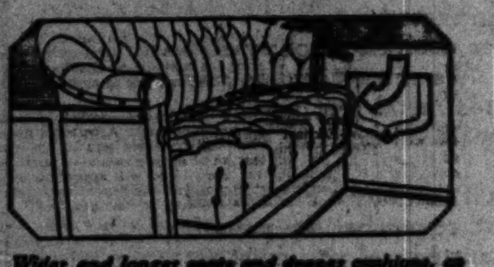
4 New Refinements



Arrow points to new and improved windshield. Upper half overlaps lower half. Absolutely rain-tight.



Instrument board, showing gasoline gauge, electric dashlight, speedometer, electric starting and lighting plugs and ammeter.



Wider and longer seats and deeper cushions, as indicated by arrows.

MAXWELL Motor Cars are now equipped with a new and improved windshield, still longer and more flexible springs, wider seats, deeper and softer cushions, dashlight, gasoline gauge, and other equally important refinements.

To the generous value heretofore present in the Maxwell product, these extra improvements have now been added.

This is in line with the Maxwell policy—so widely advertised—not to change the Maxwell in any essential detail, but to continue improving it so that it will always be a standard, recognized product, constantly abreast of the best practices of the industry.

Notwithstanding the superlative and sometimes confusing claims that are made in behalf of various automobiles, we restate our sincere conviction that Maxwell Motor Cars offer more real value per dollar than any other car in the world.

This too, is the belief of the thousands and thousands of Maxwell owners. And these beliefs are supported by actual and tangible facts. We actually know that within the entire history of the automobile business, no motor car—in any class or at any price—has equalled the Maxwell in honest dollar-for-dollar value.

And if you will examine a Maxwell, ride in it, compare it with other cars, consider its splendid record, reputation and past performances, you too, will know it.

Peerless
"All that the name implies"

Two Distinct Power-Ranges

In its "loafing range," which covers all ordinary requirements, the Peerless Eight performs with the ease and grace you would expect in a car of such class and distinction.

And in this range it is on half rations, consuming so little fuel as to shame many a six—even many a four.

In its "sporting range" you have power and speed which few, even of the very finest cars, can show.

You need have no fear that any contender, no matter what its class, will "show you up" in a fair brush on the road.

Its two separate and distinct power ranges make the Peerless Eighty Horsepower Eight perform like two separate and distinct cars.

Although you simply open the throttle wider to "reach" its "sporting range," you know instantly the minute you use it.

The car now responds with a deeper tone, its whole character is instantly changed, you have opened its double poppets—you are feeding it full fuel rations.

But you must drive the car to have any real appreciation of its wonderful performance.

Then you will know why this car has steadily outsold our production for nearly a year almost entirely on the recommendation of owners.

With the largest, most efficient force we ever employed, we have doubled the output—and are increasing at a rate that will double it again in another half year.

For the first time we can now promise prompt delivery of Peerless Eights.

See us and let us show you this car of class and distinction—both from a beauty and performance standpoint.

Standardization and the new Westcott SIX

OUR IDEA of Standardization has always been the maintenance of definite values rather than the mere multiplication of mechanical parts. We regard it as of more importance to make every detail perfect than to make it quickly. And the demand for Westcott Cars has advanced steadily during the past eight years.

The number of Westcotts to be made this year will be almost 60% greater than last year. This increase is the result of natural growth and not of feverish selling frenzy. We have reduced overhead expenses by this means! But we have added more to the new Westcotts in engineering, mechanical and material improvements and in refinements of body luxury than we have saved in overhead. This explains why the Westcott stands unique among motor cars.

PALACE.

Bonita and Lew Hearn:

"Do you ever have shows in your town, sheriff?"

"Yep, we had a show there a long time ago. They called it 'South Boston.' It was an awful sad piece."

"South Boston!"

"I think that was it."

"O, it must have been 'East Lynne.'"

"Durned if I don't think you're right. I knew it was some town in Massachusetts."

"And so you've been married?"

"Yes, my first wife died early."

"What was the trouble?"

"She sat down on a tack and she was so short it pierced her heart."

"O, how unfortunate!"

"Yes, and I had another misfortune the other day. My wife and I were reading when some one threw a bomb through the window and it exploded in the room. My wife and I were blown through the window at the same time."

"Is it possible?"

"Yes; that was the first time the wife and I had been out together in eight years."

"How old is this wine, waiter?"

"Twenty years."

"It's awfully small for its age. How much does it cost?"

"Five dollars."

"How much?"

"Ten dollars."

"I heard you the first time."

McVICKER'S.

Moss and Fry:

"Was that fair down at your club a success?"

"Pretty near; but not exactly a success."

"Why wasn't it?"

WE GOT CARFARE!

"Four men managed to escape with their carfare."

"I am really beginning to believe that Margaret has a soft spot in her heart for me."

"What makes you think that?"

"Why, the dear girl says she is always thinking of me."

"That's nothing to go by. A woman doesn't think with her heart. In all probability the soft spot you mention is in her head."

"Where are you going?"

"To buy a wedding present."

"A wedding present?"

"Yes; my son is getting murdered."

"Your son is getting what?"

"Murdered, murdered."

"Not murdered; you mean to say married."

"What's the difference?"

How are the roads?

DIRT roads should be avoided at this season of the year, for the autumn rains have come and have made the hard surfaced highways the only safe routes of motor travel. During the last week road scouts of the touring bureau of the Automobile Blue Book sent in the following road bulletins:

ILLINOIS.

Chicago to Cairo, Egyptian trail via Champaign, Mattoon, Effingham, Centralia, and Carbondale—Roads reported in good condition, but a trifle dusty.

St. Louis to Terre Haute via the Old National road through Greenville, Vandalia, Effingham, Casey, and Marshall—Road reported in good condition.

MICHIGAN.

From Ann Arbor to Ypsilanti, on the road from South Bend to Detroit, the highway is blocked and the following alternate is recommended. Although more winding than the main traveled route and with more grades, it is better, especially in wet weather, as it is on higher ground and has less clay.

170.5 Ann Arbor; Main and Huron streets, at courthouse. Turn left with branch trolley in Main street.

170.6 Turn right around postoffice with trolley in Catherine street.

171.3 First right hand street after crossing bridge. Iron pump on right. Turn right in Wall street.

MISSOURI.

St. Joseph reports all roads in all directions in good condition.

The Saints highway between St. Joseph and Des Moines has been relocated and remarked and now is twenty-four miles shorter than before.

IOWA.

Between Des Moines and Davenport, both the Great White way and the River-to-River road are reported to be in good condition.

NEBRASKA.

Omaha to Lincoln, via Ashland, Waverley, and Havelock—Tourists traveling west should take first road west of Millard for three miles north, drive east one mile, and then pick up the main road.

The Blue Pole route from Norfolk to Harrison is reported good and well marked.

NEW MEXICO.

Reports are that roads are in first class condition throughout the state. The weather is ideal, with some local showers that lay the dust.

OHIO.

Athens to Lancaster, via Nelsonville and Rockbridge, and Lancaster to Circleville, via Amanda, are reported in good condition, the roads being mostly good stone and gravel.

From Zanesville to Marietta, via Malta, McConnellsville, and Lowell, the road is badly in need of repair, being cut up and rough.

On the main route between Toledo and Cleveland, via Fremont and Sandusky, an eleven mile stretch of new concrete connecting Huron and Vermillion has been completed.

Crow-Elkhart "35"

Growing By Leaps and Bounds!!

WE SHOW below the New Model 1917 Crow-Elkhart "35"—the latest and greatest product of a factory famed for its successful output.

This big, handsome, light weight, 5-passenger touring car, with its long, graceful, yacht-like lines and perfectly balanced construction, embodies more high grade features than any car today selling at less than $1,000.

Crow-Elkhart "35" is one of the largest cars under that price. It represents a genuine buying opportunity to any man—or woman—who seeks a legitimate price advantage without the sacrifice of quality. Why pay $1,000 or more when satisfaction, coupled with a saving of $200 to $300, awaits you in this newest creation of Martin E. Crow?

Success Without Sensation

Results count! An ounce of performance is worth a pound of promise in measuring the merits of a motor-car. Sensational advertising is not necessarily a safe sign of enduring quality. Big publicity campaigns add nothing to intrinsic values. The best advertising any car can have is the "record of results" achieved in actual use—the friendly "mouth-to-ear" kind of advertising created by an ever-widening circle of satisfied owners.

Crow-Elkhart Cars have won success without sensation. They have earned their way to wide recognition by consistent performance rather than by persistent publicity. For nearly a decade the principles of engineering construction embodied in the 1917 Crow-Elkhart "35" have stood the test of use in thousands of Crow-Elkhart cars in this country and abroad.

The result has been a steadily growing sphere of influence for these sterling, dependable cars. Natural demand—persistently increasing from month to month during the past few years—has reached a climax with the perfection of the 1917 Crow-Elkhart Model "35."

The Car of Uniform Quality

The 1917 Crow-Elkhart "35" is not a "freak" car in any sense of the word. It is a car of uniform quality and evenly balanced excellence throughout. No one feature is developed at the expense of another, but a settled policy has been followed with the view of putting the utmost quality in materials, design and construction into every feature, consistent with the price.

As a result, Model 1917 Crow-Elkhart "35" embodies more real, tangible automobile value for $795 than any other car in its price range—and, indeed, in the vital essentials of size, sturdiness, easy riding qualities, beauty of design and smart, snappy style, this classy car competes successfully with many selling at from $1,000 to $1,500.

Output to Be Doubled

The tide is running strongly with this great $795 car! Shrewd, posted buyers, in constantly increasing numbers, are taking advantage of the big saving of $200 to $300 offered by Crow-Elkhart "35." The reasons for this big increase in sales is due not only to the exceptional quality of the car itself, but also to a broadening knowledge of the high efficiency standards of the Crow-Elkhart organization, and the ability and integrity of the men behind the plant and product.

To meet this on-rushing demand, Crow-Elkhart factory facilities are now being extended to provide for double the present output of cars, thus assuring prompt deliveries. The new factory additions and equipment will be of the very latest, most modern kind, fully up to the high standards maintained by Crow-Elkhart in the past.

You Never Hear a Body Squeak in a Crow-Elkhart "35"

Why? Because Crow-Elkhart body construction is superior to any car in its price class and equal to many cars selling around $1,500 to $2,000.

There is no attempt to save or "skimp" on Crow-Elkhart bodies. They are built of the very best materials. Frame work is of first grade white ash, with all joints mortised, screwed and glued. Covering is of 18-gauge polished nickel steel. Top irons are forged to each individual body, making it exceptionally strong.

The result is that "C-E" bodies do not rattle, squeak or spring out of line. The doors fit perfectly and all parts remain staunch and true after years of service.

Name Your Choice of Colors

Crow-Elkhart is the only factory featuring special body colors to suit the individual tastes of car owners. We say "Select your own paint job," and give you a choice of ten colors: Black, White, Cream, Cherry Red, Maroon, Royal Blue, Olive Green, Napier Green, French Gray and Rover Gray.

This liberal color option is a big Crow-Elkhart sales feature. It has proven immensely popular with a large number of buyers who are tired of the monotonous procession of conventional blacks, blue-blacks and Brewster greens, and prefer a "snappy" dashing effect of bright color in their cars.

Consider These Points

The powerful, smooth-running Crow-Elkhart "35" motor is unique with its detachable head; its specially designed piston oil ports to prevent the oil from entering the combustion chambers, and a dozen other refinements of engineering that combine to produce extraordinary efficiency.

Note the long wheel base—114 inches—providing "roominess" unsurpassed in any similar 5-passenger car. A personal inspection of the 1917 Crow-Elkhart "35" will convince you of the exceptional advantage offered by this feature of ample room—a consideration of vital importance to the car user! You will appreciate at a glance the bigness, the ample seating capacity, the beauty and grace of body design of this greatest of all cars, selling at less than $1,000.

Consider its roadability. Weight is only 2,040 pounds and construction is so evenly balanced that there is not 35 pounds difference front and rear. This exceptionally equal distribution of weight gives remarkable riding comfort and tends to prevent skidding.

Exceptional Low "Upkeep"

The 1917 Crow-Elkhart "35" has demonstrated itself a car of remarkable economy. Many owners secure from 18 to 26 miles per gallon of gasoline. The tiny ports in the pistons conserve the oil, and the light weight of the car makes it exceptionally easy on tires.

The high quality of materials and scientific accuracy and sturdiness of construction reduce the necessity for repairs almost to the vanishing-point. Your legitimate repair bills on this new 1917 Crow-Elkhart "35" will never cause you a moment's worry!

"Cloverleaf" Roadster

We are also showing the Crow-Elkhart New Model 1917 "Cloverleaf" 3-Passenger Roadster. Same chassis as the "35." The leader of its class, embodying more quality, beauty and endurance than any Roadster selling for $200 to $300 more.

FACTS FOR MOTOR CAR BUYERS

(No. 2)

Facts—not opinions—are the foundation and basis of all enlightened knowledge. Here are some facts concerning automobile values and prices which explain why and how Studebaker offers low prices and high quality in its cars.

The Automobile

The automobile is the highest type of moving vehicle, either drawn or self-propelled. It is a highly developed machine, containing three thousand separate parts—more moving or frictional parts than a railroad locomotive. The locomotive runs over a smooth track; the automobile is driven over rough roads with sharp turns and grades; it is subject to far more wear and tear than the locomotive. Obviously, it must then be necessary that each one of the three thousand automobile parts, both moving and stationary, fit, co-operate and function with the greatest possible precision. The quality of the automobile depends entirely on the quality of the raw material, and the skill and experience with which it is designed and manufactured. The locomotive at all times is operated and cared for by experienced engineers and skilled mechanics. Automobiles are operated by owners who sometimes possess only limited mechanical ability, therefore an automobile must be designed and manufactured to meet every emergency of service and to withstand the abuse and neglect of unskillful operation.

Who Makes Automobiles?

There are over one hundred concerns "making" automobiles in this country, of which about ten are manufacturers, while the others are "assemblers."

The manufacturer owns and operates a complete manufacturing plant consisting of an extensive engineering and experimental department and a chemical laboratory; a power plant; foundry, forge shop, machine shop, stamping plant, body shop, trim shop, paint shop, and assembling departments.

The assembler either owns or rents a plant consisting usually of a bare building without power plant and without machinery, but equipped simply with assembling benches, forms and racks and stock rooms for the finished parts which he purchases from parts manufacturers or middlemen. He "makes" automobiles by putting these parts together in his assembling department.

Excessive Cost of Assembled Automobiles

Practically all manufacturers as well as assemblers buy finished parts from middlemen, such as wheels, tires, electrical equipment and some minor parts, and therefore the costs of both the manufacturer and the assembler are on a par for these parts, but these parts constitute less than 20% of the cost of an automobile. Other parts constitute about 80% of the cost of the automobile, the engine, axles, transmission, differential, steering gear, body and top making up most of the 80%. Hence, a manufacturer who manufactures these parts from raw materials in his own plants roughly speaking is making 80% of his car, whereas the assembler who buys them from parts manufacturers is purchasing from middlemen practically 100% of his car.

Studebaker manufactures in its own plants all of its engines, axles, transmissions, differentials, steering gears, bodies and tops. Even some manufacturers buy bodies, axles and steering gears from middlemen.

Cost of Manufacture

Assuming a car costs $700, and deducting 20% or $140 for the parts both manufacturer and assembler buy from middlemen, the balance, or $560, represents the value which the manufacturer sells at only one profit, but which the assembler must buy at the parts makers' profit; and the parts maker asks an average profit on these parts at least 25% above manufacturing costs. This adds $140 to the cost of the $560 worth of parts which the assembler must buy, and on which he must still add a good substantial profit of his own.

The Selling Cost of Any Car

Consider the following table as the basis upon which the selling price of any car must be fixed:

Items which make up Selling Price	Mfrs. Cost	Assembler's Cost	Excess cost of Assembled Car
Factory Cost	$700	$840	$140
Administrative, advertising and selling and general expenses — say they are the same in both cases	80	80
Discount from list allowed dealers, assuming 20% the maximum.	220	270	50
Maker's Profit	100	160	60
Totals	$1,100	$1,350	$250 (Increase 23%)

This illustration shows a selling price of $1,100 for the manufacturer's car and $1,350 for the assembler's car. The buyer must pay $250 (about [illegible] more for the assembled car simply because it is an assembled car. The manufacturer gives his customer the benefit of the savings derived from manufacturing his own parts, whereas the assembler has to pay this excessive cost and put the burden on the customer.

Manufacturers' Advantages

It is well known within the automobile industry that large manufacturers, with $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 invested in complete plants and ample capital and resources, purchase the most modern and expensive labor-saving machinery, and then in manufacturing their engines, steering gears, axles, transmissions, differentials, bodies, tops, etc., their costs are lower, if anything, than parts manufacturers' costs for the same articles.

Manufacturers producing 75,000 cars annually produce more parts of a specific type than any parts manufacturer produces. As a rule, parts manufacturers are not specialists in the sense that they make only one type of body or axle or engine. Although their total output may sometimes (but rarely) exceed the quantity of any large automobile manufacturer, they make numerous varieties, and hence do not obtain as low manufacturing costs as the large automobile manufacturer obtains.

Hence, the large automobile manufacturer produces his own parts at a lower cost than the parts manufacturer produces similar parts for an assembler who buys in small quantities, and it follows that the 23% excess cost of the assembler illustrated above is not exaggerated.

Another point is that the assembler, buying parts from numerous sources, and often the same part from several sources, cannot obtain the same precision of machining and assembling in the finished car which the large manufacturer obtains.

Still again, the assembler's profit per car is larger than the manufacturer's profit, because the assembler usually sells only a few thousand cars annually. The illustration shows that this profit is 60% more than the manufacturer receives, and we believe this percentage is not overstated. Also the dealer's discount is greater on the assembled car, because his list price is higher.

As stated above, out of a hundred automobile concerns selling cars in this country, about 90% are assemblers and only 10% manufacturers in the true sense of the term. This means that consumers are paying 23% premium to 90% of the automobile concerns in the country, over and above what they could buy the same cars for, and in fact, much better cars, from the large manufacturers.

Quantity Production of Automobiles

Vague statements are frequently made concerning the effect of quantity production in reducing manufacturing costs. To illustrate this truth to uninformed persons, it is necessary to state the elements that enter into costs and selling prices of automobiles. Many people will be astonished at the number of these elements. Primarily, the basic cost of an automobile is:

(1) The raw material contained in it.

(2) The wages of the workmen who fashion the material into a finished car. The sum of these two items is the prime cost and the actual car value the customer receives. All costs and expenses beyond these are of little, if any, value to him.

(3) Factory overhead expenses should be included providing the manufacturing methods are simple, direct and economical.

Factory overhead expenses include supplies, supervision and factory organization expenses which, according to the intelligence of the personnel, determine whether the output of the manufacturer is large or small, whether the proper material is purchased and at the right prices, whether the design of the car is correct and the manufacturing methods simple and effective. Hence, we may say that factory overhead expenses are a legitimate part of the actual car value received by the customer, and if we admit this, these three items, representing manufacturing cost, are all the actual car value the customer receives. In making up the selling price, however, other items are added, as follows:

(4) Administrative, advertising and selling and general expenses.

(5) Discount allowed automobile dealers who sell the customer and give him service afterwards.

(6) Manufacturer's or assembler's profit.

Quantity Production Distributes Expense

The total of these six items comprises the selling price. It may be astonishing, but it is true that every one of these six items must and does vary with production. Every small producer, whether he is a manufacturer or an assembler, necessarily suffers an increase in every one of these six items, and must therefore charge more for his car than the large producer.

Illustrating this, we will take the cars of a manufacturer (A) producing 75,000 cars per annum, and either a small manufacturer or the usual assembler (B) producing 10,000 cars.

Commencing with item (1), raw material, it should be obvious that (A) can obtain much lower prices than (B) for the same material, because his buying power and purchases are seven and a half times greater.

In item (2), labor, it is obvious that (A) can employ skilled mechanics in specialized single operations to a greater extent than (B), and consequently obtain better work and more work from the same men.

In item (3), factory overhead expenses, it is obvious that (A), owning the highest priced, most modern labor-saving machinery, can eliminate excessive labor and supervision; that expenses of non-productive departments, such as experimental, engineering, laboratory, purchasing, stores, etc., are much less per car than in the case of (B).

To illustrate, a machine that costs (A) $25,000, costs thirty-three and one-third cents on each automobile he turns out. It costs (B) two dollars and a half on each automobile he turns out.

The same is true of salaries; the salary of a $25,000 engineer employed by (A) adds only thirty-three and one-third cents to the cost of the car, whereas if (B) employs a man of equal ability and salary, his cost is $2.50 per car. The same excess cost for (B) occurs in the case of purchasing agents, inspectors, factory executives, superintendents, etc.

With an annual $5,000,000 factory overhead expense for (A), his cost per car would be $66.67, whereas a $3,000,000 overhead for (B) would be $300.00 per car.

Quantity Production Reduces Costs

Quantity production reduces the cost per car for item (4), administrative, selling and advertising and general expenses, in the same way. Supposing the annual expenses of (A) are $6,000,000, the cost is only $80 per car, which is much less than the average person imagines this charge to be.

In the illustration, we have allowed (B) $80 per car, which on a basis of 10,000 cars per annum, makes his expenses $800,000, which he can get through with if he maintains no branch offices but markets his cars through dealers only. In the case of item (5), quantity manufacturers (A) allow dealers smaller percentages of discount, usually running from 15% to 25% according to the size of the dealer, whereas smaller makers (B) allow from 20% to 40% discount, because their dealers sell fewer cars and must therefore receive a greater discount per car to make a profit. The expenses of dealers average about the same whether they handle a quantity production car or a small production car, and manifestly the dealers in the former case, selling seven and a half times more cars than in the latter case, can afford and actually do receive a less discount per car. Again, the dealer's discount, at the same percentage, amounts to more money, as the list price of the car increases. In the illustration it is shown as $220 on the $1,100 car (A) against $270 on the $1,350 car (B), using 20% in both cases, so that quantity production saves the buyer $50 on this item.

The Maker's Profit

What has been said regarding dealer's discount applies with equal force to item (6), maker's profit, which in the case of quantity production (A) rarely exceeds $100 per car, but in the case of small production (B) usually amounts to at least 60% more, because of the latter maker's smaller volume.

The large profits being made by small makers, which are a matter of public record as shown by annual reports of these companies, prove the truth of this statement. These profits often run from $300 to $400 per car for cars selling for less than $2,000, whereas no quantity manufacturer in this country (A) makes any such profit per car.

Any concern which buys its engines, axles, transmissions, differentials, steering gears, bodies and tops, parts comprising 80% of the cost of an automobile, from parts manufacturers, is necessarily taxing buyers about 23% premium because of this fact. This truth explains the difference in price of from $300 to $500 in different cars on the market of apparently the same value, and this truth is well recognized in the automobile industry.

Studebaker increased its output from 37,000 cars in 1914 to 45,000 in 1915 and from 45,000 in 1915 to 75,000 cars in 1916. In 1914 the price of the Six was $1575; in 1915, $1385 to $1450 and in 1916 $1085, and each year the car was better than the preceding year. These significant reductions in price were made possible only by the increase in production.

In the last fourteen months Studebaker has produced and sold more seven-passenger SIXES and more seven-passenger FOURS than any other manufacturer in the world for a like period, thus establishing Studebaker as the world's largest manufacturer of fine cars—

DO YOU KNOW

That a Hogenson Model
BUNGALOW

Can be paid for in $35 to $50 monthly payments, the same as you are paying your monthly rent, and only a small cash payment down?

A bungalow such as we build in a suburban residence neighborhood has many advantages over the flat, especially for the children, who it can plainly be seen are strong and robust.

Our bungalows are all roomy, with large porches, have fine plastered and dry basements and big attics. The lot is sufficiently large to leave a 30 ft. space in front and enough for a garden.

On Latrobe-av., in our Austin Home Addition, between Thomas and Division-sts., we have completed several 5 and 6 room bricks, and nearly completed a number of 5 to 8 rm. homes, finished in the new waterproof stucco.

On Laramie-av. we also have several 5 room brick, stucco and frame bungalows.

Our homes range in price from $4,000 to $6,500, all finished in hardwoods and artistically decorated.

If you have been thinking of buying a home, an inspection of our bungalow section in Austin will be interesting to you.

Let us send you a booklet and furnish you more particulars.

WE CHALLENGE COMPARISON

MIDLOTHIAN GARDENS

Is just what you are looking for. It meets all the needs of one who wants a home in the country, where he can continue his occupation in the city and have enough land to produce fruits, flowers, vegetables, eggs and poultry—a productive home.

LOCATION.
On the Rock Island R. R., 18 miles S. W. of Chicago, in a section that is a town in the making and within 5 min. walk to the station. An ideal spot.

TRANSPORTATION.
Numerous fast trains to and from the city, 40 min. ride, just enough time to read your paper. Nowhere can this service be excelled. Make the comparison yourself and be convinced.

SOIL.
A rich sandy loam, managed for three years to secure high fertility and declared by experts to be the best in Cook county. Compare it with any other soil and be convinced of its quality.

DRAINAGE.
Is essential in raising children, chickens, or vegetables. Our land is perfectly drained by an underground tile system. Investigate this for yourself and compare it with the drainage of any other locality.

FUTURE VALUES.
This community is fast building up and land is increasing in value.

Shade trees have been set out, streets graded and sidewalks made. A park of 5 acres with a club house has been set aside for the use of the community. A co-operative store is open. You will have water and electricity.

The plots are

100x300 FT.

Equal in size to 8 ordinary city lots. Come out today and compare the values you will get. See the houses that are being built and note the activity in this locality.

You owe it to yourself to investigate thoroughly before you buy. The prices and terms are reasonable.

The fare on a monthly ticket is 10 cents.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

It Can't Wait

WHAT IS NEEDED is more people owning farms and living on them. That is one sure way to better agriculture and reduce the high cost of living. Nothing is more necessary to promote contentment and patriotism than good food and plenty of it. Our national policy is to make each farm produce more. "Loafer land" must be put to work.

IF A CITY SHOULD WAKE up some morning and discover its water supply dwindling, the inhabitants would be mighty quick to stop the leak or replenish the supply. Well, that is what is happening in meats, vegetables, fruits, and everything we eat, but we have been too slow about remedying the shortage. Food means life the same as water. With war expenses, increased taxes, and ever rising prices of food, the movement from city to country will be greater than ever.

THE LAND CAN'T WAIT for any man. Nothing can stop its increase in value and its development. Waiting is poor policy anyway for a man who wants land. Every season your chances dwindle faster. Hundreds and hundreds of people from all parts of the North Central States are becoming aware of the fact that never again will lands as good be offered at prices so low and terms so liberal, and they are going to the Swigart Tract in such large numbers that it requires special cars to take care of our excursions which run every two weeks.

PEOPLE HAVE LEARNED that conditions in this tract are right. Transportation, markets, neighbors, roads, churches, schools, farmers' granges are already there. Telephones and rural free delivery are being installed. The farmers are organizing Potato Growers' Associations and Alfalfa Clubs. The Commonwealth Company is building the second of seven immense power dams in the center of the Tract. There is a great industrial future in store for us.

OUR LITERATURE is illustrated with many photographic views of the lands and scenes of the Tract that are interesting to one looking for a new location. It will tell you about our crops of clover, alfalfa, vetch, rye, oats, wheat, corn, hay, peas, beans, potatoes, and all vegetables; the fruit possibilities of the district and the many fine orchards that have been developed and are now on a good paying basis.

YOU WILL ALSO BE INTERESTED in learning about the many liberal features connected with this colonizing project. We operate demonstration farms and are developing one of the largest apple orchards in the U. S. Our selling proposition is liberal in its terms, giving seven years' time in which to pay for the land, or a discount of 5% for all cash. After the land is partly paid for the purchaser is insured for the balance. We have 50,000 acres for you to select from. The prices are from $10 to $25 per acre and a large selection of some of the best lying land at $18 to $20 per acre. Terms may be quarterly, annual, or on the monthly basis, as preferred, being as low as $10 to $50 down and $5 to $10 per month on 40 acres.

OUR NEXT SPECIAL EXCURSION leaves our Chicago offices at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday, Oct. 3. Round trip fare from Chicago to Wellston, my Michigan headquarters, $12.50, including railroad fare, meals, and lodging. Your railroad fare will be rebated if you purchase land. You return to Chicago at 7:20 a. m. the following Friday. Automobiles and guides free. Offices remain open Monday evening and Saturday afternoon.

A REBUILT CADILLAC
It's a Safe Used Car to Buy

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined, and, if necessary, replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory, the entire car repainted and refinished like new, all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is good as new in every detail.

We are as interested in the performance of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service value these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

JEWELRY, WATCHES, ETC.

PLEDGE NO. 148621, STEEL BLUE 5K. Tiffany Diamond Ring, $90.

Every day more people REALIZE the advantage of buying UNREDEEMED diamonds. When you pay REGULARLY, say $90, for a diamond, you must first deduct the profit on same to get at the actual value of it. Your diamond is not worth $90; it is probably worth just half that sum; the other half represents the profit of the retailer, cutter, importer, etc.
RIGHT HERE IS THE DIFFERENCE.
We have pawned diamonds left over at such low figures that we can and do save you nearly half on the original price. Call at our store today and make us show you; you will not be pressed to buy. The sale is made when the customer is satisfied.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

THE BEST CHANCE IN THE U. S.

I know where 20,000 acres of land—all tillable—can be bought for $3 per acre, one-tenth down and 30 years in which to pay for balance. This land is equal to Missouri bottom land. Fine climate, plenty of water, and will grow alfalfa, wheat, corn, oats, fruit, and any other crops produced in Illinois or Iowa, without irrigation. As soon as a demonstration farm can be put in operation these lands can be sold to REAL FARMERS at from $25 to $50 per acre as fast as we can get the real farmers to look at them. In other words, we can sell off 2,000 acres and more than clear the balance—18,000 acres profit. I have my own cash—$6,000—to make the initial payment, and want 10 men to put in $1,000 apiece for expense of opening up 3 or 4 acres, machinery, interest, etc., to carry the proposition until we shall be in shape to begin to sell.

This is a ground floor proposition to everybody—"all cards on the table"—and no promoter or agent need apply. No women need apply.

You must go personally or send agent at your expense to examine property before putting up money.

This land is easily able to carry 5,000 head of sheep at a profit of $20,000 per year, and every acre can be sold within 5 years for $50—$1,000,000. References given and required. Address O L 555, Tribune.

TO THE PROSPECTIVE INVESTOR.

Know the value of the investment you are making. Is their financial condition as good or are their profits as large as they have stated? An investigation of their accounts and a certified statement as to their true condition by a reliable accountant will protect your investment. Reasonable rates. Call Franklin 4549 or address C 427, Tribune.

THE real estate market made a fairly good showing again last week. None of the pending large transactions in the downtown district materialized and the market was along rather narrow lines, as was the case during the previous week, although the showing on the whole was better.

There was, for instance, much doing of an important character in apartment house property, several large transactions being included in the week's business, while outside business property made an unusually good showing.

Several noteworthy transactions in subdivision property were also reported, as well as the closing of an important deal in industrial property in the Calumet district.

A theater lease on the north side at record breaking figures for this class of property was also among the week's happenings, while several interesting sales of vacant were reported. Generally speaking, however, the market continues rather dull, although brokers report an improved inquiry for most classes of property.

One Minor Downtown Deal.

There was one transaction of a minor character reported in the downtown district, the conveyance of the leasehold interest as well as fee in the property at 328-34 West Van Buren street, the Chicago Title and Trust company taking title. The property, which is 79 feet east of Market street, south front, is 52x50 feet with four and a half story brick improvements, on the east 27½ feet.

The leasehold interest was conveyed by S. W. Winefield, it being a lease for 198 years from 1913 at an annual rent of $4,600 for the first ten years and $5,400 for the remainder of the term, with an option of purchase of the fee within fifteen years at $120,000.

The fee was conveyed by Mrs. Emma S. Theurer, and in connection with the transfer two trust deeds were given by the trust company, aggregating $67,500, and it is understood these formed part of the purchase price. One loan of $55,000, payable semi-annually in five years, with interest at 5½ per cent, was obtained through Edgar M. Snow, as trustee, and the other loan of $12,500, payable in one year at 6 per cent, was negotiated through Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company.

New Jackson Hotel in Deal.

An unusually interesting transaction in west side business property was reported late in the week in the sale by Frank Hunt to Joseph B. Moos of the leasehold interest in the property at 766-78 West Jackson boulevard and 231-39 South Halsted street, for a reported consideration of $100,000.

The property fronts 156½ feet on Jackson boulevard and 100 feet on Halsted street, the east fifty-five feet of the boulevard frontage extending north to Quincy street, thus having a depth of 199 feet. The 101½ feet to the west on Jackson boulevard has a depth of 160 feet.

The fee on the corner is owned by Anna Farwell De Koven and others, who on May 1, 1909, leased the ground to Frank Hunt for ninety-nine years. The 40x50.75 feet in Halsted street, being the north 50 of the 100 feet on Halsted street, is owned by Charles W. Pardridge.

The entire plot leased to Mr. Hunt comprises 19,885 square feet, for which an annual rental of $6,600 is paid, which is 5 per cent on $132,000, or $6.64 a square foot. The improvements comprise a five story and basement building with stores on the ground floor and a hotel above, the entire building having been leased back to Mr. Hunt for a term of nine years at an annual rent of $20,000, with right to cancel by lessor. James A. Hool of John R. Magill & Co. represented Mr. Moos and Miltenberg & Guetzel Mr. Hunt.

CHEMICAL COMPANY BUYS TRACTS ON FAR SOUTH SIDE.

Record was made of the acquirement by the General Chemical company of two tracts, aggregating about eighteen and one-half acres, on the south and east sides of the Calumet river at One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, for a total consideration of about $73,000. A tract of twelve acres was acquired from W. A. Douglas, on which there were $62 of revenue stamps, while another tract of about six and one-half acres was acquired from Anna M. Hedstrom, $10 worth of revenue stamps being on the deed. There was another transfer from F. R. De Young, a nominal consideration being given. Title was first taken by John M. Cameron, counsel of the company, who then transferred to the latter. It was stated the company has no plans in connection with the property, which was purchased for future possible requirements.

BETTER TONE TO ACRES MARKET

Reports of Subdividers Show Better Demand—Several Big Deals Closed.

There was an improved tone to the market for acres and subdivision property last week. This was evidenced by several noteworthy transactions as well as the reports of subdividers. There is still abundant room for much improvement, but the tone of those handling this class of property is distinctly better than was the case a few weeks ago.

An interesting transaction reported late in the week was the purchase by John J. Collins and Edward A. Wall of Collins & Wall, contractors, from Cremin & O'Connor of all the north and south frontage on Potomac avenue in the St. Paul Park subdivision in Austin, betweel Leclaire and Lavergne avenues, and the north and south frontage on Kamerling avenue between the streets above named.

64 Residences Started.

It is stated they are beginning the work of building sixty-four two story, basement and attic cement residences. They will contain seven and eight rooms and cost to build about $4,000.

Since the subdivision was placed on the market last spring with all the street improvements in, it is reported that over half of the 250 lots have been sold. Forty two flat buildings are to be erected on Potomac avenue, half of which have been completed. The tract of thirty acres which has been owned by eastern interests for a number of years, is surrounded by dwellings for the great part, while good street transportation facilities prevail.

Norwood Park Tract Sold.

An interesting acre sale was reported in the Norwood Park district covering blocks 34, 35, and 37, comprising approximately twenty-three acres. It has been purchased by Kinzie & Son from the Eberharts for a reported consideration of $15,000. The property, which is triangular in shape, is bounded by Matorma, Somerset, and Avondale avenues and is only two blocks from the Norwood Park station. The property will be improved and placed on the market next spring. Ely Haas represented both parties.

A sale of subdivision property in West Pullman was also reported. It comprised the sale by Sarah E. Penfield to J. William Howard of a tract of 115 lots on Ashland and Marshfield avenues, between One Hundred and Twenty-fourth and One Hundred and Twenty-seventh streets, the consideration being withheld.

Evanston Vacant Sale.

A sale of vacant on Ridge boulevard, Evanston, was reported, covering the plot fronting east on the boulevard from Warren avenue to Oakton avenue, with a frontage of 314 feet on the boulevard, having a depth of 175 feet.

It has been sold by Ernest Heidmeier to Charles M. O'Farrel. The consideration is withheld, but Mr. O'Farrell gave a purchase money mortgage for $10,484. It is stated that no plans are made as yet regarding its development. Martin W. Kelly represented both parties to the transaction.

NO IMPORTANT TRADES IN RESIDENCE PROPERTY.

Nohing of an important character was doing in residence property, the few sales reported being generally of a minor character.

Julius H. Bach sold to Thomas P. Cotter the residence property at 7314 Sheridan road, near Chase avenue, lot 65 feet front, improved with a two story and attic stone front dwelling, containing fourteen rooms. The consideration was reported at $16,000 cash, subject to an incumbrance of $6,500. Baird & Warner were the brokers.

Dr. James Whitney Hall has sold through Paul Steinbrecher & Co. to John F. Richie the residence property at 940 Castlewood terrace, which is a restricted residence street. The house, which stands on a lot 50x114 feet, contains nine rooms and the consideration is said to have been around $15,500.

Gordon Strong & Co. sold for Frank B. Montgomery of the International Harvester company to Olaf C. S. Olsen, president of the O. C. S. Olsen Desk company, the twelve room residence at 6143 Kenmore avenue, between Glenlake and Granville, for an expressed consideration of $19,000. O. L. Brockett negotiated the sale.

Frederick Secord has sold to Robert M. Eastman the residence premises on Sheridan road, fifty feet north of Ardmore avenue, with a ground area of 50x150 feet, for an expressed consideration of $15,000.

DEEDS FOR FOREST RESERVE LAND FILED FOR RECORD.

There were several transfers of property running to Cook county for the forest preserve district reported and made matters of record during the week, one having the distinction of being the first parcel acquired by the county in this connection.

The property comprises a tract of eighty acres, just south of the Sag valley, and was transferred by Joseph S. and Catherine Halligan, Mary F. Casey, and Stephen E. McMahon. The property has been in the possession of the Halligan family for more than sixty years and was acquired by the county for $10,656. The sellers were represented by McMahon & Hoban.

Record also was made of the acquirement of twelve parcels in the township of Palatine for a total stated consideration of $25,550, the largest parcel having been purchased from John W. Wilson for $10,000.

PASS BUCK ON CAR SHORTAGE

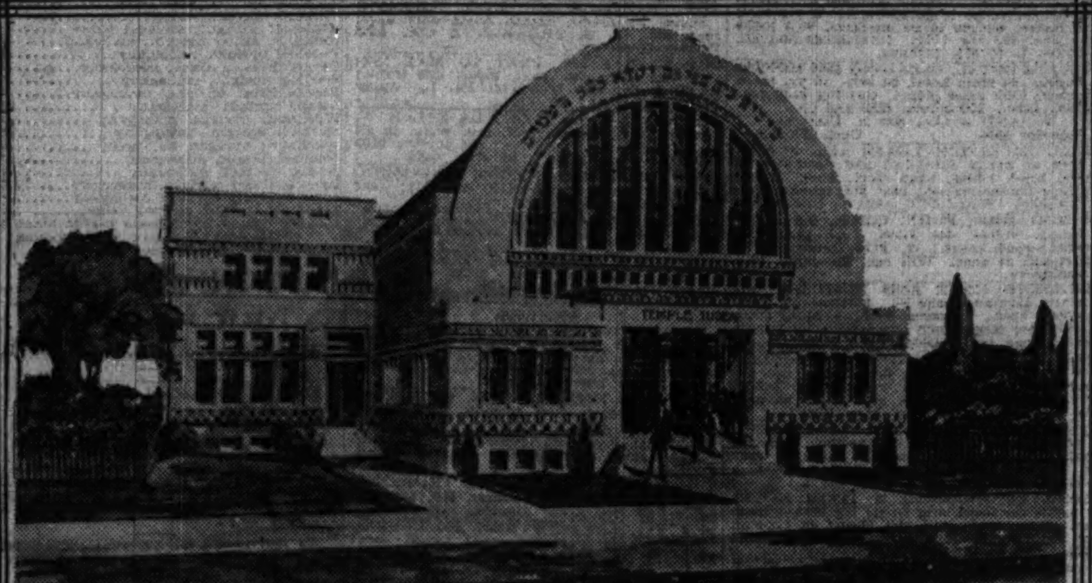
Springfield, Ill., Sept. 30.—The state public utility commission this morning received word in a telegram from the interstate commerce commission that the question of ordering eastern railroads to return box cars to the west had been referred to the American Railway association. The federal commission expects to return a decision in a short time.

TAX SALE BEGINS TOMORROW

Henry Stuckart, county treasurer, announced yesterday he will start the sale of property for special assessment taxes Monday. Property on which the special assessment taxes for paving streets and alleys have not been paid will be sold.

NEW SOCIAL CENTER AND A "PICTOGRAPH"

Temple Judea's Community House, the Corner Stone of Which Will Be Laid Today, Is Shown in Upper Picture. Below, How County Recorder Connery Boosts the Torrens System.



PHOTOS BY INTERNATIONAL FILM SERVICE, INC.

Impressive ceremonies will mark the laying of the corner stone of the new community house of Temple Judea at 1227-1233 Independence boulevard, shown in upper picture, this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The corner stone will be laid by Rabbi A. J. Messing, and prominent members and friends of the congregation will take part. Among those who are to address the congregation, before the actual ceremony, are Harry A. Lipsky, member of the board of education; Dr. H. B. Shapiro, president of Temple Judea; Rabbi Joseph Stolz, and Judge Hugo Pam.

The new building will contain Sabbath school rooms for 300 members, and an assembly hall seating 700. It will be ready for occupancy about the middle of November.

Through "Pictographs" Joseph F. Connery, recorder of deeds, is continuing his campaign to show the cheapness and simplicity of the Torrens system of land registration.

Three dollars will pay all title expenses in making a sale of this valuable business property, situated in the heart of a growing section of the North Shore district, at the southeast corner of Devon and Lakewood avenues. When Mr. Connery issues a Torrens certificate, showing a good title to this corner in the purchase, it will carry the guarantee of Cook county for the full value of the property, estimated to be worth $125,000.

The young woman in the illustration is Miss Anna Blase, a clerk in the Torrens department of Recorder Connery's office.

FLAT PROPERTY SALES FEATURE WEEK'S TRADING

Several Large Transactions Closed and Six-Apartments Have a Fair Run.

There was much doing of an important character in apartment house property during the week, the showing in the way of comparatively large transactions being the best for several weeks. There also was a fair run of six apartments, although the number of these transactions was not up to the previous week.

A nonresident, Horace B. Hitchens of Colorado Springs, appeared as the purchaser in a large south side transaction covering the Brighton apartments, at the northwest corner of Indiana avenue and Forty-first street. The building, which is a four story structure, occupies a lot 100x166 feet and contains thirty-two apartments and was sold by C. M. Clarke for a reported consideration of $110,000, subject to an incumbrance of $48,000.

In exchange for the equity Mr. Clarke took an improved ranch of 3,000 acres near Colorado Springs. The apartments contain six and seven rooms, and the building has a gross annual rent of $14,900. Frank M. Smith of L. M. Smith & Bro. negotiated the sale.

Oglesby Avenue Corner Sold.

The south shore district also turned up a big transaction in the sale by Andrew J. Lillroth to Chester F. Van Wie of the high grade eighteen apartment building on 187x138 feet of ground at the northwest corner of Seventieth place and Oglesby avenue, for indicated consideration of $84,000, subject to an incumbrance of $50,000.

The apartments contain four, five, and six rooms, with two baths, large sun parlors, and sleeping porches, and the building is said to have a gross annual rental of $18,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment the vacant 110x130 feet at the northwest corner of Seventy-third street and Coles avenue at a reported valuation of $17,000; also 100x136 feet of vacant on Vincennes avenue, 100 feet north of Seventy-seventh street, east front, at a valuation of $6,000. George C. Bour Jr. of George C. Bour & Co. represented both parties.

24 Flat Building in Deal.

There was filed for record the conveyance by Carl Ekstrom to Henry Eisenstein of the apartment house property at the northwest corner of Indiana avenue and Sixtieth street, lot 99x161 feet, improved with a building containing twenty-four apartments of four, five, and six rooms. The building has a gross annual rental of about $11,000 and was sold subject to an incumbrance of $53,000.

Mr. Eisenstein conveyed in return the leasehold estate in the 200x80 feet at the northwest corner of Forty-seventh street and Drexel boulevard and the two story store, flat, and office building thereon. It was conveyed for a nominal consideration, subject to an incumbrance of $22,500.

Albany and Leland Corner Sold.

Record was made of the sale of the new high grade eighteen apartment building at the northeast corner of Albany and Leland avenues by Bertha L. Remington to Sophie Lipinski, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $52,500. The building occupies a lot fronting 89.58 feet with a depth of 125 feet, and the apartments contain four and five rooms.

The extra high grade six apartment building at 7214-16 South Shore drive has been sold by Joseph H. Larson to Marion L. Bradford for a reported consideration of $50,000, subject to an incumbrance of $25,000.

The building is on a lot 65x187 feet, east front, and the apartments contain seven rooms, two baths, sun parlors, and sleeping porches. The building is said to have a gross annual rent of nearly $7,200. J. C. Crist of John A. Carroll & Bro. represented both the parties to the transaction.

Takes Farm in Trade.

Dr. Harry G. Hardt has sold to Harry L. Mocar the high grade twelve apartment building on 48x125 feet of ground at the southeast corner of Seventy-third street and Emerald avenue, for a reported consideration of $37,500, subject to an incumbrance of $22,000, the purchaser conveying in part payment a farm of 120 acres in Pulaski county, Ind., at a consideration of $14,500. Malooly & Co. were the brokers.

The nine apartment building on 38x125 feet of ground at the northeast corner of Eastwood and Spaulding avenues was conveyed by Annie E. Berwick to Gustave and Minna Kuehl for a reported consideration of $32,500. In part payment the purchaser conveyed the property at 1927-29 Orchard avenue at a valuation of $14,000. George J. McCabe of L. J. White & Co. represented both parties.

Leases and Loans.

The lease of the theater in the new Fuchs building at the northwest corner of Halsted and Grace streets, at the intersection of Broadway, by Ascher Bros. from Albert E. Fuchs featured the lease market last week. The transaction has the distinction of providing for the largest rent ever paid for an outlying theater in Chicago. The rent is on a graded basis, with an aggregate of $175,000 for the term.

Another interesting feature of the transaction is the fact the theater is the largest in the city outside the loop, having a seating capacity of 2,500. The building of which the theater is a part is stated to have cost in the neighborhood of $450,000, and the theater about $200,000.

It is a fireproof house and will be operated by Ascher Bros. in conjunction with the several motion picture theaters conducted by them in various parts of the city. The lobby is 40x100 feet and is said to be one of the largest in the city. Baird & Warner represented Mr. Fuchs in the transaction and White & Tabor Ascher Bros.

The entire building occupies 140x268 feet of ground and is of an unusually diversified character with reference to the different kinds of business it will house. It will contain stores, offices, a large restaurant, billiard and bowling alleys, halls, etc.

The Wilcox company filed for record a lease for ninety-nine years from Dec. 1, 1914, from Sophia D. Crandall of the property in Milwaukee avenue, 899 feet northwest of Addison street, with a northeast frontage of 40 feet and a depth of 125 feet. An annual rental of $600 for the first five years and $720 for the remainder of the term is fixed. The total rental is $70,680.

E. C. Brownlee has negotiated six leases, covering space in the new Barnheisel building at 616-22 South Michigan avenue, for Frederick R. Barnheisel at an annual rental of $9,600, or a term rent of $66,000. The terms vary from five to ten years.

There was filed for record a trust deed given by Mrs. Emma S. Theurer to the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee, to secure a serial bond issue loan of $100,000 in connection with the construction of the "Theurer" apartments, to be erected at 2340-44 Lincoln park west. The building, which will occupy a lot 60x170 feet, will be six stories high and will contain four apartments of thirteen rooms and four baths, and is expected to cost about $175,000. The loan bears 6 per cent interest and matures in two to five years.

The United Cigars Stores have leased from Tatge & Koepke the store and basement in the building at the northeast corner of North and Fairfield avenues for a period of ten years at a reported term rent of $49,500. R. L. Hurlburt & Co. negotiated the lease.

O. B. Gortin has leased to the National Biscuit company the property at the southwest corner of Madison street and Grove avenue, 75x134 feet in extent, in Oak Park, for a term of five years from Nov. 1, 1916, at a rental of $2,520 a year, or a total of $12,600 for the term.

Robert Glendinning has closed a deal whereby he will erect a one story building, 70x140 feet, at West Forty-eighth street and Campbell avenue, which he has leased, together with 25,000 square feet of vacant land, to the Fort Dearborn Smelting & Refining company for a term rent of $28,500. Hart & Whetston were the brokers.

The Chicago Title & Trust company is trustee in a bond issue loan of $50,000, five years, at per cent, to James H. Belron, secured by the property in Kenmore avenue, 100 feet south of Balmoral avenue, lot 100x150 feet, east front, with apartment improvements.

Margaret J. Cary has given a trust deed to G. K. Schmidt to secure a loan of $30,000, six years, at 6 per cent, on the property in Cornelia avenue, 363 feet east of Sheffield avenue, lot 90x143 feet, north front, with flat improvements.

BUILDING ON LARGE SCALE

That building operations are still on a large scale is evidenced by the fact that the cost of the permits issued by the city building department last week reached the large sum of $3,264,700, as compared with $1,756,000 for the corresponding week in 1915.

DEMAND BRISK FOR OUTLYING BUSINESS SITES

Sale of New Jackson Hotel Leasehold Leader in the Week's Trading.

Outside business property made a surprisingly good showing last week, both as regards the number as well as character of the sales reported or made matters of record, there being a larger number of good sized transactions than for some time past. In addition to the purchase by J. B. Moos from Frank Hunt of the leasehold interest in the property at Halsted street and Jackson boulevard for $100,000, referred to on another part of this page, there were several notable transactions in the more outlying districts.

Stony Island Avenue Site Sold.

The most important of these covered the property at 6713-29 Stony Island avenue, which has been conveyed by Edward I. and Marie C. Bloom to Valdemar and Margaret Michaelson for a reported consideration of $120,000, subject to an incumbrance of $55,000.

The lot has a frontage of 100 feet with a depth of 110 feet. It is improved with a new two story brick building, containing eight stores on the ground floor and nine offices on the second floor. It also has a public garage. Mr. Michaelson conveyed in part payment out of town property valued at $35,000, subject to an incumbrance of $12,000. Green M. Gooder of W. K. Young & Bro. were the brokers, representing both parties.

Trades Residence in Deal.

The business property at the southwest corner of Fullerton avenue and Kedzie boulevard has been sold by Joseph Lipkey to Helen M. Drueck, for a reported consideration of about $45,000, the figure at which the property is said to have been offered. The lot is [illegible] feet and is improved with a one and two story terra cotta front building containing seven stores, three offices, and two flats. It was conveyed subject to an incumbrance of $28,000.

In part payment Mrs. Drueck conveyed her residence at 438 East Forty-sixth street, clear. John B. Ackerman represented both parties to the transaction.

Southwest Side Transaction.

The property at the southeast corner of Sixteenth street and Hamlin avenue, lot 116x50 feet, improved with a one and two story brick building, containing seven stores and two apartments, has been conveyed by Max M. Cohen to Max Lewis for a reported consideration of $30,000, subject to an incumbrance of $15,000.

The purchaser conveyed in exchange the one story brick building, lot [illegible] feet, containing three stores, at 4028-32 West Harrison street, subject to $5,000, and the vacant 60x125 feet at the southwest corner of Seventy-sixth and Morgan sreets. Bach & Adelson were the brokers.

Murray Wolbach has sold through I. H. Schoen to Mrs. Kate Farren the property at the southeast corner of Chicago and Humphrey avenues, lot [illegible] feet, improved with a one story building containing seven stores, for a reported consideration of $23,500. The Wonderful New Product Won't shrink woolens! Won't turn silks yellow! Won't injure even chiffons!

Open a package of Lux.

Notice how entirely different it looks from any other soap product you have ever seen.

Nothing like it has ever before been manufactured.

It is not a soap powder! Not a chipped soap! Not a cake of soap! But pure essence of soap in flakes! Notice how delicate, how transparently pure each flake is.

The modern form of soap

This is the form in which the woman of today demands soap—in flakes. Ready to use, no shaving, no chipping required.

Cleans without rubbing

Throw the flakes into hot water; whisk into a lather; instantly you get just the rich, thick suds you have always wanted. Then work the clothes about in these suds; no rubbing is necessary.

You will never use cake or chip soap for these uses again

For fine laundering, soap should never be rubbed directly on the article. This coarsens and discolors the fabric. For this reason Lux is a tremendous advance over a cake of soap for anything but rough washing.

In these flakes, Lux contains more real soap than five times its weight in ordinary soaps, chipped soap or soap powders! Lux can't injure anything that pure water alone won't injure. Get it at your grocery or department store. Try it, no matter what soap product you now use. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

BEAUTY and BRAINS

Herewith are presented the winners of the "Beauty and Brains" contest conducted under the auspices of the Photoplay Magazine and the World Film corporation. The eleven winners of the contest—and there were more than 10,000 entries—will get a try-out in the Fort Lee, N. J., studio of the World Film corporation with all expenses paid and those who profit by the advice and instruction of film directors will be signed up to a year's contract at a large salary. The contest opened on Sept. 1, 1915, and closed Feb. 29, 1916. It was open to all women in the forty-six states of this country and the provinces of Canada who combined the maximum of beauty and brains for making moving picture stars. The judges of the contest were Miss Lillian Russell, Miss Kitty Kelly (The Tribune's photoplay critic), Miss Sophie Irene Loeb, and Messrs. William A. Brady, the late Arthur H. Spiegel, and Julian Johnson. The photographs on these two pages are published by courtesy of the Photoplay Magazine.

MISS FLORENCE GRAY, another western division winner, was born in Ellenburg, Wash., twenty-years ago but was educated in Seattle, where her home now is. She is 5 feet 6 inches tall; her weight is 130 pounds, and her eyes are gray-blue. She is a good swimmer. The judges picked her as another Clara Kimball Young.

MISS PHYLLIS E. CURL hails from Roxbury, a suburb of Boston. Her mother was an actress and her father was a world traveler whose business was buying and selling art antiques and curios. She is 19 years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height, and weighs 128 pounds. She is a blue-eyed blonde who has seen the world and who may out-Kathlyn Kathlyn Williams.

MISS HELEN ARNOLD lives in Louisville, Ky., that social center of a state far famed for its fast horses and pretty women. Her favorite sport, of course, is horseback riding and she can handle the reins in a sulky behind a pacing thoroughbred. Her ancestors were of French and English blood. She is 22 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs 118 pounds. She has hazel eyes. She is a delightful dancer and a good tennis player. She believes in screen sermons.

MISS PEGGY BLOOM of Orlando, Fla., is of Irish descent with reddish-brown hair, blue eyes, perfect teeth, and a pretty smile. She is 21 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall and she weighs 130 pounds. She is fond of tennis.

MISS LUCILLE ZINTHEO, one of the winners in the western division, lives in Spokane, Wash., but she was born in Detroit, Mich., twenty years ago. She is 5 feet 4½ inches tall, fair complexioned, and she weighs 125 pounds. Her hair is dark brown and her eyes are very dark hazel. Says Miss Zintheo: "Film folk must lead clean, wholesome lives, for the camera is merciless and dissipation shows too plainly." And she is slated to be the future Theda Bara and to do our screen vampiring for us.

MISS ALATIA MARTON of Dallas, Tex., is of American Scotch-Irish descent and is 21 years old. She is 5 feet 4 inches in height, weighs 125 pounds, and has gray eyes. She was a telephone operator until the judges of the "Beauty and Brains" contest were impressed with her picture. She hasn't had time for athletics, but says she could learn any branch of them.

MISS MILDRED LEE of Kansas City, Mo., is 21 years old and of German-American descent. She was born in New Albany, Ind. She weighs 125 pounds, is 5 feet 4 inches tall, and her eyes are hazel. She was a model in a millinery house and has been an entry clerk and a saleswoman. She is fond of canoeing, horseback riding, swimming, and tennis. She has posed for millinery catalogues. We could imagine her Alice Joycing as a senorita in Spanish photodrama very much to our liking.

MISS VIVIAN SUCKLING of Winnipeg, Manitoba, is the winner from Canada. She is 21 years old, a descendant of Lord Nelson and of Sir John Suckling, an English poet. When her father died he left her an heirloom of valuable coins, some of which she sold to get money to pay the photographer for this picture.

MISS LUCILLE SATTERTHWAIT was born and raised in Waynesville, N. C., and educated at Elizabeth college, Charlotte, N. C., and at Sweet Briar, Va. She is 21, 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 125 pounds, and has hazel eyes. She loves the out of doors, rides splendidly, and plays a good game of tennis. Her mother was a singer and dancer. A Margaret Illington of the films, mayhap.

MISS CLAIRE LOIS BUTLER LEE was born in Plattsmouth, Neb., whence her parents removed to Wichita, Kas. She is 23 years old, 5 feet 2 inches tall, and she weighs 124 pounds. Her eyes are brown. Marie Doro had better look to her laurels, say we.

MISS ESTELLE CLAIRE JUDY of McKeesport, Pa., was chief operator of the McKeesport telephone exchange. She has dark brown hair, gray-brown eyes, perfect teeth, and a medium-slender figure. She is 23 years old, 5 feet 5 inches in height, and weighs 125 pounds.

PRINCESS RADZIWILL, who was Miss Dorothy Deacon of New York, is one of the most prominent Red Cross workers connected with the Austro-Hungarian army. Her husband is an Austrian prince and an officer in Franz Josef's army. She is a favorite in Vienna court circles, where she still holds her reputation as a lively hostess. CAPT. H. SUNDSTEDT, the people's hero of the aviation corps of the Swedish army, has a record of flying from Paris to Stockholm in thirteen and one-half hours.
